Attack Is Menace To Peace: Khrush

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Soviet Premier Khrushchev appealed to President Kennedy today to halt the invasion of Cuba by forces seeking to overthrow Khrushchev's old friend Fidel Castro. Khrushchev called the attack a menace to world peace and 'promised "all necessary assistance" to Castro.

President Kennedy discussed the Cuban counterrevolution with Democratic leaders from the Capitol today but withheld immediate public comment on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's new appeal to him to stop the invasion of the island.

JFK Reads Dispatches

Early in the day, Kennedy read news dispatches reporting the gist of Khrushchev's message, the text of the communication, adding nothing essential to the earlier report, was delivered to him shortly after his weekly breakfast session with the Congress members.

More than 24 hours after the landings in Cuba, the rebels were reported moving inland in an area 90 miles east of Havana.

Castro Takes Charge

Prime Minister Castro took personal charge of the attempt to hurl back the invaders, and a Cuban broadcast said counterrevoluntionaries had marked him for assassination. The broadcast announced the arrest of 27 persons, including Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, Castro's former minister of agriculture.

A spokesman for the attacking forces claimed wholesale desertions by forces nominally loyal to Castro, including many of the militiamen Castro had forcefully recruited from all ranks of Cuban life. Those are now the people who may spell success or failure

Former Area Man Will Be Manager

Wilson P. Foss, president of New York Trap Rock Corporation announced at a luncheon meeting today at Governor Clinton Hotel, for area business men and local communication media, its decision to locate and construct a lightweight aggregate plant at Eddyville in the Town of Ulster on Rondout Creek.

He said that plans call for $2,000,000 to be spent on the construction of the plant which is expected to be in operation by this time next year.

The plant will provide employment for many local people and it is estimated that the annual expenditures for payrolls, taxes and locally purchased supplies will approach $750,000 annually.

A subsidiary company, the Udell Realty Corp., will direct the new plant and its operations.

Paul M. Hedley has been elected president of the Udell Realty Corp. Hedley, prior to this time was vice president of North American Cement Co., and director of operations for Marquette Cement Corp., Chicago, Ill.

Happy About Reception

Foss said, "We are delighted to make this announcement today and we will make every effort to conduct ourselves as good industrial neighbors. The friendly reception that we have received from citizens and town officials is heartwarming."

An explanation of the new product, "lightweight aggregate, although relatively new, is gaining in increasing popularity and use among contractors and construction firms.

"Shale to be extracted by the new enterprise has been fully tested in the laboratory, and on a commercial scale will bring to the market an extremely high quality lightweight aggregrate."

Other Plants Coming

Plans for other companies for the production of lightweight aggregate are in the Saugerties area and elsewhere along the Hudson River. The demand for the product will greatly increase and provide these areas of the state where the natural materials are found with the new industry that should provide additional job opportunities.

It is believed that the extraction of shale, the natural material to be used in the manufacture of lightweight aggregate can be accomplished in this area by using large specially equipped tractors. In the event this can

2nd Man Sought in Burglary Case

Jury to Make Routine Probe About Shooting

Stressing that although investigation shows no indication of criminal responsibility on the part of Patrolman Joseph Kivlan in the fatal shooting Sunday night of a 21-year-old man during a burglary investigation, District Attorney David W. Corwin today said the case would be reviewed by a grand jury.

Meanwhile, a second man surprised in a reported burglary attempt at a North Front Street gas station, was being sought for questioning, according to Police Chief Robert F. Murphy, who said there will be no interruption in the search and continued investigation.

Shot Running Away

Police said Wiliam Francis Ricketson, of Route 28, just west of Washington Avenue viaduct, was felled by a shot fired by Kivlan only a few hundred feet from the Gulf Gas Station, 79 North Front Street, from which two youths ran.

The district attorney told The Freeman the incident will be submitted to the grand jury for review and report. He said that is the usual procedure in cases such as this.

Reports Clear Officer

"All reports we have at this time clear the officer of any criminal responsibility," the prosecutor said, adding he will ask Chief Murphy for a detailed form of the case and submit the case to the grand jury.

Corwin said on the basis of all reports turned over to his office there does not appear to be any reason for any charge against the officer. He said the case would be submitted to the grand jury soon after he receives complete reports from police officials.

Chief Murphy said the night of the shooting he discussed the case with Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Vogt and both were in agreement the matter should be reviewed by the grand jury "so there would be no question" in the minds of the public as to circumstances involved.

Was Making Routine Check

Kivlan reported he was walking his uptown post making routine checks, when at about 10:10 p. m. he looked into the Gulf gas station operated by Henry J. Werber and noticed someone inside. Looking through a front window, the patrolman saw a man in a crouched position in front of a soda machine.

The officer told superiors later he drew his pistol, rapped on the window and told those inside to come out the door. The person

156th Takes Part In War Ceremony At Albany Monday

The Civil War Centennial Commission of the State of New York conducted its first assembly at Chancellors Hall, Albany, Monday afternoon when a large crowd of interested citizens and students from all parts of the state assembled to join in the observance of the centennial of the great rebellion.

One of eight color guards from distinguished military units of the New York Army National Guard was that of the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 156th Artillery, of Kingston and Poughkeepsie. It was composed of M/Sgt. Walter T. Bundy, Sgt. William R. Steuding, Sgt. Joseph B. Stein and Specialist Four Robert J. Motrie of the Kingston units. Chief Warrant Officer Thomas W. Miller, personnel officer, was in charge of the representation.

Ulster Guard Colors Hung

For the occasion, the colors of the "Old Twentieth" (Ulster Guard) which became the 80th N.Y. Volunteers during the Civil War, were hung from the auditorium balcony of Chancellors Hall. The tattered and torn condition of the flag did not permit it being carried by the color guard which carried the state flag instead for this observance.

Soviet Gives UN Warning On Cuba Aid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin today laid before the United Nations a warning that the Soviet Union is prepared to support the Cuban regime of Fidel Castro with "all the necessary assistance."

The Soviet deputy foreign minister read to the General Assembly's Political Committee the complete text of a declaration and a letter sent to President Kennedy by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. The warning of military aid was in the declaration.

Chief U.S. Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson told the committee he hoped to read Kennedy's reply later in the day.

The exchange took place at the opening of another tense round of debate on Monday's invasion of Cuba by Anti-Castro forces. The Public gallery was only partly filled because of the strict screening of visitors.

The Khrushchev letter and its accompanying statement were handed to Edward L. Freers, U.S. charge d'affaires, in Moscow. Zorin read the full text of both to the committee.

The Soviet Union is expected to demand a U.N. denunciation of the United States as an aggressor against Cuba. The demand, however, is expected to get a cold reception from most delegates other than Cuba and the Soviet bloc.

Wilson, Bush Press For Valley Brick Use

A meeting called by state legislators and high state officials was held at the Stuyvesant-Kingston Hotel Monday for the purpose of discussing the brick manufacturing industry in the Hudson Valley and its future.

The general discussion centered around the use of common brick manufactured locally in construction by public authorities.

The New York State Commerce Department was requested to protest to Washington and to Mayor Wagner of New York city on alleged discriminatory practices in the preparation of specifications for government and City of New York public housing contracts.

Arranged by GOP

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson (R), Woodstock, Senator E. Ogden Bush (R), and Al Abrams, assistant to Senator Walter Mahoney, majority leader of the New York State Senate, arranged and conducted the meeting.

In discussing the use of common brick in construction by public authorities, it was pointed out that locally the brick manufacturing industry represents a $1,000,000 payroll annually.

Has Stood Test

It was shown that price wise and the test of time has shown that Hudson Valley brick can meet competition. It was further pointed out that brick has been manufactured on the river since 1627 and that many structures of long duration which used Hudson River brick are still standing and that many buildings have been enhanced in appearance by the use of this brick.

Brick manufacturing along the Hudson River represents the livlihood and a good standard of living for many people of the area. The industry requested they merely be offered the right to be competitive by having their

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—"I feel weak but wonderful," Liz Taylor sighed happily after winning her first Oscar Monday night—a few months after recovering from a brush with death.

The beautiful star, who won the best actress award for her role as the girl-about-town in "Butterfield 8," nearly fainted twice during the 90-minute Academy Awards show.

All the winners posed backstage for photographers but Liz got weak in the knees and had to cut her posing short. Accompanied by her husband Eddie Fisher and her doctor, she swayed shakily toward an open door. The fresh air revived her quickly and she was all smiles again.

Earlier, on her arrival, she had to rest 15 minutes before entering the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. The show, telecast over ABC-TV, was well under way before she was able to make it to her seat.

When her name was called for the Oscar, she put her hands over her face in surprise, kissed her husband and then walked slowly, with his help, to the podium.

"I don't really know how to express my great gratitude," she said with emotion. "I guess I will just have to thank you with all my heart."

Tracks Can Employ State, Local Government Workers

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has signed a bill allowing additional state and local government employes to hold part-time jobs at race tracks.

The measure permits government workers making up to $7,500 a year to hold race-track jobs, compared with the present salary limit of $6,000.

Rockefeller approved the bill along with several others. He announced his decisions on them today.

The governor said the race-track measure was consistent with policy established in 1954, allowing government workers to take the track jobs. The original, maximum salary specified was $5,000. This was raised in 1957 to $6,000.

Local governments may, if they wish, prohibit their own employes from taking track jobs.

Law-enforcement officials, such as police officers, sheriffs and district attorneys, are excluded from the law entirely and may not accept jobs from the tracks regardless of their salary levels.

The governor also announced today he had vetoed a bill that would have allowed part-time government employes to hold a racing license and have financial transactions with licensees or with persons who do business with such licensees. Public employes now are barred from such activity.

Hausner Traces Eichmann's Chain of Events

Murder Least Terrible Part As Israeli Bares Indictment

Hausner did not ask the death penalty for Eichmann as he ended his opening statement. But the law under which the former Gestapo officer is being tried provides it automatically for conviction on seven of the 15 counts in the indictment against him.

Will Prove Deeds

"Adolf Eichmann's guilt lies in the planning, initiation, organization and execution of the crimes as charged in the indictment," Hausner said in a voice trembling with emotion.

"We shall prove that his deeds were crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity, and war crimes."

Country by country, city by city, from death camp to death camp, Hausner traced the fearful chain of events that led to the annihilation of six million Jews during World War II at the hands of the Nazis.

He spelled it out in detail even more horrifying than in the first two-thirds of his statement Monday.

Some Weep Openly

Cannibalism, castration, surgical experiments on the living, the killing of infants before the eyes of their mothers were described in fearful detail.

Even more unspeakable acts were delineated by Hausner in the final three hours of his statement.

Call First Witness

The prosecution summoned its first witness, Police Inspector Napthali Bar Shalom, to testify on how documents in the state's case against Eichmann were assembled. He said the documents were examined for authenticity and included some captured archives of the German Foreign Office. Chief Justice Moshe Landau ruled they could be accepted as evidence.

Cuba in Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moscow — Premier Khrushchev asks President Kennedy to halt Cuban invasion, says attack is a menace to world peace and promises "all necessary assistance" to Castro regime. Thousands demonstrate in front of U.S. Embassy.

Washington — White House awaits Khrushchev message; officials silent on developments in Cuba.

Miami—Cuban radio says Prime Minister Castro takes personal charge of attempt to hurl back invaders, reported moving inland in an area 90 miles east of Havana; mass arrests in Havana in purported assassination plot against Castro.

United Nations — Soviet Union prepares demand for U.N. denunciation of the United States as aggressor and threat to Western Hemisphere's peace.

Insurgents Claim

for the attempt to topple Castro.

Rebel leaders in the United States asserted the invaders who landed in southwest Las Villas Province Monday had struck halfway across the narrow island to Colon.

The Communists charged the invasion was financed by the United States and supported by U.S. warships and planes from Florida and Central America. The United States has denied supplying the invaders but has expressed sympathy for the forces fighting to overthrow Castro.

No Mention of Rockets

Khrushchev said in a message to Kennedy that the Soviet Union wants to decrease world tension "but if others aggravate it, we shall reply in full measure."

A statement by the Soviet government went a step farther and warned that the Cuban fighting is "Capable of jeopardizing the peaceful life of the U.S.A. itself."

Khrushchev did not mention the rockets he once symbolically promised to bring to Castro's aid.

"The Soviet Union will not abandon the Cuban people in its misfortune and will lend it all necessary support."

News Reports Sketchy

Soldiers and mounted police kept the crowd outside the high iron fence in front of the embassy. Most embassy personnel and their families watched from inside. No one was hurt.

With Cuba itself blacked out for all newsmen except those of the Communist bloc, news of the fighting was confined to sketchy claims by the Cuban radio and by anti-Castro spokesmen abroad.

"The revolutionary (Castro) troops continue to fight heroically in southwest Las Villas Province where mercenaries disembarked with imperialist support," Castro said.

No Victory Claims

Observers in Miami considered it significant that the usually boastful Castro made no victory claims.

Both sides claimed the next few hours could be crucial in the fight for the Caribbean island republic. The key factor was believed to be the loyalty of Castro's 400,000 troops and miltia members.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council in New York claimed there already had been wholesale desertions and predicted a mass uprising against the Castro regime before the day is out.

Fighting was reported—but not confirmed—in four of Cuba's six provinces. The heaviest appeared southeast of Havana where forces that landed at Las Villas were reported to have reached the Colon area 90 miles from the capital and halfway across the island.

Worldwide Repercussions

The U. S. government declared its sympathy for the forces trying to overthrow Castro but denied Cuban charges that Washington had financed and organized the invasion and was supporting it with American forces.

The Soviet government in an official statement pledged "all necessary aid" to Castro if armed intervention it charged to the United States did not stop. The Soviet statement also appealed for U. N. action, and observers at the United Nations believed the Soviets would join the Castro delegation in a demand for U. N. condemnation of the United States as the aggressor in Cuba.

Demonstrations for Castro broke out Monday night in most major South American cities but the crowds shouting denunciations of the United States were generally small, from several hundred to several thousand. Police guarded U. S. embassies in Latin American capitals.

In New York, 1,000 Castro supporters demonstrated in front of U. N. headquarters and Monday night part of the group tried to tie up traffic in Times Square. Police dispersed them.

All communications with Western newsmen in Cuba were cut off and rumors flew wild throughout the Western Hemisphere on what was happening inside the island.

Cardona Stands Ready

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council which organized the invasion, was believed at sea ready to land in Cuba and proclaim a provisional government once a beachhead is secure.

The strength of the invading forces was a secret but Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida said he believed those fighting Castro "at the moment" numbered not more than 4,000 to 5,000.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council in New York said the invasion was "largely a supply and support effort to forces which have been mobilized and trained inside Cuba over the past several months."

Claiming wholesale desertions in Castro's own forces, the council said, "Our information from Cuba indicates that much of the military of the countryside has already defected from Castro."

Reports Two Landings

There were reports that the invaders made landings at five different places but a rebel spokesman in Miami said only two of these were confirmed — in Oriente Province in the east near Santiago and on the swampy coast of the central province of Las Villas near Cochinos Bay.

The spokesman said it was possible a third landing had taken place in Pinar del Rio, the western province.

Anti-Castro sources in Mexico City claimed the Isle of Pines, the big island converted into a prison off the south coast of Cuba, had been seized by the rebels. This report—which could not be confirmed — said 10,000 political prisoners were freed and joined the revolt.

Another unconfirmed report from Mexico claimed that Castro's "entire military guard' 'had been killed by insurrectionists working with the invaders.

Capt. Manuel Artime, 29, a right-wing member of the anti-Castro coalition, was reported in command of the invasion forces. But the anti-Castro leaders kept secret their jumping off places for their attack by sea and air.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa charged in the United Nations that the invaders set out from Florida and Guatemala. Both the United States and Guatemala denied the charges.

Roa also charged that a U. S. aircraft carrier and regular forces from the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, were supporting the invasion. A Navy spokesman in Washington ridiculed the charges and declared, "We don't even have a carrier in that vicinity."

U. S. sympathy for the anti-Castro forces was voiced by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U. S. delegate at the United Nations. But both pledged that the United States was not intervening in Cuba.

Roa told the United Nations the Castro regime had pledges of support from Mexico, Brazil and Ecuador. But there was no indication of any direct aid to the Cuban government from any Latin-American country.

156th Takes Part

The "Ulster Guard" colors are maintained at the State Museum. It was announced during the ceremonies that Gov. Rockefeller had signed a bill authorizing funds for the restoration of many of the state's Civil War battle flags, including that of the "Old Twentieth."

A number of historic exhibits were displayed including the original draft by President Abraham Lincoln of the Emancipation Proclamation dated Sept. 22, 1862. A N.Y. State military museum exhibit attracted much attention and showed photographs, uniforms, poster, portraits, flags and other items of interest.

Stirring Ceremony

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Stevenson, Adjutant General of the state and vice chief of staff to the governor, read a short history of the eight units of the Civil War militia as the colors were being posted. It was a stirring ceremony in which the Village Volunteers, ancient fife and drum band of Delmar, played an appropriate piece for each color guard as it marched forward to a position in front of the huge auditorium.

Invocation was made by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Gaffigan, of Sacred Heart Church, Albany. Carl Haverlin, commission secretary, reported on the activities of the commission and warned against those people who with malice would inflame others using the centennial as an excuse.

Dr. John H. Franklin, vice chairman of the commission, spoke on the subject, "Learning to Live With the Past" in which he suggested that "we make of this observance an inspiring moment of rededication for a more perfect union and a more perfect democracy. To rededicate ourselves to the task which was begun—(referring to the ideal that all men are created equal)—to prove our worthiness to this great legacy."

Catton Is Speaker

Bruce Catton, chairman of the commission, noted autnor and editor, gave his views on why the centennial of the Civil War should be commemorated. He said, 'some say the tragedy, the bitterness, the graves—should be left to sleep—but the Civil War is something we have to remember whether we want to or not—it is the central theme of our existence and we cannot ignore it. We are bound to look back at the dazzling record of our growth as a nation in the last 100 years which had its beginnings in the Civil War. We should bear in mind that the Civil War was about something, fought for something and won something for all people. It changed chatteled slaves into American citizens—freedom is indivisible—to protect ourselves we must protect freedom for all. —630,000 American lives sacrificed cannot be forgotten."

Following his address Catton unveiled a painting of the Civil War marking the centennial period which was one by artist Frank Kysor, Department of Public Works. Rabbi Naphtali J. Rubiner, Temple Ohav Sholom, Albany, made the closing prayer. Guides for the assembly were high ranking history students from public and private secondary schools of 14 counties in the Albany area. Theme of the 1961 observance is "Reconciliation"

Rigbys at Ceremony

Noted among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rigby Jr., Kingston. Rigby was recently appointed by Bruce Catton o coordinate centennial observvances in the Hudson Valley and to coordinate centenial observcommission. A printed program for the occasion carried a brief history of the 156th Artillery, reputed to be the oldest militia unit in the nation. Earlier in the afternoon, wreath laying ceremonies, with a military salute, took place at the statue of General Sheridan in front of the State Capitol.

Prendergast said cities that now have Democratic majorities in enrollment includes: Albany, Amsterdam, Auburn, Buffalo, Cohoes, Dunkirk, Lackawanna, Little Falls, North Tonawanda, Plattsburgh, Rensselaer, Salamanca, Utica and Watervliet.

He predicted that nine additional cities would be in the Democratic column within two years. These are, he said, Beacon, Elmira, Geneva, Hudson, Ogdensburg, Olean, Oswego, Rome and Yonkers.

Clark Asks Dept. Of Affairs, Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., today introduced an administration bill to create a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing—a step President Kennedy was expected to propose in a message.

Clark told his colleagues the bill would create the new department as recommended by the President "in his message transmitted to the Congress today."

At that time, the message hadn't been transmitted.

Clark, a former mayor of Philadelphia, said he had been auhorized by Kennedy "to act as the principal Senate sponsor of this bill, because I am among its earlier advocates."

Jury Convicts 3, Acquits Pair in Coast Kidnaping

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A jury has convicted three defendants and acquitted two others in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of sportsman Anthony Alessio.

Two others await sentencing in the case that began last Nov. 22, when Alessio was abducted at gunpoint in front of his San Diego home.

Convicted Monday night of kidnaping for ransom and conspiracy were Frank Marrone, 31, former Anchorage, Alaska, night club operator; Robert James Gorman, 30, ex-convict, of Monterey Park, Calif., and his wife, Ruby, 30.

Face Life Terms

They will be sentenced April 26. They face maximum sentences of life imprisonment.

The jury received the case last Thursday, after a six-week trial.

Richard Lee Hoffman, 24, also pleaded guilty to the same charge, but after the case went to the jury.

Alessio, 41, odds-maker at the Agua Caliente, Mexico, racetrack, also is associated with six brothers in business enterprises in California, Mexico and Arizona.

Denies Part of Plan

Marrone claimed that Alessio knew of the kidnap plans. He said they had made a deal, under which they were to split $650,000 ransom. It was to be paid from race track funds and written off in taxes. Alessio denied this.

The original ransom demand was for $650,000.

John Alessio, 30, one of the brothers, testified that he bargained with the kidnapers, then left $200,000 in an automobile on a Hollywood parking lot Nov. 23.

Alessio, held in a San Diego motel cabin, was released just before midnight of Nov. 23. The defendants were arrested afterward.

All but $17,500 of the ransom money has been recovered.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear Aunt, Frieda A. Schulze, who fell asleep in Jesus, April 18, 1960.

I often think of my dear Aunt,
And then of how you died,
To think you could not say good bye,
Before you closed your eyes;
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought your death was near;
But only those that have lost can tell
Schlaf Schoen.
Devoted Nephew,

Hausner Traces Eichmann's Chain of Events

Murder Least Terrible Part As Israeli Bares Indictment

Hausner did not ask the death penalty for Eichmann as he ended his opening statement. But the law under which the former Gestapo officer is being tried provides it automatically for conviction on seven of the 15 counts in the indictment against him.

Will Prove Deeds

"Adolf Eichmann's guilt lies in the planning, initiation, organization and execution of the crimes as charged in the indictment," Hausner said in a voice trembling with emotion.

"We shall prove that his deeds were crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity, and war crimes."

Country by country, city by city, from death camp to death camp, Hausner traced the fearful chain of events that led to the annihilation of six million Jews during World War II at the hands of the Nazis.

He spelled it out in detail even more horrifying than in the first two-thirds of his statement Monday.

Some Weep Openly

Cannibalism, castration, surgical experiments on the living, the killing of infants before the eyes of their mothers were described in fearful detail.

Even more unspeakable acts were delineated by Hausner in the final three hours of his statement.

Call First Witness

The prosecution summoned its first witness, Police Inspector Napthali Bar Shalom, to testify on how documents in the state's case against Eichmann were assembled. He said the documents were examined for authenticity and included some captured archives of the German Foreign Office. Chief Justice Moshe Landau ruled they could be accepted as evidence.

156th Takes Part

The "Ulster Guard" colors are maintained at the State Museum. It was announced during the ceremonies that Gov. Rockefeller had signed a bill authorizing funds for the restoration of many of the state's Civil War battle flags, including that of the "Old Twentieth."

A number of historic exhibits were displayed including the original draft by President Abraham Lincoln of the Emancipation Proclamation dated Sept. 22, 1862. A N.Y. State military museum exhibit attracted much attention and showed photographs, uniforms, poster, portraits, flags and other items of interest.

Stirring Ceremony

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Stevenson, Adjutant General of the state and vice chief of staff to the governor, read a short history of the eight units of the Civil War militia as the colors were being posted. It was a stirring ceremony in which the Village Volunteers, ancient fife and drum band of Delmar, played an appropriate piece for each color guard as it marched forward to a position in front of the huge auditorium.

Invocation was made by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Gaffigan, of Sacred Heart Church, Albany. Carl Haverlin, commission secretary, reported on the activities of the commission and warned against those people who with malice would inflame others using the centennial as an excuse.

Dr. John H. Franklin, vice chairman of the commission, spoke on the subject, "Learning to Live With the Past" in which he suggested that "we make of this observance an inspiring moment of rededication for a more perfect union and a more perfect democracy. To rededicate ourselves to the task which was begun—(referring to the ideal that all men are created equal)—to prove our worthiness to this great legacy."

Catton Is Speaker

Bruce Catton, chairman of the commission, noted author and editor, gave his views on why the centennial of the Civil War should be commemorated. He said, 'some say the tragedy, the bitterness, the graves—should be left to sleep—but the Civil War is something we have to remember whether we want to or not—it is the central theme of our existence and we cannot ignore it. We are bound to look back at the dazzling record of our growth as a nation in the last 100 years which had its beginnings in the Civil War. We should bear in mind that the Civil War was about something, fought for something and won something for all people. It changed chatteled slaves into American citizens—freedom is indivisible—to protect ourselves we must protect freedom for all. —630,000 American lives sacrificed cannot be forgotten."

Following his address Catton unveiled a painting of the Civil War marking the centennial period which was one by artist Frank Kysor, Department of Public Works. Rabbi Naphtali J. Rubiner, Temple Ohav Sholom, Albany, made the closing prayer. Guides for the assembly were high ranking history students from public and private secondary schools of 14 counties in the Albany area. Theme of the 1961 observance is "Reconciliation"

Rigbys at Ceremony

Noted among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rigby Jr., Kingston. Rigby was recently appointed by Bruce Catton o coordinate centennial observances in the Hudson Valley and to coordinate centenial observcommission. A printed program for the occasion carried a brief history of the 156th Artillery, reputed to be the oldest militia unit in the nation. Earlier in the afternoon, wreath laying ceremonies, with a military salute, took place at the statue of General Sheridan in front of the State Capitol.

Cuba in Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moscow — Premier Khrushchev asks President Kennedy to halt Cuban invasion, says attack is a menace to world peace and promises "all necessary assistance" to Castro regime. Thousands demonstrate in front of U.S. Embassy.

Washington — White House awaits Khrushchev message; officials silent on developments in Cuba.

Miami—Cuban radio says Prime Minister Castro takes personal charge of attempt to hurl back invaders, reported moving inland in an area 90 miles east of Havana; mass arrests in Havana in purported assassination plot against Castro.

United Nations — Soviet Union prepares demand for U.N. denunciation of the United States as aggressor and threat to Western Hemisphere's peace.

Insurgents Claim

Rebel leaders in the United States asserted the invaders who landed in southwest Las Villas Province Monday had struck halfway across the narrow island to Colon.

The Communists charged the invasion was financed by the United States and supported by U.S. warships and planes from Florida and Central America. The United States has denied supplying the invaders but has expressed sympathy for the forces fighting to overthrow Castro.

No Mention of Rockets

Khrushchev said in a message to Kennedy that the Soviet Union wants to decrease world tension "but if others aggravate it, we shall reply in full measure."

A statement by the Soviet government went a step farther and warned that the Cuban fighting is "Capable of jeopardizing the peaceful life of the U.S.A. itself."

Khrushchev did not mention the rockets he once symbolically promised to bring to Castro's aid.

"The Soviet Union will not abandon the Cuban people in its misfortune and will lend it all necessary support."

News Reports Sketchy

Soldiers and mounted police kept the crowd outside the high iron fence in front of the embassy. Most embassy personnel and their families watched from inside. No one was hurt.

With Cuba itself blacked out for all newsmen except those of the Communist bloc, news of the fighting was confined to sketchy claims by the Cuban radio and by anti-Castro spokesmen abroad.

"The revolutionary (Castro) troops continue to fight heroically in southwest Las Villas Province where mercenaries disembarked with imperialist support," Castro said.

No Victory Claims

Observers in Miami considered it significant that the usually boastful Castro made no victory claims.

Both sides claimed the next few hours could be crucial in the fight for the Caribbean island republic. The key factor was believed to be the loyalty of Castro's 400,000 troops and militia members.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council in New York claimed there already had been wholesale desertions and predicted a mass uprising against the Castro regime before the day is out.

Fighting was reported—but not confirmed—in four of Cuba's six provinces. The heaviest appeared southeast of Havana where forces that landed at Las Villas were reported to have reached the Colon area 90 miles from the capital and halfway across the island.

Worldwide Repercussions

The U. S. government declared its sympathy for the forces trying to overthrow Castro but denied Cuban charges that Washington had financed and organized the invasion and was supporting it with American forces.

The Soviet government in an official statement pledged "all necessary aid" to Castro if armed intervention it charged to the United States did not stop. The Soviet statement also appealed for U. N. action, and observers at the United Nations believed the Soviets would join the Castro delegation in a demand for U. N. condemnation of the United States as the aggressor in Cuba.

Demonstrations for Castro broke out Monday night in most major South American cities but the crowds shouting denunciations of the United States were generally small, from several hundred to several thousand. Police guarded U. S. embassies in Latin American capitals.

In New York, 1,000 Castro supporters demonstrated in front of U. N. headquarters and Monday night part of the group tried to tie up traffic in Times Square. Police dispersed them.

All communications with Western newsmen in Cuba were cut off and rumors flew wild throughout the Western Hemisphere on what was happening inside the island.

Cardona Stands Ready

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council which organized the invasion, was believed at sea ready to land in Cuba and proclaim a provisional government once a beachhead is secure.

The strength of the invading forces was a secret but Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida said he believed those fighting Castro "at the moment" numbered not more than 4,000 to 5,000.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council in New York said the invasion was "largely a supply and support effort to forces which have been mobilized and trained inside Cuba over the past several months."

Claiming wholesale desertions in Castro's own forces, the council said, "Our information from Cuba indicates that much of the military of the countryside has already defected from Castro."

Reports Two Landings

There were reports that the invaders made landings at five different places but a rebel spokesman in Miami said only two of these were confirmed — in Oriente Province in the east near Santiago and on the swampy coast of the central province of Las Villas near Cochinos Bay.

The spokesman said it was possible a third landing had taken place in Pinar del Rio, the western province.

Anti-Castro sources in Mexico City claimed the Isle of Pines, the big island converted into a prison off the south coast of Cuba, had been seized by the rebels. This report—which could not be confirmed — said 10,000 political prisoners were freed and joined the revolt.

Another unconfirmed report from Mexico claimed that Castro's "entire military guard" had been killed by insurrectionists working with the invaders.

Capt. Manuel Artime, 29, a right-wing member of the anti-Castro coalition, was reported in command of the invasion forces. But the anti-Castro leaders kept secret their jumping off places for their attack by sea and air.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa charged in the United Nations that the invaders set out from Florida and Guatemala. Both the United States and Guatemala denied the charges.

Roa also charged that a U. S. aircraft carrier and regular forces from the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, were supporting the invasion. A Navy spokesman in Washington ridiculed the charges and declared, "We don't even have a carrier in that vicinity."

U. S. sympathy for the anti-Castro forces was voiced by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U. S. delegate at the United Nations. But both pledged that the United States was not intervening in Cuba.

Roa told the United Nations the Castro regime had pledges of support from Mexico, Brazil and Ecuador. But there was no indication of any direct aid to the Cuban government from any Latin-American country.

He predicted that nine additional cities would be in the Democratic column within two years. These are, he said, Beacon, Elmira, Geneva, Hudson, Ogdensburg, Olean, Oswego, Rome and Yonkers.

Clark Asks Dept. Of Affairs, Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., today introduced an administration bill to create a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing—a step President Kennedy was expected to propose in a message.

Clark told his colleagues the bill would create the new department as recommended by the President "in his message transmitted to the Congress today."

At that time, the message hadn't been transmitted.

Clark, a former mayor of Philadelphia, said he had been authorized by Kennedy "to act as the principal Senate sponsor of this bill, because I am among its earlier advocates."

Chamber Plans Member Drive

With the approach of the end of the current fiscal year Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce officials are busy making plans to enroll new members and preparing statements for annual membership renewals.

Sam Pepper and John W. Egbert are organizing a team for a one-day drive for new members early in May. A group of eight captains are being selected, who in turn will enroll four teams of two men each. On a date still to be selected the entire group will have a brief breakfast meeting and make assigned visits to enroll new members.

A year ago 87 new members were signed up, almost all in one day. The goal for this year is still to be established.

Most membership renewals become payable on May 1 the beginning of the Chamber's fiscal year. Some which become due later will be pro-rated to make all memberships payable at the beginning of the year in the future.

Chamber of Commerce income is derived from membership subscriptions. All additional income for the new fiscal year will be used for promotional purposes. Present members are invited to increase their financial support by subscribing for duplicate memberships.

Held for Assault On Wife's Charge

The defendant's wife, Clara filed the complaint. She told authorities Simmons assaulted her at home on the night of April 8 causing injuries which necessitated treatment at Benedictine Hospital.

Second Try Succeeds

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Martin A. Reukauff, 77, shot himself in the head with a 32-caliber revolver Monday but it didn't kill him, said Erie County Medical Examiner Arthur G. Elsaesser.

So Reukauff put down the revolver, walked outside to his garage in the suburban town of Boston and started the engine in his automobile. He closed the garage door from the inside, said Elsaesser, sat down in the car and died of carbon monoxide poisoning from the exhaust fumes.

Elsaesser issued a certificate of death by suicide. He said he was told Reukauff had been despondent lately.

Jury Convicts 3, Acquits Pair in Coast Kidnaping

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A jury has convicted three defendants and acquitted two others in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of sportsman Anthony Alessio.

Two others await sentencing in the case that began last Nov. 22, when Alessio was abducted at gunpoint in front of his San Diego home.

Convicted Monday night of kidnaping for ransom and conspiracy were Frank Marrone, 31, former Anchorage, Alaska, night club operator; Robert James Gorman, 30, ex-convict, of Monterey Park, Calif., and his wife, Ruby, 30.

Face Life Terms

They will be sentenced April 26. They face maximum sentences of life imprisonment.

The jury received the case last Thursday, after a six-week trial.

Richard Lee Hoffman, 24, also pleaded guilty to the same charge, but after the case went to the jury.

Alessio, 41, odds-maker at the Agua Caliente, Mexico, racetrack, also is associated with six brothers in business enterprises in California, Mexico and Arizona.

Denies Part of Plan

Marrone claimed that Alessio knew of the kidnap plans. He said they had made a deal, under which they were to split $650,000 ransom. It was to be paid from race track funds and written off in taxes. Alessio denied this.

The original ransom demand was for $650,000.

John Alessio, 30, one of the brothers, testified that he bargained with the kidnapers, then left $200,000 in an automobile on a Hollywood parking lot Nov. 23.

Alessio, held in a San Diego motel cabin, was released just before midnight of Nov. 23. The defendants were arrested afterward.

All but $17,500 of the ransom money has been recovered.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear Aunt, Frieda A. Schulze, who fell asleep in Jesus, April 18, 1960.

I often think of my dear Aunt,
And then of how you died,
To think you could not say good bye,
Before you closed your eyes;
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
I never thought your death was near;
But only those that have lost can tell

Schlaf Schoen.

Blunders Get in Way of Communists

Castro's Days Seen Numbered Even if Invasion Is Failure

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)--Fidel Castro's days seem numbered as the ruler of Cuba, regardless of the success or failure of invading rebel forces.

If the invasion achieves one of its major objectives—perhaps the most important of all—it will spark a wave of desertions from Castro's forces. This could mean that Cuba might be spared a long fratricidal civil war.

Cuban sources in Miami admit their success may hang on this factor more than any other. For them, in this respect, the invasion has been a calculated gamble.

Should the number of defections from the ranks of Castro's supporters be far less than the rebels anticipate, the invasion could fail.

Becoming Liability

But this would not necessarily save Fidel himself. He is rapidly becoming a liability to the Communists who now dominate the island, and it is far from improbable that the Communists themselves would feel it expedient to devise some means of getting rid of him.

Castro's loud blundering, which in two years has helped bring the island's economy to confused wreckage, has gotten in the way of the Communists. If the Communists are noted for anything, it is for their knack of organizing the power of a country and nailing it down.

Not Eager About Fidel

Even if the invasion succeeds, the Russians may find themselves able to live with it. A counter-revolution in Cuba would give them an issue with which to belabor the United States for a long time to come. It could also provide sparks for harassing violence against other Latin American governments. The tone of Moscow's reactions to the invasion news hardly indicated an eagerness to risk World War III to save Fidel.

Defection Important

But the invasion would have a tough time succeeding without the defections upon which the rebels are banking so heavily. They expect these desertions from the ranks of career men in the army, navy and air force. Yet it will require more than that.

Much depends upon how solid is Fidel's hold upon the militia. That is made up of ordinary people, dragooned into long hours of marching, drilling and training on their own time. Many resented it, and many may be of a mind to defect. But the militia also has a large number of fanatical young men and women who enjoy playing with guns and shaking their fists at the Yankees.

Garbage Secretary Says He Filed Low Earnings

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The secretary and general manager of a firm that held the Utica garbage collection contract for many years has pleaded guilty to charges he filed fraudulent federal income tax returns for the firm.

Daniel Laino of Utica pleaded guilty to two counts of a three count indictment Monday. The third count was dismissed in U.S. District Court.

Laino pleaded to charges that he reported the company's 1955 income as $16,127 and the tax $4,438, when it should have been $18,634, and $5,590 respectively, and, in 1956, an income of $15,607 and tax of $4,682, when the figures should have been $21,541 and $6,462.

Laino previously had pleaded innocent to all three counts. No date was set for sentencing.

MarketTieupNow Includes Clerks, Enters 11th Day

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A strike of employes of supermarkets in Upstate New York and northern Pennsylvania entered its 11th day today with two unions now involved.

The striking unions, Local 345 of the Retail Clerks Union and the Amalgamated Meatcutters, Butchers and Affiliated Crafts Unions have closed approximately 275 supermarkets. The markets generally are located between Rochester and Albany. A few are in northern Pennsylvania.

The amalgamated group struck April 7. The clerks joined the strike Monday.

Negotiations continued after the amalgamated group rejected a $9 a week wage proposal, spread over two years, for key employes. The union said the proposal did not give part-time employes a large enough raise.

The union struck 75 Loblaw stores April 7. The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., Acme, P&C and Victory-Johnson closed in sympathy.

Greene Youth Is Back in Custody, Fled After Crash

MIDDLEBURG,N. Y. (AP)—Police have recaptured a youth who fled Saturday when a village policeman tried to question him about an automobile accident.

The Schoharie County sheriff's office said they captured Lucas Boughton, 19, of East Jewett, Greene County, after he had covered about 10 miles through the woods on foot and had eaten and slept in a summer camp Saturday night.

Boughton, police said, was the driver of a stolen car that hit two parked cars in Middleburg Saturday, injuring Michael Harpur, 4, and Edward Cummings, 19, who are reported recovering in a Cobleskill hospital.

Sheriff's deputies said Boughton was not armed when he was flushed from the woods Monday night. They said he attempted to run away, but halted when shots were fired over his head.

Boughton, a farmhand, was charged with third-degree burglary and escape, both felonies, and with leaving the scene of an accident and driving without a license, both misdemeanors.

Police said the burglary charge was based on the break-in at the summer camp.

Boughton pleaded guilty to the misdemeanors when arraigned before Charles H. Shaylor, Middleburg justice of the peace. The farmhand was sentenced to 30 days in Schoharie County jail for leaving the scene of an accident and 5 days for driving without a license. He will be arraigned on the felony charges Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies said Boughton was wanted in Greene County on car-theft charges.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall said he was not opposed to the idea of a compact for development of the Delaware River Basin but wanted the government included in a minor role.

The bill would make the federal government a full partner.

Students Must Choose One Of Two Scholarships Now

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State students who win both a Regents and a federal scholarship for their college education will have to choose between them.

Gov. Rockefeller announced today he had signed a bill limiting students to one of the scholarships.

The measure also provides that any funds received from a federal scholarship be counted in determining the amount of "scholar incentive" to which a student is entitled.

[illegible] will provide up to $300 in annual [illegible] and up to $800 for graduate students who are residents of New York and attend a school within the state.

The grant will be limited to the amount by which the student's tuition exceeds the total of a Regents and—or federal scholarship.

Family income of the student also is used in determining the total state grant to which he is entitled.

The scholar-incentive plan was passed by the 1961 Legislature upon recommendation of the governor. The first payments will be made early next year.

President Kennedy has submitted to Congress a higher-education program calling for 50,000 scholarships, to be awarded annually on a nationwide basis, with stipends ranging to $1,000 a year, depending on need.

Civil War Expert Speaks

Still Long Way From Goal Of Brotherhood: Catton

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The United States came out of the Civil War "committed to the effort to make a working reality out of the brotherhood of man," Civil War expert Bruce Catton says.

We are still "a long way short of success," he added as New York State officially opened its Civil War Centennial observance Monday.

About 500 attended the first assembly of the state Civil War Centennial Commission in Chancellors Hall.

Catton, commission chairman, said the observance should give Americans "a new resolve to live up to the freedom that we enjoy." He also is a Pulitzer-prize winning author of several books on the war.

Prof. John Hope Franklin of Brooklyn College, commission vice chairman, said the commission would work to insure that "the state of New York maintains a proper and decorous attitude toward the Civil War and its centennial observance."

"Poor taste and even sacrilege has already attempted to caricature and blaspheme this great moment in our national history," he said.

"New York cannot rededicate itself to creating a more perfect union "by growing beards," he declared. "We cannot do this by appropriating millions of dollars to put on sham battles and going through ludicrous ceremonies that make a mockery of that tragic period and of this solemn moment of remembrance....We cannot do this by invoking the archaic and achronistic arguments of the secessionists in order to defy and nullify Supreme Court decisions of today," he said.

As the commission met, Gov. Rockefeller announced his approval of legislation appropriating $15,000 for restoration and preservation of battle flags of New York State regiments in the war. The flags are stored in the Capitol.

EDUCATION BOARD MEMBERS

On May 2 there will be held an election for two members of the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated). Seven candidates have placed their names in nomination to fill the two vacancies which will exist on the board.

Those who are qualified to vote in this important election should study these candidates just as carefully as they do candidates for any other public office. The board of education holds the legal responsibility for public education in the district, it is responsible in the broad sense for school policy and it has the final say on the budget. The administration of our schools is an essential government function and the expenditures for the system are among the largest that local taxpayers must meet every year.

Local control of our schools is as vital as any of our freedoms. Adequate school buildings and facilities are essential, however fancy school buildings do not make educated citizens. Education begins with qualified teachers backed by an able school board, elected by the people of the district.

In these days of super governments and growing centralized authority over our lives, it is good to be reminded that in a few areas there still remains real old-fashioned local control. One of these local areas is the local school board.

A good board member has definite ideas on the subject of education. He knows the difference between policy making and administration. In order that voters might gain knowledge of the views on education of the candidates, public meetings have been arranged by the Kingston Parent-Teacher Association Council. At these meetings each candidate will be invited to present a statement from five to seven minutes in length. A question and answer period will follow.

Taxpayers who fail to go to the polls forfeit their right to complain about the administration of the school system or the school taxes.

All qualified voters owe it to themselves and the community to exercise their privilege of helping to elect the right people to run our local school system. No one else can do it.

AGED DRIVER A PROBLEM

The proportion of aged persons in the United States population is on the increase. One result of this is that there are more and more aged drivers on the nation's streets and highways.

This creates a problem with which society has not yet dealt in any systematic way. The problem needs attention, particularly because it will become more rather than less troublesome as the number of aged increases.

The simplest way to deal with the matter, obviously, would be to set quite a low upper age limit for driving—say 65. This approach is both unfeeling and unrealistic; it cannot be given serious consideration. Such arbitrary, blunt treatment of older citizens would be grossly unfair. It also would ignore the fact that various persons age differently; some are alert and capable drivers at 65 or even 75, while others show a marked deterioration of ability much earlier.

As a general thing, older persons have some excellent qualities as drivers. They are less inclined to speed; they have a heightened sense of responsibility, and are thus not so apt to take chances. On the debit side is the inexorable decline of faculties—sight, hearing, quick reflexes—that are essential in modern traffic.

What is needed is a system which, taking all this into consideration, can fairly determine when the debilities of age have made it unsafe for an individual to drive. This involves carefully devised standards based on modern driving conditions, and periodic examination. Society should take kind, but firm, steps to see that no one physically unfit to drive is allowed behind the wheel.

THE CUBAN WHITE PAPER

The most amazing document ever issued by the State Department is the White Paper on Cuba. It cannot be read without assuming that the United States is apologetic, in some manner, for the misconduct of Castro. Here is the opening statement:

". . . The hemisphere rejoiced at the overthrow of the Batista tryanny, looked with sympathy on the new regime, and welcomed its promises of political freedom and social justice for the Cuban people. The challenge results from the fact that the leaders of the revolutionary regime betrayed their own revolution, delivered that revolution into the hands of powers alien to the hemisphere, and transformed it into an instrument employed with calculated effect to suppress the rekindled hopes of the Cuban people for democracy and to intervene in the internal affairs of other American Republics."

In the first place, the hemisphere — meaning North and South America — did not devote itself to the overthrow of Batista. The subject was hardly important to most human beings. Besides, economically 1957 was Cuba's best year. There is a secretarian group in the State Department which believes that Rightist dictators are evil and Leftist dictators are good. Thus, Stalin was good; Hitler was bad. Thus, Batista was evil and Castro was good; Trujillo is bad, and so it goes. These doctrinaire Fourth Floor deskmen in the State Department disregard history in their desire to establish a world of good men, dictators who call themselves democrats or democrats who are dictators.

The White Paper says:

'It is the considered judgment of the Government of the United States of America that the Castro regime in Cuba offers a clear and present danger to the authentic and autonomous revolution of the Americas — to the whole hope of spreading political liberty, economic development, and social progress through all the republics of the hemisphere."

This is a new use of the term, Government of the United States. "A considered judgment" of the Government of the United States could be a joint resolution of Congress. Surely at no time has the Congress of the United States or the President in a formal message to Congress referred to the "authentic and autonomous revolution of the Americas."

Precisely what is this revolution? What have the United States and Canada, for instance, to do with this authentic and autonomous revolution?

Surely it is not true, as the White Paper states:

"When word arrived from the Sierra Maestra of the revolutionary movement headed by Dr. Fidel Castro Ruz, the people of the hemisphere watched its progress with feeling and with hope . . ."

Who in the Northern part of the hemisphere watched Castro's butchery with "feeling and hope"? From the start, many Americans looked upon it with loathing. What is the White Paper attempting to do — to give the impression that the hope of this country was centered on Castro? Are the authors of this document trying to justify the aid given to Castro by the State Department? Were the men who wrote the White Paper responsible for the support Fidel Castro received from those in the State Department?

In later pages, the White Paper changes its tone and tells what a treacherous devil Castro is. It describes the Communist take-over. However, even so, Castro is the poor little darling who is seduced. Note:

" . . . When Castro first went to the hills, the Cuban Communist Party dismissed him as 'bourgeois' and 'putschist.' Only when they saw that he had a chance of winning did they try to take over his movement."

It has not been unusual for the Communists to give the appearance of opposing one whom they support. It is also true that Soviet Russia has often found local Communists to be nuisances and have acted without their knowledge, whipping them into line when the proper time came. Finally, on page 19, the pamphlet reaches "The Delivery of the Revolution to the Sino-Soviet Bloc." It took a long time to get there in a small paper of 36 pages.

It is unfortunate that the White Paper on Cuba prepared and issued by the State Department labors so hard to reach a conclusion which newspaper readers have already accepted. You can buy the White Paper from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C. It costs 20 cents and is worth that much.

★ The Doctor Says ★

Your Health Is at Stake In Palliative Drug Abuses

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

From the increasing numbers of inquiries received, it is apparent that the public is becoming increasingly disturbed over the uses and abuses of barbituates and other hynotics, tranquilizers and narcotics. Can they do harm? Are they habit forming? How long can they be taken before they are habit-forming?

Let me begin by stating that each of these medications has its uses. Particularly in our "Age of Anxiety," it would be difficult to get along without daytime sedatives and tranquilizers, sleeping medicines and, for blessed pain relief, the narcotics.

Thanks to tranquilizers the hospital care of many of the mentally disturbed has been enormously simplified. And thanks to them, too, many of the mentally disturbed who were formerly confined to institutions now are able to live at home and in some instances contribute to the care and upkeep of the household.

Thanks to the narcotics, the ordeals of terminal cancer may be eased both for the afflicted and for loved ones in attendance.

Each of these classes of drugs is a palliative; that is to say, it gives relief, not cure.

Each produces undesirable side reactions as do all other powerful drugs. Each may be abused as is true of all other contributions to the business of living in a complex society. And each is, I regret to say, habit-forming.

According to the definition of the World Health Organization, a habit-forming drug has these characteristics: It causes a need or compulsion for continued administration. It produces a need for increasing doses. It gives rise to a dependence on its effects, whether this dependence is truly physical or merely psychologic. And it produces "withdrawal symptoms" when its use is interrupted.

Now addiction varies in degree. I would judge that the tranquilizers are least apt to be habit-forming, the narcotics most and barbituates somewhere in between. Thus a relatively few doses of a narcotic might suffice to produce the characteristics laid down by WHO. Perhaps several times as many would suffice for the barbiturates. And perhaps another few times for the tranquilizers.

The risks of side effects and habit formation are also variables. In the case of a cancer victim, almost any risk of narcotic addiction is justifiable. In the case of an acutely agitated, otherwise uncontrollable, person with a mental disturbance or of a patient with a reasonably long standing and incapacitating mental illness, again the risks of addiction and side reactions to sedatives and tranquilizers are justified.

But what is unjustified is the abuse of these useful drugs by those whose complaints are of minor importance, who insist on their use as crutches because they are unwilling to exercise will power and self-restraints and who insist on their continued use beyond the period of need: that is to say, in my opinion, beyond the period of a few days to a few weeks.

WASHINGTON (NEA) —Unless there are quick new concessions from the Russians, it begins to look as though the nuclear weapon test ban talks are headed for another bust-up.

The Kennedy administration, which postponed starting the new series of American-British-Russian talks at Geneva from Feb. 7 to March 21 to prepare a new offer, doesn't want to break off the negotiations just yet, if this can be avoided.

But the Russian reply to U.S. Delegate Arthur H. Dean's proposals have the effect of making impossible any inspections to prevent future nuclear explosion tests.

WHAT RUSSIAN DELEGATE Semyon Tsarapkin proposes for the Communists is imposition of three-power control over future testing. This is the same formula the Russians are proposing at the United Nations for replacement of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

One would be from the Communist camp, one from the Western nations and one from the neutrals. Unanimous agreement of the three would be required for any action. In other words, the Russians would have a veto on everything they didn't like, including all inspection within their own borders.

The United States and Britain have proposed and Russia has accepted over-all test-ban policy determination by an 11-nation tripartite governing body made up of four representatives from the countries of the Free World, four from Communist countries and three from neutrals.

But along with this, the United States wants day-to-day operations of test-ban control run by a single administrator. And this the Russians have so far refused to accept.

One dilemma for the United States and the United Kingdom is that if the Geneva test ban talks are now broken off, it may be difficult to get them started again.

It is considered possible that the Russians may want to break off the test ban talks now, or make the West do it so as to force consideration of the issue in the general disarmament talks. American Ambassador to the U.N. Adlai Stevenson and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko have tentatively agreed those talks shall be resumed in August.

But the test ban question is given the highest priority. It must be settled before there can be general disarmament talk.

THE ORIGINAL ONE-YEAR MORATORIUM on nuclear testing has now been allowed to run for 2½ years by undeclared but mutual agreement. Some progress in the development of the nuclear science "art" of destruction can be tested in the laboratories. But eventually such small scale controlled experiments must be checked in the field.

There is pressure from some Western military leaders and scientists to resume such testing. There is suspicion but inadequate proof through atmospheric contamination detection that some of the huge "chemical" explosions which Russia has announced in its earthquake belt are underground nuclear weapons tests.

The Russians may be relying on a belief that the United States and the United Kingdom will not arbitrarily announce plans to resume testing. Perhaps the Russians should be corrected on this point.

But any unilateral declaration by the Western powers that they are even considering resumption of testing would probably get a bad public relations reaction world-wide.

THE UNITED STATES, FOR ITS PART, might give full assurance that all its future tests would be open to inspection. They would be underground tests with full protection against additional fallout poisoning of air and ground.

A demand for similar guarantees could be made of the Russians on any future tests they might make. But this would run straight into the Communists' traditional insistence for secrecy on the conduct of internal affairs. A denial of inspection by outsiders would be certain.

So the demands for an effective nuclear test ban with full international control and inspection are real and urgent.

The facts that France has already made its first nuclear tests and that Communist China may be developing nuclear weapons give both the Russian and American-British leaders reason for wanting a world-wide ban under full controls—and the sooner the better.

Khrushchev Seen Making A Mistake About Kennedy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 17 — Nikita Khrushchev is adamant, defiant and inflexible. He has no present intention of making an agreement on disarmament or nuclear testing. He is convinced that the United States has no leverage over him and, therefore, cannot make him change his rigid policies that now threaten the peace of the world.

These impressions are derived from a reading of the positive views of the Soviet Premier, as revealed in an interview obtained in Russia by Walter Lippmann and published this week.

Mr. Khrushchev is apparently relieved that what is called the "Dulles Doctrine"—that the neutrality of small states is allegedly "immoral" — has been abandoned by the United States. But further on the Soviet Premier declares rather inconsistently that he doesn't think there is really such a thing as "neutrality" of individuals. This must mean, of course, also the persons who head governments. He is, indeed, reported as saying that he would never accept a neutral to administer the proposed disarmament agreement, for he wouldn't entrust the security of the Soviet Union to any foreigner. Mr. Lippmann concludes that in Mr. Khrushchev's view "there can be international cooperation only if, in the administration as well as in the policy-making, the Soviet Union has a veto."

Incredible Statement

Perhaps the most interesting piece of information that the Soviet Premier conveyed was in relation to nuclear weapons. He insisted that Russia had never done any underground testing and never will. This is incredible. The reason he gives is that such tests were designed to perfect small tactical weapons. He says the Russians haven't wanted to produce them because they are expensive and are not decisive.

Just why expense should bother Mr. Khrushchev is a mystery, for at will he can deprive the Soviet people of the benefits of a higher standard of living by concentrating the use of the hard-earned funds on anything from a sputnik to a nuclear device. He doesn't hesitate to spend the money of the people of the Soviet Union on a "very new and gadgety swimming pool" which Mr. Lippmann mentioned as one of the sights he saw at the Khrushchev headquarters on the shore of the Black Sea.

The Soviet Premier lost no opportunity during the interview to get across to those who will be reading in his hostility to the American effort to work out a disarmament agreement. As usual he becomes personal and attacks John J. McCloy, the man chosen by President Kennedy to head up the disarmament planning for the United States. Mr. Khrushchev claims that Mr. McCloy is primarily a believer in armaments, but the unpalatable truth which faces the Soviet Premier is that the new head of the American disarmament group just doesn't want to see an agreement signed which would give the Russians any opportunity to cheat.

Yet Mr. Khrushchev speaks of the selection of Mr. McCloy as "a case of asking the goat to look after the cabbage patch." American generals and admirals whose speeches are promptly censored if they say anything unfavorable about Mr. Khrushchev must have smiled as they read the wanton disregard of the "amensities" by the Russian dictator himself.

The Soviet Premier as usual throws out hints and accusations which he knows are groundless, but he never fails to put these suspicions into conversations he has with American writers or members of Congress. To say, as Mr. Khrushchev did, that "the forces behind the Kennedy administration" can be summed up" in the one word "Rockefeller" is to imply that the President is under some powerful influence exerted by the New York Governor. The American people and all the European observers who have been here know this isn't so, but it suits Mr. Khrushchev to say it largely because he has to find some way to insinuate that Mr. Kennedy is not a free agent and will not be making his own decisions.

A Surprise Store

Every one who knows Mr. Kennedy — including the Russian Ambassador here—can tell Mr. Khrushchev that the President has an independent mind. But, if by all this twaddle, the Soviet Premier hopes to downgrade the American President or to regard him as a weakling who will kowtow to the Russian dictator, he has the surprise of his life in store for him.

For the net effect of such an attitude as Mr. Khrushchev displays toward current questions is to increase distrust of the Kremlin and to stimulate efforts here to strengthen the American military position so that, if the dictator in his bluff tactics goes to the brink of war, the United States will not be found yielding but without finching will accept the challenge.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

James Rigney Jr., of 2 South Washington Avenue, had been at a sale of old local items in a house on Fair Street and bought an old newspaper of Rondout. The Morning Courier of Dec. 26, 1881.

Mr. Rigney was interested in an article on the first page titled "Medical Opinion on Smoking." This is 80 years ago and part of the item reads: "The doctors quite generally agree that moderate smoking, contrary to being injurious, is beneficial to most male adults. A good segar or sweet pipe filled with clear tobacco, after a hearty meal aids digestion . . . It sooths the nerves, calms the mind and lulls the brain to rest."

It further reads in part: "The objection to the cigarette . . . being the destructive distillation of the paper wrapper, the habit of inhalation which the cigarette smoker invaribly falls into, and the influence of the hot smoke heavily laden with nicotine, which pours so freely into the mouth. The nicotine which in a pipe condenses in the bowl and stem, and in the cigar in the "stub," had no time for condensation in a cigarette, but is condensed in the mouth . . . greatest harm in a cigarette comes from the paper. Paper cigarettes are worse than tobacco, as they produce empareumatic oil, which contains creosote in large quantities . . ."

Smoking in general stunts the growth of children who indulge in it, it further advised, 80 years ago. Those were the days, I take it, when every man rolled his own cigarettes. Who remembers?

The front page of the "Morning Courier" of Dec. 26, 1881 has three columns of advertisements and two short articles, such as this one.

Antique collectors to today no doubt would have been delighted with the items which could be had at G. F. Stevens, China Hall, near city hall. It was centrally located between Kingston and Rondout, the advertisement said. They sold Majolica, Bohemian Glass, German China, Lava, "and everything else to be found in a first class china store."

Another store on Ferry Street and the Strand, was John H. Schreiber's. They sold English and French vases, Majolica, Belleek, Bohemian, Japanese Kiota, Moss rose and silver plated ware. No doubt some of these items are still around in Rondout homes and elsewhere through the city and county.

John Robinson was advertising as a "Rigger, does all kinds of heavy lifting, boilers and machinery handled with care. Any material furnished at low rates. Orders left at the city hall or at the lot on the dock, over Connelly's store. PO Box 401, Rondout."

A. S. Staples was advertising as the Rondout Steam Mill, "the subscriber has in full operation a new mill, corner Hasbrouck Avenue and Mill Street, and is prepared to receive orders for any amount of fresh ground feed of all kinds, coarse and fine meal and fresh graham flour. Very superior quality of rye flour. Custom work done."

In this issue is the time-table for the steam yacht, "Annex" which ran between Rondout, South Rondout, Wilbur and Eddyville. It left Rondout from 7:15 a. m. to 5:45 p. m. making eight stops at Rondout. It made nine stops at the other places. That was in the winter of 1881, which I take it, the creek was navigable. People went to work on the little steam yachts—no parking problems, winter car troubles, traffic congestion, just a nice friendly picturesque trip to and from work.

What is the White Paper attempting to do — to give the impression that the hope of this country was centered on Castro? Are the authors of this document trying to justify the aid given to Castro by the State Department? Were the men who wrote the White Paper responsible for the support Fidel Castro received from those in the State Department?

In later pages, the White Paper changes its tone and tells what a treacherous devil Castro is. It describes the Communist take-over. However, even so, Castro is the poor little darling who is seduced. Note:

" . . . When Castro first went to the hills, the Cuban Communist Party dismissed him as 'bourgeois' and 'putschist.' Only when they saw that he had a chance of winning did they try to take over his movement."

It has not been unusual for the Communists to give the appearance of opposing one whom they support. It is also true that Soviet Russia has often found local Communists to be nuisances and have acted without their knowledge, whipping them into line when the proper time came. Finally, on page 19, the pamphlet reaches "The Delivery of the Revolution to the Sino-Soviet Bloc." It took a long time to get there in a small paper of 36 pages.

It is unfortunate that the White Paper on Cuba prepared and issued by the State Department labors so hard to reach a conclusion which newspaper readers have already accepted. You can buy the White Paper from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C. It costs 20 cents and is worth that much.

Your Health Is at Stake In Palliative Drug Abuses

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

From the increasing numbers of inquiries received, it is apparent that the public is becoming increasingly disturbed over the uses and abuses of barbituates and other hynotics, tranquilizers and narcotics. Can they do harm? Are they habit forming? How long can they be taken before they are habit-forming?

Let me begin by stating that each of these medications has its uses. Particularly in our "Age of Anxiety," it would be difficult to get along without daytime sedatives and tranquilizers, sleeping medicines and, for blessed pain relief, the narcotics.

Thanks to tranquilizers the hospital care of many of the mentally disturbed has been enormously simplified. And thanks to them, too, many of the mentally disturbed who were formerly confined to institutions now are able to live at home and in some instances contribute to the care and upkeep of the household.

Thanks to the narcotics, the ordeals of terminal cancer may be eased both for the afflicted and for loved ones in attendance.

Each of these classes of drugs is a palliative; that is to say, it gives relief, not cure.

Each produces undesirable side reactions as do all other powerful drugs. Each may be abused as is true of all other contributions to the business of living in a complex society. And each is, I regret to say, habit-forming.

According to the definition of the World Health Organization, a habit-forming drug has these characteristics: It causes a need or compulsion for continued administration. It produces a need for increasing doses. It gives rise to a dependence on its effects, whether this dependence is truly physical or merely psychologic. And it produces "withdrawal symptoms" when its use is interrupted.

Now addiction varies in degree. I would judge that the tranquilizers are least apt to be habit-forming, the narcotics most and barbituates somewhere in between. Thus a relatively few doses of a narcotic might suffice to produce the characteristics laid down by WHO. Perhaps several times as many would suffice for the barbiturates. And perhaps another few times for the tranquilizers.

The risks of side effects and habit formation are also variables. In the case of a cancer victim, almost any risk of narcotic addiction is justifiable. In the case of an acutely agitated, otherwise uncontrollable, person with a mental disturbance or of a patient with a reasonably long standing and incapacitating mental illness, again the risks of addiction and side reactions to sedatives and tranquilizers are justified.

But what is unjustified is the abuse of these useful drugs by those whose complaints are of minor importance, who insist on their use as crutches because they are unwilling to exercise will power and self-restraints and who insist on their continued use beyond the period of need: that is to say, in my opinion, beyond the period of a few days to a few weeks.

Washington News

WASHINGTON (NEA) —Unless there are quick new concessions from the Russians, it begins to look as though the nuclear weapon test ban talks are headed for another bust-up.

The Kennedy administration, which postponed starting the new series of American-British-Russian talks at Geneva from Feb. 7 to March 21 to prepare a new offer, doesn't want to break off the negotiations just yet, if this can be avoided.

But the Russian reply to U.S. Delegate Arthur H. Dean's proposals have the effect of making impossible any inspections to prevent future nuclear explosion tests.

WHAT RUSSIAN DELEGATE Semyon Tsarapkin proposes for the Communists is imposition of three-power control over future testing. This is the same formula the Russians are proposing at the United Nations for replacement of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

One would be from the Communist camp, one from the Western nations and one from the neutrals. Unanimous agreement of the three would be required for any action. In other words, the Russians would have a veto on everything they didn't like, including all inspection within their own borders.

The United States and Britain have proposed and Russia has accepted over-all test-ban policy determination by an 11-nation tripartite governing body made up of four representatives from the countries of the Free World, four from Communist countries and three from neutrals.

But along with this, the United States wants day-to-day operations of test-ban control run by a single administrator. And this the Russians have so far refused to accept.

One dilemma for the United States and the United Kingdom is that if the Geneva test ban talks are now broken off, it may be difficult to get them started again.

It is considered possible that the Russians may want to break off the test ban talks now, or make the West do it so as to force consideration of the issue in the general disarmament talks. American Ambassador to the U.N. Adlai Stevenson and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko have tentatively agreed those talks shall be resumed in August.

But the test ban question is given the highest priority. It must be settled before there can be general disarmament talk.

THE ORIGINAL ONE-YEAR MORATORIUM on nuclear testing has now been allowed to run for 2½ years by undeclared but mutual agreement. Some progress in the development of the nuclear science "art" of destruction can be tested in the laboratories. But eventually such small scale controlled experiments must be checked in the field.

There is pressure from some Western military leaders and scientists to resume such testing. There is suspicion but inadequate proof through atmospheric contamination detection that some of the huge "chemical" explosions which Russia has announced in its earthquake belt are underground nuclear weapons tests.

The Russians may be relying on a belief that the United States and the United Kingdom will not arbitrarily announce plans to resume testing. Perhaps the Russians should be corrected on this point.

But any unilateral declaration by the Western powers that they are even considering resumption of testing would probably get a bad public relations reaction world-wide.

THE UNITED STATES, FOR ITS PART, might give full assurance that all its future tests would be open to inspection. They would be underground tests with full protection against additional fallout poisoning of air and ground.

A demand for similar guarantees could be made of the Russians on any future tests they might make. But this would run straight into the Communists' traditional insistence for secrecy on the conduct of internal affairs. A denial of inspection by outsiders would be certain.

So the demands for an effective nuclear test ban with full international control and inspection are real and urgent.

The facts that France has already made its first nuclear tests and that Communist China may be developing nuclear weapons give both the Russian and American-British leaders reason for wanting a world-wide ban under full controls—and the sooner the better.

Khrushchev Seen Making A Mistake About Kennedy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 17 — Nikita Khrushchev is adamant, defiant and inflexible. He has no present intention of making an agreement on disarmament or nuclear testing. He is convinced that the United States has no leverage over him and, therefore, cannot make him change his rigid policies that now threaten the peace of the world.

These impressions are derived from a reading of the positive views of the Soviet Premier, as revealed in an interview obtained in Russia by Walter Lippmann and published this week.

Mr. Khrushchev is apparently relieved that what is called the "Dulles Doctrine"—that the neutrality of small states is allegedly "immoral" — has been abandoned by the United States. But further on the Soviet Premier declares rather inconsistently that he doesn't think there is really such a thing as "neutrality" of individuals. This must mean, of course, also the persons who head governments. He is, indeed, reported as saying that he would never accept a neutral to administer the proposed disarmament agreement, for he wouldn't entrust the security of the Soviet Union to any foreigner. Mr. Lippmann concludes that in Mr. Khrushchev's view "there can be international cooperation only if, in the administration as well as in the policy-making, the Soviet Union has a veto."

Incredible Statement

Perhaps the most interesting piece of information that the Soviet Premier conveyed was in relation to nuclear weapons. He insisted that Russia had never done any underground testing and never will. This is incredible. The reason he gives is that such tests were designed to perfect small tactical weapons. He says the Russians haven't wanted to produce them because they are expensive and are not decisive.

Just why expense should bother Mr. Khrushchev is a mystery, for at will he can deprive the Soviet people of the benefits of a higher standard of living by concentrating the use of the hard-earned funds on anything from a sputnik to a nuclear device. He doesn't hesitate to spend the money of the people of the Soviet Union on a "very new and gadgety swimming pool" which Mr. Lippmann mentioned as one of the sights he saw at the Khrushchev headquarters on the shore of the Black Sea.

The Soviet Premier lost no opportunity during the interview to get across to those who will be reading in his hostility to the American effort to work out a disarmament agreement. As usual he becomes personal and attacks John J. McCloy, the man chosen by President Kennedy to head up the disarmament planning for the United States. Mr. Khrushchev claims that Mr. McCloy is primarily a believer in armaments, but the unpalatable truth which faces the Soviet Premier is that the new head of the American disarmament group just doesn't want to see an agreement signed which would give the Russians any opportunity to cheat.

Yet Mr. Khrushchev speaks of the selection of Mr. McCloy as "a case of asking the goat to look after the cabbage patch." American generals and admirals whose speeches are promptly censored if they say anything unfavorable about Mr. Khrushchev must have smiled as they read the wanton disregard of the "amensities" by the Russian dictator himself.

The Soviet Premier as usual throws out hints and accusations which he knows are groundless, but he never fails to put these suspicions into conversations he has with American writers or members of Congress. To say, as Mr. Khrushchev did, that "the forces behind the Kennedy administration" can be summed up" in the one word "Rockefeller" is to imply that the President is under some powerful influence exerted by the New York Governor. The American people and all the European observers who have been here know this isn't so, but it suits Mr. Khrushchev to say it largely because he has to find some way to insinuate that Mr. Kennedy is not a free agent and will not be making his own decisions.

A Surprise Store

Every one who knows Mr. Kennedy — including the Russian Ambassador here—can tell Mr. Khrushchev that the President has an independent mind. But, if by all this twaddle, the Soviet Premier hopes to downgrade the American President or to regard him as a weakling who will kowtow to the Russian dictator, he has the surprise of his life in store for him.

For the net effect of such an attitude as Mr. Khrushchev displays toward current questions is to increase distrust of the Kremlin and to stimulate efforts here to strengthen the American military position so that, if the dictator in his bluff tactics goes to the brink of war, the United States will not be found yielding but without finching will accept the challenge.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

James Rigney Jr., of 2 South Washington Avenue, had been at a sale of old local items in a house on Fair Street and bought an old newspaper of Rondout. The Morning Courier of Dec. 26, 1881.

Mr. Rigney was interested in an article on the first page titled "Medical Opinion on Smoking." This is 80 years ago and part of the item reads: "The doctors quite generally agree that moderate smoking, contrary to being injurious, is beneficial to most male adults. A good segar or sweet pipe filled with clear tobacco, after a hearty meal aids digestion . . . It sooths the nerves, calms the mind and lulls the brain to rest."

It further reads in part: "The objection to the cigarette . . . being the destructive distillation of the paper wrapper, the habit of inhalation which the cigarette smoker invaribly falls into, and the influence of the hot smoke heavily laden with nicotine, which pours so freely into the mouth. The nicotine which in a pipe condenses in the bowl and stem, and in the cigar in the "stub," had no time for condensation in a cigarette, but is condensed in the mouth . . . greatest harm in a cigarette comes from the paper. Paper cigarettes are worse than tobacco, as they produce empareumatic oil, which contains creosote in large quantities . . ."

Smoking in general stunts the growth of children who indulge in it, it further advised, 80 years ago. Those were the days, I take it, when every man rolled his own cigarettes. Who remembers?

The front page of the "Morning Courier" of Dec. 26, 1881 has three columns of advertisements and two short articles, such as this one.

Antique collectors to today no doubt would have been delighted with the items which could be had at G. F. Stevens, China Hall, near city hall. It was centrally located between Kingston and Rondout, the advertisement said. They sold Majolica, Bohemian Glass, German China, Lava, "and everything else to be found in a first class china store."

Another store on Ferry Street and the Strand, was John H. Schreiber's. They sold English and French vases, Majolica, Belleek, Bohemian, Japanese Kiota, Moss rose and silver plated ware. No doubt some of these items are still around in Rondout homes and elsewhere through the city and county.

John Robinson was advertising as a "Rigger, does all kinds of heavy lifting, boilers and machinery handled with care. Any material furnished at low rates. Orders left at the city hall or at the lot on the dock, over Connelly's store. PO Box 401, Rondout."

A. S. Staples was advertising as the Rondout Steam Mill, "the subscriber has in full operation a new mill, corner Hasbrouck Avenue and Mill Street, and is prepared to receive orders for any amount of fresh ground feed of all kinds, coarse and fine meal and fresh graham flour. Very superior quality of rye flour. Custom work done."

In this issue is the time-table for the steam yacht, "Annex" which ran between Rondout, South Rondout, Wilbur and Eddyville. It left Rondout from 7:15 a. m. to 5:45 p. m. making eight stops at Rondout. It made nine stops at the other places. That was in the winter of 1881, which I take it, the creek was navigable. People went to work on the little steam yachts—no parking problems, winter car troubles, traffic congestion, just a nice friendly picturesque trip to and from work.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Business should ask more and get more from government agencies instead of fearing that the climate in Washington has turned unfriendly.

That's the view of Luther Hartwell Hodges. He says one of his big tasks as secretary of commerce is to get businessmen to realize what his department can do for them and to make more use of these aids.

He concedes that the conservative element among businessmen — a quite large one — may distrust the course the Kennedy administration is plotting because of its spending implications. He hopes this fear of a larger federal debt, more inflation, perhaps higher taxes and more regulation can be overcome.

"It can be," Hodges holds, "if business will realize that while the Eisenhower policies centered on trying to balance the budget and curb inflation, the Kennedy policies are aimed at halting the slowdown in economic growth which resulted."

And Hodges says that the revision of the makeup of the Business Advisory Council and his expansion of its chores were both overdue and necessary.

Hodges also held, in an interview here Saturday, that the current first stirrings of business recovery are due in part, if only a psychological one so far, to what the Kennedy administration has started to do. He says this has given a lift to public confidence now just beginning to show up in the business statistics.

He insists this will show up more and more, and the statistics — industrial output, personal income, housing starts, retail trade — continue to rise.

Hodges says his first task, already far advanced, is to shake up and rejuvenate his department.

And then he must sell it to businessmen as a productive source of aid and information. He says the department's 33 field offices are working to help businessmen both in expanding their domestic markets and in pushing their export trade.

The secretary is leaving shortly for Europe in an effort to increase markets for U.S. goods, to whittle at remaining trade barriers against them, and to boost foreign tourist travel to this country.

Farm Bureaus To Fete Leaders Of Organizations

Farm women throughout New York State will entertain leaders of urban women's organizations at a series of luncheons to be held in upstate counties on April 27. The project is being sponsored by Women's Committees on County Farm Bureaus.

Headlining the day's activities will be a luncheon in Syracuse sponsored by the State Women's Committee of the farm organization for leaders of other statewide groups.

According to Mrs. Leslie Lamb, chairman of the Farm Bureau committee, the meetings are being held to provide leaders of women's organizations an opportunity to become better acquainted with the program of each group.

"Women, through their organizations, have a vehicle for influence in their communities," said Mrs. Lamb. "We feel that this influence should be directed in support of programs that strengthen, not weaken, our nation. The continued influence of all of us could have a real impact on the future of America."

WAF Recruiter Will Interview Candidates Here

S/SGT. DOROTHY ONWARD

Sgt. Richard Lambert, Kingston's recruiting sergeant for the Air Force, announced today that Sgt. Dorothy Onward, representative for Women in the Air Force, would be at the Air Force Recruiting Office, 286 Fair Street, Tuesday.

The WAF sergeant will be available to answer questions and explain the many opportunities open to young women through the U. S. Air Force. Sgt. Onward for eight years was this area's WAF recruiter and after a 15-month absence returns from an assignment which took her to the WAF Training Center, and Technical School bases. She states that this time has afforded her the privilege of personally observing WAF Training Center, and Technical School bases. She states that this time has afforded her the privilege of personally observing WAF training and career opportunities.

Sgt. Onward further said at present there is a program to fit and reward the abilities and education of any single woman. For professional persons and college graduates there is commissioning in the officer corps. For the high school graduate the opportunity is also there to progress toward a second lieutenant and an executive position.

While in Kingston, the WAF will welcome any visit or phone call concerning opportunities in Regular WAF, Officer or Nurse Corps. She suggests first learning about the USAF and finding out how it can open the door to unlimited horizons.

At top right is a "trolley," which rides along the top of the plane's fuselage for its entire 144-foot length. The plane will emerge better than new and, after 14 hours of flight testing, will return to the passenger run.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Academy Awards ceremonies may be Hollywood's proudest night, but the 2¼ hour television vigil was a long wait to find out who and what won four or five awards.

For residents of the Eastern part of the country, the last "Oscar" was handed out at 12:45 this morning, and even M. C. Bob Hope, who had been introducing, wisecracking and pacing the stage, was showing signs of fatigue.

There were, of course, occasional bright moments as the behind-the-camera awards were being handed out earlier in the evening. There were movie stars by the gross to look at. There was a poignant moment when Elizabeth Taylor, recuperating, but still weak, was escorted tenderly by husband Eddie Fisher to receive her award for best actress and gave a brief, tremulous word of thanks. There was the funny, awkward moment wher Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows were left holding an "Oscar" nobody came up to claim.

But it would be a better and more interesting television show if it were cut in half, both in the number of awards and in the length of the program.

Immediately after the "Oscar" show, ABC premiered its network "news final," a late news wrap-up which hereafter will come along at 11 p. m. It was the first trial having ABC correspondents report their own stories instead of an announcer reading the news. The big story was Cuba. But the business of bouncing that story between New York, Washington, Buenos Aires and other points seemed aimless and time consuming.

Bill Cullen, who recently decided to abandon his daily, local four-hour radio stint, apparently found he can't stand so much leisure. He has signed to take Arthur Godfrey's hosting job on "Candid Camera" next fall.

Recommended tonight: "Cry Vengeance," NBC, 10-11 (EST)—an original drama about a Sicilian outlaw, with Ben Cazzara and an outlaw, with Ben Cazzara and Sal Mineo.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Business should ask more and get more from government agencies instead of fearing that the climate in Washington has turned unfriendly.

That's the view of Luther Hartwell Hodges. He says one of his big tasks as secretary of commerce is to get businessmen to realize what his department can do for them and to make more use of these aids.

He concedes that the conservative element among businessmen — a quite large one — may distrust the course the Kennedy administration is plotting because of its spending implications. He hopes this fear of a larger federal debt, more inflation, perhaps higher taxes and more regulation can be overcome.

"It can be," Hodges holds, "if business will realize that while the Eisenhower policies centered on trying to balance the budget and curb inflation, the Kennedy policies are aimed at halting the slowdown in economic growth which resulted."

And Hodges says that the revision of the makeup of the Business Advisory Council and his expansion of its chores were both overdue and necessary.

Hodges also held, in an interview here Saturday, that the current first stirrings of business recovery are due in part, if only a psychological one so far, to what the Kennedy administration has started to do. He says this has given a lift to public confidence now just beginning to show up in the business statistics.

He insists this will show up more and more, and the statistics — industrial output, personal income, housing starts, retail trade — continue to rise.

Hodges says his first task, already far advanced, is to shake up and rejuvenate his department.

And then he must sell it to businessmen as a productive source of aid and information. He says the department's 33 field offices are working to help businessmen both in expanding their domestic markets and in pushing their export trade.

The secretary is leaving shortly for Europe in an effort to increase markets for U.S. goods, to whittle at remaining trade barriers against them, and to boost foreign tourist travel to this country.

Farm Bureaus To Fete Leaders Of Organizations

Farm women throughout New York State will entertain leaders of urban women's organizations at a series of luncheons to be held in upstate counties on April 27. The project is being sponsored by Women's Committees on County Farm Bureaus.

Headlining the day's activities will be a luncheon in Syracuse sponsored by the State Women's Committee of the farm organization for leaders of other statewide groups.

According to Mrs. Leslie Lamb, chairman of the Farm Bureau committee, the meetings are being held to provide leaders of women's organizations an opportunity to become better acquainted with the program of each group.

"Women, through their organizations, have a vehicle for influence in their communities," said Mrs. Lamb. "We feel that this influence should be directed in support of programs that strengthen, not weaken, our nation. The continued influence of all of us could have a real impact on the future of America."

WAF Recruiter Will Interview Candidates Here

S/SGT. DOROTHY ONWARD

Sgt. Richard Lambert, Kingston's recruiting sergeant for the Air Force, announced today that Sgt. Dorothy Onward, representative for Women in the Air Force, would be at the Air Force Recruiting Office, 286 Fair Street, Tuesday.

The WAF sergeant will be available to answer questions and explain the many opportunities open to young women through the U. S. Air Force. Sgt. Onward for eight years was this area's WAF recruiter and after a 15-month absence returns from an assignment which took her to the WAF Training Center, and Technical School bases. She states that this time has afforded her the privilege of personally observing WAF training and career opportunities.

Sgt. Onward further said at present there is a program to fit and reward the abilities and education of any single woman. For professional persons and college graduates there is commissioning in the officer corps. For the high school graduate the opportunity is also there to progress toward a second lieutenant and an executive position.

While in Kingston, the WAF will welcome any visit or phone call concerning opportunities in Regular WAF, Officer or Nurse Corps. She suggests first learning about the USAF and finding out how it can open the door to unlimited horizons.

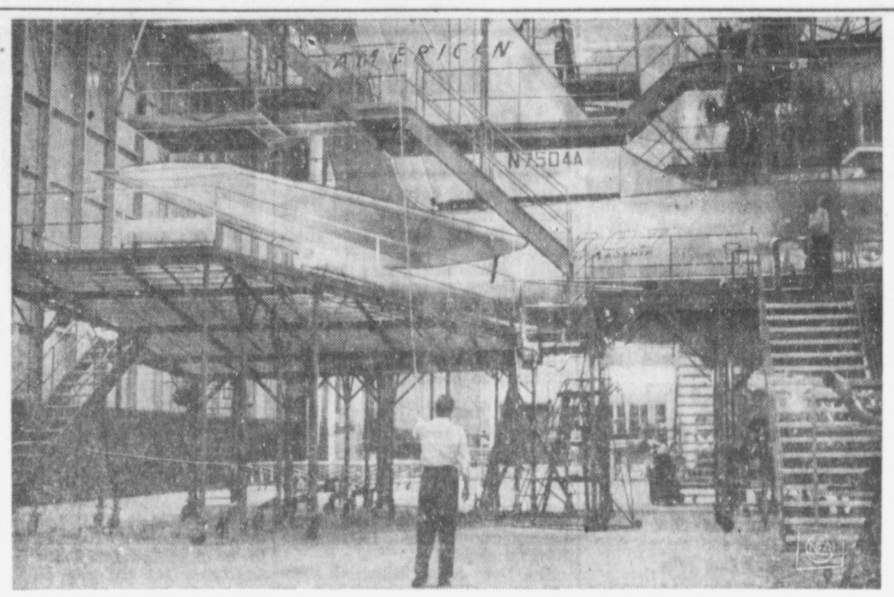
The Metropolitan park system of Cleveland, Ohio, completely encircles the city. The park system is filled with children's camps, natural museums, baseball diamonds, ski runs, boat houses and picnic grounds in natural surroundings.



BACK TO THE CRADLE—It's time for a complete physical checkup for one of today's jetliners. At American Airline's maintenance center in Tulsa, Okla., a giant Boeing 707 is given the works. It happens every 4,000 flying hours. The cleverly designed form-fitting dock includes two "flying bridges" which permit easy access to the 38-foot-high tail. At top right is a "trolley," which rides along the top of the plane's fuselage for its entire 144-foot length. The plane will emerge better than new and, after 14 hours of flight testing, will return to the passenger run.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Academy Awards ceremonies may be Hollywood's proudest night, but the 2¼ hour television vigil was a long wait to find out who and what won four or five awards.

For residents of the Eastern part of the country, the last "Oscar" was handed out at 12:45 this morning, and even M. C. Bob Hope, who had been introducing, wisecracking and pacing the stage, was showing signs of fatigue.

There were, of course, occasional bright moments as the behind-the-camera awards were being handed out earlier in the evening. There were movie stars by the gross to look at. There was a poignant moment when Elizabeth Taylor, recuperating, but still weak, was escorted tenderly by husband Eddie Fisher to receive her award for best actress and gave a brief, tremulous word of thanks. There was the funny, awkward moment wher Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows were left holding an "Oscar" nobody came up to claim.

But it would be a better and more interesting television show if it were cut in half, both in the number of awards and in the length of the program.

Immediately after the "Oscar" show, ABC premiered its network "news final," a late news wrap-up which hereafter will come along at 11 p. m. It was the first trial having ABC correspondents report their own stories instead of an announcer reading the news. The big story was Cuba. But the business of bouncing that story between New York, Washington, Buenos Aires and other points seemed aimless and time consuming.

Bill Cullen, who recently decided to abandon his daily, local four-hour radio stint, apparently found he can't stand so much leisure. He has signed to take Arthur Godfrey's hosting job on "Candid Camera" next fall.

Recommended tonight: "Cry Vengeance," NBC, 10-11 (EST)—an original drama about a Sicilian outlaw, with Ben Cazzara and an outlaw, with Ben Gazzara and Sal Mineo.

Cases Are Heard In County Court

Dell Jackson, West Strand store and taxi proprietor who last week was found guilty of violating the gambling law, was sentenced in County Court Monday afternoon by Acting County Judge Francis X. Tucker to 30 days in the county jail and fined $200. The jail sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for a year.

Charles Saccoman, who appeared for Jackson, asked for leniency and cited the good reputation of the defendant, a lifelong resident of Kingston. He also filde with the court a letter from Jackson's pastor, stating his excellent church record.

James Hill, also charged with a gambling violation, was fined $100 on a plea of guilty to the charge. Charles Saccoman appeared for Hill. Bail was exonerated.

Robert C. Genninger, Saugerties, charged with third degree burglary, unlawful entry and second degree grand larceny last Jan. 23, had his case disposed of under the Youthful Offender statute. Ward Ingalsbe appeared for defendant.

Several other cases were adjourned to Wednesday.

Traffic Island Is Planned by City

A traffic island is being contemplated to channelize one-way traffic entering Greenkill Avenue from Fair Street and traffic from Greenkill Avenue and the Boulevard to Wall Street, Mayor Edwin F. Radel announced today.

The mayor said this island also will permit turns from Fair Street into Wall Street. He said a three-way flashing amber beacon will be operated at the island to regulate traffic and call attention to the one way traffic pattern at the intersection.

Pedestrian crosswalks also will be provided as an aid to school children in the area who use the crossing.

Work crews of the Department of Public Works already are attending to landscaping and seeding at the street project, the mayor said.

In addition to this section of the street program work, the mayor said, work is progressing on O'Neil Street between Smith Avenue and Broadway where upper level sewer repairs and rough grading are underway in preparation for blacktop.

It was pointed out by members of the State Division of Housing who were present that their department carried out no discriminatory practices. That many of their projects were using Hudson River brick, however, they pointed out that local authorities employ their own arhcitects and prepare their own specifications and that this should not be confused with their operation.

It was also stated that under the Mitchell-Lama middle income housing, the sponsors of these projects selected their own architects and set up their own specifications, and that this really represented the big building program that was now taking place.

Would Cut Jobs

C. B. Friday, representing the New York State Department of Commerce stated that there would be definite labor decline if specifications were set against the local brick manufacturers. He stated that it was theme of the Rockefeller administration in order to build a good healthy business climate in the State of New York to get together, cooperate, and keep business here. He further stated that he felt that we could take our chances in commercial competition. He urged that the Housing People make every effort to set up specifications for use of brick that did not rule out local manufacturers.

Those attending the meeting in addition to those mentioned previously were Leo E. Schwarzstein, Terry Brick Co., John K. Meneely, Sutton and Suderly Brick Co., G. V. D. Hutton, Hutton Co., Floyd W. Flint, Hutton Co., Frank Gennett, Sen. Bush's Office, Jesse McHugh, Board of Supervisors, Edward Snyder, Assemblyman Wilson's office, B. S. Kramer, Congressman Wharton's office, Francis Costa, assistant business agent Brickhandler's Union, Joseph Amato, business agent, Brickhandler's Union, George Nagy, president, Brickhandler's, Dale Swartzmiller, district manager, New York State Department of Commerce, Emil DiMotte, New York State Department of Commerce, Ernest G. Guido, Terry Brick Corp., J. B. Terbell, deputy commissioner New York State Division of Housing, J. T. Haugssidy, assistant commissioner New York State Division of Housing.

Assemblyman Wilson and Senator Bush stated that they appreciated the efforts of labor and industry and all agencies involved relative to this problem and urged their continued efforts on behalf of this vital industry to better our economic climate. Abrams urged the full cooperation of the State Department of Commerce in advocating the advancement of industry in the state of New York which assurances he received, and he further urged the Housing Authorities continue to include Hudson Valley Clay Brick in their specifications for public housing.

The nation's maintenance and repair bill for buildings of all kinds has grown to around $20 billion a year.

Candidates for

tablishments of basic skills and attention to individual differences as prime educational objectives and that spending commensurate with needs and educational developments. "The student has a right to the best possible education." She said that she believed that a board member should keep herself informed, be willing to listen to constructive suggestions and use effectively all available resources.

Singer, a North Front Street businessman, said if elected he would do his best to see that children receive all possible benefits of a good education and that "the best interests of all the people will be served if I am elected."

Stedge, a resident of the Town of Ulster, pointed out that his wife is a former teacher and that he has three brothers in the teaching profession in Rockland County. Education is a state of mind, he said, explaining that the teacher should seek to arouse intellectual curiosity and encourage creative thinking in her students. Stedge said that if elected he would endeavor to keep an open mind on all problems and not be unduly influenced by any group and encourage any interested individual or group to present their side of the case.

Mansfield, a resident of Tillson, and an employe of IBM, questioned whether it was "proper" for an educator to serve on the school board as a representative of the lay population. He said he would attempt to restore to parents and taxpayers a board "more nearly reflective of what you want." He asserted that he would not be a rubber stamp for the State Education Department.

Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department, said it was his desire to serve the people in an unbiased manner, seeking the best possible education of the children within the ability of the taxpayer to pay. He cited Russian technical progress and asked if teachers are really "exerting" themselves fully, or doing a lot of "little things" formerly handled by parents. He said that if elected he would not be a "penny pincher or a spendthrift" but would base each decision on the merits of the case.

MacKinnon, a Kingston attorney, said he approved of advanced classes for bright students, particularly in view of Russian technical advances, but that the average and slow pupils should not be neglected. He suggested that certain "fringes" should be cut with less emphasis, for example, on major sports and more on "body building," more emphasis on classrooms than on gymnasium, cafeterias, etc. The board has somewhat lost the respect of the community, he said, a respect which should be restored.

In response to a question MacKinnon said he and Greer are not "running mates as such" but that they had cooperated in obtaining signatures.

Asked his prime reason for seeking the office, Mansfield replied that the United States is fighting for national survival, that "we are not playing games" but are playing with someone who's "going to pick up all the marbles." He said the people have got to see that our children are prepared to assume the "terrible responsibility" which is going to fall upon them.

Asked why they had not submitted their candidacy to the Non-Partisan Nominating Committee, MacKinnon replied that he had done so. Some indicated they disliked the idea of a committee of this kind.

Mrs. Murphy, in defense of the Non-Partisan Committee, said she was "very proud to be asked to appear before the committee." She said, "I simply ask you to vote for the person you want for what you think are your reasons."

Stedge said he felt very strongly in offering his candidacy to the committee, that it was performing a public service.

He announced this action on other measures:

Scholarships—Signed a bill specifying that students who win both a State Regents and a federal scholarship for a college education much choose between the two.

Mental Hygiene — Approved legislation permitting mental hygiene investigators to look nto financial resources of patients to determine whether friends, relatives or guardians are holding funds that could be used to pay costs of treatment in state institutions. The treatment is given without cost to those unable to pay.

Mink —Signed a bill, effective Oct. 1, prohibiting the shooting of wild mink with any firearm larger than 22 caliber.

State Police — Approved a bill guaranteeing State Police officers and troopers retirement pay equal to half of their final, average salary after 25 years service. Present members of the force have until Dec. 31 to join the new pension plan and may do so at their present rate of contributions.

Purchasing Agent — Vetoed a measure that would have exluded county purchasing agents from civil service in counties where the new job now is in the competitive service. "The bill is inconsistent with sound policy fundamental to the state's civil service system," Rockefeller said.

Grocery Stores — Vetoed a bill that would have defined a grocery store as a retail establishment in which at least 25 per cent of daily receipts were derived from sale of foodstuffs. The bill was aimed at retailers who identify themselves as grocers in order to obtain licenses to sell beer, the sponsors said.

The governor said the present legal definition of a grocery store was adequate. This, he said, was "a retail establishment where foodstuffs are regularly and customarily sold in a bonafide manner for consumption off the premises."

Boating Supplies—Vetoed a bill that would have permitted the sale of boating supplies on Sunday. Rockefeller said in his veto message that piecemeal changes in the state law against business activity on Sunday should be avoided. Various types of commercial activity are banned on Sunday but there also is a widespread disregard of the law, a recent survey showed.

Advises Safe Stocks For Retiring Couple

Q) "My wife and I will soon retire. In addition to Social Security, we will have approximately $14,000 in cash. We are thinking of investing about $4,000, but are undecided whether to buy stocks or bonds. Which would you suggest?" — L. C.

A) I assume from your letter that $14,000 represents the sum total of your capital and that you won't be able to add to it. Since you mention a possible investment of only about $4,000, I'm also assuming that you will keep the balance in some form of savings reserve. I would certainly urge you to do so.

Let me explain the basic difference between stocks and bonds. Right now, better grade stocks yield less but have good prospects for increasing substantially in value over the years. Normally, the better the growth prospects, the lower the yield.

But all stocks have one thing in common, they fluctuate, sometimes drastically. If you purchase common shares, and particularly if you are a worrier, you must take this factor into consideration.

High-grade bonds are more secure than stocks because they represent a fixed charge against a company's income. There is no chance of growth in bonds, and they also fluctuate — but within considerably narrower limits. They should be regarded solely as income producers.

I think you need growth, as well as income, to give you some protection against inflation. I suggest that you invest $4,000 in conservative and relatively safe stocks. I recommend a package consisting of equal dollar amounts in New England Telephone (ASE), Fairmont Foods (NYSE), and California Electric Power (ASE), which would provide an average yield of 3.4 per cent at recent levels.

Q) "What is your opinion of Brunswick as a growth stock?" —K. G.

A) Good. Brunswick operates in three very strong growth areas: bowling, medical supplies, and school equipment. The stock has shown a strong chart picture and has recently been resting after a sharp run-up. I consider Brunswick relatively undervalued in the fast-growth group.

Kivlan saw, he said, ran toward the rear door and entered another room. Cautiously moving to the rear of the building, Kivlan heard a noise in front and he saw two men run from the front door.

Kivlan said he fired a warning shot when the man failed to heed his command to halt. The chase continued down North Front Street toward Converse Street, according to the officer, who said one man ran into an alley next to the Franz Rambler building. The other man dashed into an alley near Fatum's station.

Called to Halt Twice

The officer reported he yelled "Halt" again and fired another warning shot into the air. Then he chased one man past several parked cars. He yelled "Halt" again and "fired my gun low to stop him."

During the pursuit, Kivlan saw Henry Filiatrault, Converse Street garageman, who went to the nearby garage and switched on flood lights.

Kivlan said the low shot he fired "struck the man and he fell to the ground." At the officer's direction, Filiatrault telephoned police headquarters for assistance and an ambulance. Kivlan then hurried to help the man identified as Ricketson "in any way I could."

Died of Hemorrhage

The wounded man was taken to Kingston Hospital. He died in less than two hours.

One bullet fired by Kivlan entered the man's back on the lower left side, and Coroner Francis J. McCardle reported death was due to hemorrhage. The bullet, the coroner said, entered the region of the fourth lumbar vertebra, lacerating the aorta.

Hollander Hits Rocky for Stand On Minimum Pay

NEW YORK (AP)—Louis Hollander, political chief of the State AFL-CIO, says Gov. Rockefeller has made it impossible "for labor ever to work with any wing of the Republican party."

Hollander, chairman of the Committee on Political Education of the state labor group, said Monday that the Republican governor is "a lip-service, do-nothing 'liberal,' who talks big but acts small."

Hollander made the attack in a statement criticizing Rockefeller for not saying "yes" to a union request that he use his influence to help speed passage of bills in Congress to raise the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour and to provide aid to distressed areas.

"In every speech," Hollander said of the governor, "he proclaims his determination to protect industry and jobs in this state. Yet when we ask him to prevent industrial piracy by supporting a $1.25 minimum we get only silence."

Cases Are Heard In County Court

Dell Jackson, West Strand store and taxi proprietor who last week was found guilty of violating the gambling law, was sentenced in County Court Monday afternoon by Acting County Judge Francis X. Tucker to 30 days in the county jail and fined $200. The jail sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for a year.

Charles Saccoman, who appeared for Jackson, asked for leniency and cited the good reputation of the defendant, a lifelong resident of Kingston. He also filde with the court a letter from Jackson's pastor, stating his excellent church record.

James Hill, also charged with a gambling violation, was fined $100 on a plea of guilty to the charge. Charles Saccoman appeared for Hill. Bail was exonerated.

Robert C. Genninger, Saugerties, charged with third degree burglary, unlawful entry and second degree grand larceny last Jan. 23, had his case disposed of under the Youthful Offender statute. Ward Ingalsbe appeared for defendant.

Several other cases were adjourned to Wednesday.

Traffic Island Is Planned by City

A traffic island is being contemplated to channelize one-way traffic entering Greenkill Avenue from Fair Street and traffic from Greenkill Avenue and the Boulevard to Wall Street, Mayor Edwin F. Radel announced today.

The mayor said this island also will permit turns from Fair Street into Wall Street. He said a three-way flashing amber beacon will be operated at the island to regulate traffic and call attention to the one way traffic pattern at the intersection.

Pedestrian crossvalks also will be provided as an aid to school children in the area who use the crossing.

Work crews of the Department of Public Works already are attending to landscaping and seeding at the street project, the mayor said.

In addition to this section of the street program work, the mayor said, work is progressing on O'Neil Street between Smith Avenue and Broadway where upper level sewer repairs and rough grading are underway in preparation for blacktop.

It was pointed out by members of the State Division of Housing who were present that their department carried out no discriminatory practices. That many of their projects were using Hudson River brick, however, they pointed out that local authorities employ their own arhcitects and prepare their own specifications and that this should not be confused with their operation.

It was also stated that under the Mitchell-Lama middle income housing, the sponsors of these projects selected their own architects and set up their own specifications, and that this really represented the big building program that was now taking place.

Would Cut Jobs

C. B. Friday, representing the New York State Department of Commerce stated that there would be definite labor decline if specifications were set against the local brick manufacturers. He stated that it was theme of the Rockefeller administration in order to build a good healthy business climate in the State of New York to get together, cooperate, and keep business here. He further stated that he felt that we could take our chances in commercial competition. He urged that the Housing People make every effort to set up specifications for use of brick that did not rule out local manufacturers.

Those attending the meeting in addition to those mentioned previously were Leo E. Schwarzstein, Terry Brick Co., John K. Meneely, Sutton and Suderly Brick Co., G. V. D. Hutton, Hutton Co., Floyd W. Flint, Hutton Co., Frank Gennett, Sen. Bush's Office, Jesse McHugh, Board of Supervisors, Edward Snyder, Assemblyman Wilson's office, B. S. Kramer, Congressman Wharton's office, Francis Costa, assistant business agent Brickhandler's Union, Joseph Amato, business agent, Brickhandler's Union, George Nagy, president, Brickhandler's, Dale Swartzmiller, district manager, New York State Department of Commerce, Emil DiMotte, New York State Department of Commerce, Ernest G. Guido, Terry Brick Corp., J. B. Terbell, deputy commissioner New York State Division of Housing, J. T. Haugssidy, assistant commissioner New York State Division of Housing.

Assemblyman Wilson and Senator Bush stated that they appreciated the efforts of labor and industry and all agencies involved relative to this problem and urged their continued efforts on behalf of this vital industry to better our economic climate. Abrams urged the full cooperation of the State Department of Commerce in advocating the advancement of industry in the state of New York which assurances he received, and he further urged the Housing Authorities continue to include Hudson Valley Clay Brick in their specifications for public housing.

The nation's maintenance and repair bill for buildings of all kinds has grown to around $20 billion a year.

tablishments of basic skills and attention to individual differences as prime educational objectives and that spending commensurate with needs and educational developments. "The student has a right to the best possible education." She said that she believed that a board member should keep herself informed, be willing to listen to constructive suggestions and use effectively all available resources.

Singer, a North Front Street businessman, said if elected he would do his best to see that children receive all possible benefits of a good education and that "the best interests of all the people will be served if I am elected."

Stedge, a resident of the Town of Ulster, pointed out that his wife is a former teacher and that he has three brothers in the teaching profession in Rockland County. Education is a state of mind, he said, explaining that the teacher should seek to arouse intellectual curiosity and encourage creative thinking in her students. Stedge said that if elected he would endeavor to keep an open mind on all problems and not be unduly influenced by any group and encourage any interested individual or group to present their side of the case.

Mansfield, a resident of Tillson, and an employe of IBM, questioned whether it was "proper" for an educator to serve on the school board as a representative of the lay population. He said he would attempt to restore to parents and taxpayers a board "more nearly reflective of what you want." He asserted that he would not be a rubber stamp for the State Education Department.

Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department, said it was his desire to serve the people in an unbiased manner, seeking the best possible education of the children within the ability of the taxpayer to pay. He cited Russian technical progress and asked if teachers are really "exerting" themselves fully, or doing a lot of "little things" formerly handled by parents. He said that if elected he would not be a "penny pincher or a spendthrift" but would base each decision on the merits of the case.

MacKinnon, a Kingston attorney, said he approved of advanced classes for bright students, particularly in view of Russian technical advances, but that the average and slow pupils should not be neglected. He suggested that certain "fringes" should be cut with less emphasis, for example, on major sports and more on "body building," more emphasis on classrooms than on gymnasium, cafeterias, etc. The board has somewhat lost the respect of the community, he said, a respect which should be restored.

In response to a question MacKinnon said he and Greer are not "running mates as such" but that they had cooperated in obtaining signatures.

Asked his prime reason for seeking the office, Mansfield replied that the United States is fighting for national survival, that "we are not playing games" but are playing with someone who's "going to pick up all the marbles." He said the people have got to see that our children are prepared to assume the "terrible responsibility" which is going to fall upon them.

Asked why they had not submitted their candidacy to the Non-Partisan Nominating Committee, MacKinnon replied that he had done so. Some indicated they disliked the idea of a committee of this kind.

Mrs. Murphy, in defense of the Non-Partisan Committee, said she was "very proud to be asked to appear before the committee." She said, "I simply ask you to vote for the person you want for what you think are your reasons."

Stedge said he felt very strongly in offering his candidacy to the committee, that it was performing a public service.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Six highway projects estimated at a total $4.8 million will be launched this summer under his plan to accelerate public works in job-short areas, Gov. Rockefeller said today.

Bids will be received May 25 and work started shortly thereafter, he said, on these jobs:

Oneida County — Reconstruction of 9.32 miles of Routes 49, 13 and 69 at an estimated cost of $1,580,000. The roadway will be widened and resurfaced from North Bay on Route 49, eastward to Vienna, then northerly on Route 13 to Camden, including a short section of Route 69 in Camden.

Clinton County — Reconstruction of 6.3 miles of Route 22B from Morrisonville to Schuyler Falls, including a new bridge over the Salmon River at Schuyler Falls, estimated at $1,132,000.

Widening and resurfacing of 3.42 miles of Route 22 from Mooers northward to the Canadian border, estimated at $206,000.

Erie and Niagara Counties—Reconstruction of Route 427 from Wellsburg eastward a distance o 1.31 miles, estimated at $884,000.

Chautauqua County — Widening and resurfacing of 4.84 miles of Route 39 between Route 20 and Forestville, estimated at $365,000.

The governor's statement, released through his office, made no reference to the original schedule for the work involved.

Asked for details, his office said there was no specific timetable originally but the work would be done faster as a result of the Rockefeller acceleration order than it would have been otherwise.

Ceylon Is Having Problem on Tamil Separation Move

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—The Ceylon government has declared a state of emergency to combat a separatist movement of the island nation's Tamil minority.

Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike's government banned the Tamil federal party and imposed "control of publications," presumably some form of press censorship. Strong army contingents were dispatched to the Tamil stronghold of Jaffna, 250 miles north of the capital.

The two million Hindu Tamils in north and east Ceylon are seeking to preserve their language and culture from the influence of the 5½ million Buddhist Sinhalese.

Tamil leaders last week started a Gandhi-style non-violent civil disobedience campaign to promote their separatist demands.

Here's a delicious novelty—a homemade cinnamon ball coffee cake that starts with a dozen baker's cloverleaf rolls. Gooey and delicately spiced, it is a welcome answer to what to have for breakfast. How about orange or grapefruit juice crisp bacon and cinnamon ball coffee cake, coffee, tea or milk?

Police Seize Two In Shooting of Singer, Beating

NEW YORK (AP) — A shaved head—badge of initiation into the black Muslim movement in Harlem—and a glass eye figured as evidence as police seized two men today in the shooting of a night club singer and the beating of her husband.

Detectives sought a third man in the attacks on Delores Coleman, 31, and her husband, James Wallace, 33, both Negroes.

Those arrested are George Bennett, 45, and Jakie Rowe, 31, Negroes.

Polce said Bennett, who has a glass eye, shot Miss Coleman in the left thigh in her apartment April 12.

Detectives assigned to the case immediately after the attacks were told that one of Miss Coleman's assailants had a glass eye. This led to search of a special police file on persons with handicaps and unusual physical characteristics.

Police gave this account of the attack:

The three assailants mistook Wallace for another Muslim initiate—known only as "Clarence" —from whom they were seeking to collect money they claimed was owed them.

When the three men burst into the apartment of Wallace and his wife, they demanded the money. Wallace protested and was beaten so badly that he required 13 stitches.

Wallace escaped by jumping from a window. He notified a passing policeman, who found Miss Coleman wounded in the abdomen. A bone in her leg was shattered.

The three assailants had escaped.

Augustana Group Of Lutherans to Vote on Merger

SPRINGFIELD, Va. (AP)—The New York Conference of the National Augustana Lutheran Church today opens its 91st—and perhaps its next to the last—annual convention.

Wednesday the approximately 300 delegates from seven eastern states and the District of Columbia will vote on merging with other Lutheran churches.

If given final approval, more than 3 million Lutherans of various national backgrounds would be brought together in a unified church known as the Lutheran Church in America. The merger is scheduled for consummation in June 1962.

The New York Conference, under the merger plans, would hold its last convention next spring to plan for the unification move.

The proposed unification would bring together Augustana, the United Lutheran Church, the Suomi Synod, and the American Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Supervisors Ask For Radio Atop MohonkMountain

The Ulster County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution at its last meeting requesting the Commissioner of the Conservation Department of the State of New York in install radio communication facilities at the Mohonk Mountain Fire Tower.

Under present conditions the observer reports fires to local fire departments by telephone and when mechanical failures occur a long delay or no means exist to make contact. If radio facilities were made available, immediate contact could be made to prevent fire from spreading and thus minimize both loss of life and valuable property.

The resolution was co-offered by Supervisor Charles Relyea, (R-Hurley), chairman of the two-way radio committee and Supervisor Reginald Todd (R-Hardenburgh), chairman of the Forest Practice Board. Copies of the resolution have been sent to State Senator E. Ogden Bush and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson.

Kremlin Pledges Aid for Castro

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union officially pledged "all necessary aid" today to the Castro government in its fight against counterrevolutionary invaders.

The Soviets, in a statement broadcast by Moscow radio, accused the United States of intervention in Cuban affairs and asked the U. S. government to halt the alleged intervention.

The statement also asked the United Nations to examine the situation immediately.

The Kremlin declared:

"The Soviet government reserves the right, should armed intervention not cease, to render all necessary aid to the Republic of Cuba."

The government statement followed a Tass dispatch from Havana which charged that the anti-Castro forces were landed under cover of planes from an American carrier, a charge made by Cuba Monday night at the United Nations and denied by chief U. S. delegate Adlai E. Stevenson and the U. S. Navy.

Dem Hopeful Of Wage Bill Vote Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders hope to win passage of President Kennedy's minimum wage bill by tonight.

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois says he's not so sure about the timetable for final action.

Administration forces were mobilized to fight off all major amendments to the bill—a must on Kennedy's legislative list.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana last week obtained an agreement limiting debate on each amendment to one hour. About 15 were pending, but all may not be offered.

The bill the Senate is debating would largely carry out the President's recommendations. It would boost the wage floor from $1 to $1.25 by 1963 in two steps and would bring an additional 4,086,000 workers under the wages and hours law. Most of these would be in retail stores, service establishments and construction.

The Senate version is far broader than the bill passed by the House last month after a sharp Kennedy defeat. That measure would boost the minimum to $1.15 and cover an additional 1,200,000 workers, all in chain stores.

Fire on Furniture Truck Undetermined

Cause of a fire in a truckload of furniture Sunday on the Thruway near Catskill has not been determined, state police reported today. The furniture was badly damaged, but the truck escaped serious damage.

Paul Trumble, 34, of Wonelsdorf, Pa., driving north observed smoke coming from the trailer. He stopped, unhooked the tractor and summoned state police. The Leeds Fire Company No. 1 was summoned and responded with a dozen men and two pieces of equipment. The fire had apparently been smouldering for some time and when the trailer was opened it was found about a third of the furniture had been destroyed. In order to get to the fire the load was removed. It is believed the fire may have started at the time of loading and smouldered until discovered. The padding used in protecting the furniture was on fire when the doors were opened. There was only slight damage to the truck paneling.

State Fair Sets Governor's Day Wednesday, Sept.6

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Governor's Day at the New York State Fair will be Wednesday, Sept. 6, instead of the traditional Thursday, fair officials said today.

That Thursday, Sept. 7, is Primary Day.

It means also that sale of beer and liquor will be forbidden on Thursday.

Fair director Harold Creal said, however, that attendance is usually relatively light on a Thursday and the loss to concessionaires should not be too severe.

Gov. Rockefeller is expected to visit the fair on Governor's Day.

The governor also attends the annual farm dinner of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. This will be held on Tuesday night, Sept. 6, instead of the usual Wednesday.

Urges Federal Study

NEW YORK (AP) —Assistant Secretary of the Interior John A. Carver Jr. has called for a study of federal responsibilities to the American Indian.

He told the annual meeting of the Association of American Indian Affairs Monday night that a common understanding of what the federal government can legally do for the Indian is of foremost importance in settling the Indian problem.

Carver said "special services to the Indians as Indians may be necessary," but "we must live with the inexorable corollary that we will isolate the Indians more and more from the mainstream of American life. . ."

Nazi Massacre at Lvov Bared at Trial

Women Faint...Others Sit Stunned

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

JERUSALEM (AP)—He spoke about the Nazi massacre at Lvov. Quoted an eyewitness telling how the bodies were burned, their ashes scattered, how gold teeth were collected—16 pounds a day.

Nothing in the voice of Israel's attorney general betrayed that he was touching on a personal experience in his ringing indictment. But Gideon Hausner lost relatives in the Lvov holocaust.

Some women in the audience fainted when he recalled the dreadful past. Other listeners sat, stunned into silence, minutes after the court session ended. But Hausner's voice never failed him in the long hours during which he read his powerful statement opening Israel's case against Adolf Eichmann.

The audience never saw his sharp-lined face in full. The listeners caught his profile, his horn rimmed glasses. Occasionally they saw the strong hands of the man who once wanted to become a farmer and still is a passionate gardener. The hands, folded at his back or holding the manuscript, never trembled.

His voice was usually high-pitched. He lowered it when he dwelt on the gruesome details. It was lowest when he talked about the extermination of Jewish children.

Hausner speaks seven languages, from English to Arabic, but Israelis say he is at its best in Hebrew.

Fire on Furniture Truck Undetermined

Cause of a fire in a truckload of furniture Sunday on the Thruway near Catskill has not been determined, state police reported today. The furniture was badly damaged, but the truck escaped serious damage.

Paul Trumble, 34, of Wonelsdorf, Pa., driving north observed smoke coming from the trailer. He stopped, unhooked the tractor and summoned state police. The Leeds Fire Company No. 1 was summoned and responded with a dozen men and two pieces of equipment. The fire had apparently been smouldering for some time and when the trailer was opened it was found about a third of the furniture had been destroyed. In order to get to the fire the load was removed. It is believed the fire may have started at the time of loading and smouldered until discovered. The padding used in protecting the furniture was on fire when the doors were opened. There was only slight damage to the truck paneling.

Nazi Massacre at Lvov Bared at Trial

By HANNS NEUEBOURG

JERUSALEM (AP)—He spoke about the Nazi massacre at Lvov. Quoted an eyewitness telling how the bodies were burned, their ashes scattered, how gold teeth were collected—16 pounds a day.

Nothing in the voice of Israel's attorney general betrayed that he was touching on a personal experience in his ringing indictment. But Gideon Hausner lost relatives in the Lvov holocaust.

Some women in the audience fainted when he recalled the dreadful past. Other listeners sat, stunned into silence, minutes after the court session ended. But Hausner's voice never failed him in the long hours during which he read his powerful statement opening Israel's case against Adolf Eichmann.

The audience never saw his sharp-lined face in full. The listeners caught his profile, his horn rimmed glasses. Occasionally they saw the strong hands of the man who once wanted to become a farmer and still is a passionate gardener. The hands, folded at his back or holding the manuscript, never trembled.

His voice was usually high-pitched. He lowered it when he dwelt on the gruesome details. It was lowest when he talked about the extermination of Jewish children.

Hausner speaks seven languages, from English to Arabic, but Israelis say he is at its best in Hebrew.

40-Hour Week Becomes 35

Characters in Business World Play, Coffee Break

By HAL BOYLE

The employer's idea originally was that office output would be increased if the white collar peasants were given a 10-minute period to gulp down a hot cup of coffee.

Since then the hired hands have joyously enlarged on that theory until today the coffee break has become practically a way of life.

The caterer's refreshment cart in thousands of offices wheels in regularly at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., and all work stops as the employes gaily line up for their goodies. The 10-minute gulp is out of style. Any employe with the ingenuity to deserve promotion can easily stretch his coffee break to half an hour.

This means — as many a boss knows — that because of coffee breaks an employe paid for a 40-hour week now puts in only 35 hours, less time off in the rest rooms for indigestion.

The Brazen Intruder — He steps quickly in at the head of the line, murmuring, "terribly hurry. Know you won't mind just this once. Lot of work I just have to get back to."

The Crying Tightwad — "That cruller you gave me yesterday was so stale I had to throw most of it away," he moans. "How about a free one today?"

The Compulsive Muncher — He loads up with everything he can carry, eats for an hour — then falls asleep until lunch. He does the same thing at the afternoon coffee break, sleeps until quitting time.

The Walking Hangover — After buying a container of hot black coffee, he sneaks out to the men's room and fortifies it with gin. His gripe: "They serve everything else — why don't they serve martinis?"

The Rumormonger — "Y'know why the coffee's so weak and the food so lousy?" he whispers, hand to mouth. "I hear the management gets a 30 per cent kickback on all sales."

The Junior Executive — He doesn't really want anything. He just stands in line to show he's democratic, hoping that he'll get ahead faster if he shows he's still just one of the boys.

The Boss—He comes out and stares morosely at all the coffee break artists, eating, laughing, gossiping. "Don't anybody around here ever do any work?" he mutters.

Then he stomps out to the nearest restaurant for a late breakfast, asking himself: "Who in the devil ever invented the coffee break? It's ruining industry."

GOP Is Looking To Primary for Party Evaluation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans across the nation will study the results of today's New Jersey primary election for new evaluations of liberal and conservative strength within their party.

While a contest for nomination for governor is likely to be decided in most instances by the power of candidates' organizations and the impact of local issues, most Republicans think the New Jersey battle has some national overtones.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-NJ., who has emerged as one of the leading spokesmen for the liberal wing of the GOP, has staked much of his prestige in trying to get the nomination for James P. Mitchell, former secretary of labor.

Mitchell is opposed by two state senators, Walter H. Jones and Wayne Dumont. While neither appears to bear any prominent conservative label, Mitchell has been touted as a liberal.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower chipped in $100 toward Mitchell's campaign expenses. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was reported to have done some long-distance telephoning in Mitchell's behalf.

If the former Cabinet member should win in the primary, Case and other party liberals are likely to herald this as a sign that Republicans in politically important New Jersey are predominantly liberal.

Old Timer's Civil War Notes

This columnist from time to time will present to readers the names of veterans whose remains were interred in various cemeteries and family burying grounds throughout Ulster County. Many of our dead of course were never brought back home but lie in national cemeteries in Southern states. Many remained unidentified. They had lain in hastily dug trenches on or near the battlefield and were given separate burial later on. Their headstones, likely as not, bear only the name of their regiment, or perhaps some insignia or buttons or some other item which gave the clue to their identity. The writer once visited such a burial place, out the Waynsboro Pike from Staunton in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. It was known down there, this last resting place of several hundred Union soldiers, as the "Yankee Burying-ground." And in Staunton itself there lie, beneath a tall marble shaft, some 700 Confederate boys, mostly from the deep South. These sacred grounds are held in deepest reverence by the people of those states.

Hundreds of veterans lie in Kingston burying-grounds, including many who died in service and others who died here in port-bellum years. One of the most distinguished soldiers in Wiltwyck is Lieut. Col. J. Rudolph Tappen, who was born in Kingston, May 26, 1831. Previous to the war he was a lieutenant in the National Grays, an independent local military company, and at the same time a lieutenant of B Co., 20th N. Y. State Militia. He organized and became captain of C Company of his regiment during its three-months service following Lincoln's first call for volunteers in April, 1861. Later, together with most of the Old Twentieth he reenlisted for "during the war." When the 120th Infantry was organized in August, 1862, he led it during nearly all of its arduous campaigns with the Army of the Potomac and was often cited for his gallantry in action. Colonel Tappen following his return to Kingston, engaged in business but illness, complicated by war wounds ended his days January 20, 1875.

Interred in Montrepose was Lieut. George North Jr., who enlisted as a private in B Co., 20th Regiment in the three months' service and returned with his comrades on their second enlistment as a 2nd lieutenant of F. Co. He later was promoted to 1st lieutenant. He died at Rondout June 9, 1877, from the effects of a wound in the head at the Battle of Chantilly. Lieutenant North was a gallant officer, unassuming in his deportment and idolized by his company. Also lying in Montrepose is Lieutenant James L. Adams, who entered the Army in '61 as assistant surgeon and served with the Fifth Michigan Volunteers through the Peninsula Campaign, afterward he was with General Banks in the West. He saw service at Port Hudson and many more of the most severe actions of the war. He died at Rondout early in the year 1880.

Your Old Timer would be glad to hear from Readers whose veteran ancestors are burired in urban and rural cemeteries. Very interesting, too, would be something about their war records, peace time activities, living descendants or other relatives, and so forth. C.A.W.

Convicted in Slaying

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A Monroe County Court jury Monday convicted George Moody, 59, of Rochester, of first-degree manslaughter in the shotgun slaying of Leonard Jones, 28, outside a downtown tavern Feb. 3.

Moody said his pocket was picked in the tavern and the shooting stemmed from the fight that ensued. Judge Harry Rosenthal set April 27 for sentencing.

Defense Can Also Swipe Tricks

By OSWALD JACOBY

Trick stealing is not the sole prerogative of declarer. The defense has a right to try it also.

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts; there was no reason to hold off. Then he drew trumps with three leads and gained nothing from East's two heart discards.

His next step was to go after the spades. When that suit failed to break he wasn't discouraged at all. He simply threw West in with the queen of hearts.

As you can see, West had no way to beat the slam at this point. A heart lead would give South a ruff and discard; a club lead would allow South to pick up three club tricks.

Nevertheless, West gave the cards a chance and beat the hand. Instead of meekly leading a low club which would have forced East's jack and allowed a finesse against his own queen, West played the queen of clubs.

This put the monkey on South's back. Should he win the trick in dummy and play East for the jack of clubs or should he win in his own hand and play West for both club honors.

South finally went wrong and even his partner could not really blame him.

A Castro Defeat Could Turn Laos Into Furnace

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

What will Russia do? Why did the invaders pick April 17? What part, if any, did the United States play? Are the Cuban people for or against Fidel Castro? If the invaders win, what kind of government will they set up?

In Moscow the government newspaper Izvestia said the Communist world stands behind Castro, called the invaders "American hirelings." The official Soviet news agency Tass said Russia and its allies are ready to help Castro.

Help Long Way Off

Although the Soviet Union and its satellites have given Castro arms, now in his moment of peril further help from them is a long way off unless they send in planes.

There is a limit on what they can do without risking war with the United States.

Twice now in seven years extreme left-wing governments set up in the Western Hemisphere under the American nose have been invaded. In Guatemala in 1954 the government was crushed.

The Communists have been trying to do to the United States what this country has done to them, that is, establish alliances close to American shores. The United States has made such alliances with some of Russia's closest neighbors.

If Castro falls, it would not be surprising to see Russia, or its emissaries, create a crisis for the United States elsewhere. It has been stalling on a cease-fire in Laos, for instance. It could turn Laos into a furnace.

Last Saturday three Cuban air bases were attacked from the air by bombers. Two of the planes later landed in Florida where one of the pilots said he and his companions had deserted the Cuban air force.

Date Unexplained

This raid apparently was an attempt to destroy whatever planes Castro had left. Two days later came the invasion. They seemed linked. That still doesn't explain why April 17 was the target date.

Perhaps the invaders decided now or never in fear that if they waited much longer Castro might be too well armed to be overcome.

There have been repeated reports for weeks that a number of Cubans have been trained as jet pilots in the satellites and that Castro has received from behind the Iron Curtain a batch of jet planes which are still in crates, waiting to be assembled.

At the United Nations Adlai E. Stevenson denied an offensive had been launched from this country against Cuba. Secretary of State Dean Rusk again stated the U. S. policy of non-intervention.

But Rusk avoided any flat commitment that this country is not giving back-door aid to the rebels. Nor did President Kennedy at his news conference last week say the United States would not help anti-Castro rebels.

He said neither Americans nor American armed-forces would intervene in Cuba.

How Many, Is Question

But the New York Times has said flatly Cuban exiles for nine months have trained in this country and Central America for invasion.

What still isn't clear is how many Cubans share the anti-Castro feelings of the rebels. The invaders will have their hands full if most of the Cuban people are pro-Castro.

Cuba has had a long history of dictatorship, and revolts. The anti Cuban exiles in this country range from right to liberal, to say the least. Last month they got together in a coalition called the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

This togetherness may last no longer than it takes to crush Castro. Then who wins, if they win, is anyone's guess.

Home Extension Service News

Woodstock Unit

Mrs. Zenna Winslow was elected chairman of the Woodstock Unit and will take office in September. Also elcted were Mrs. Margart Schiltz, first vice chairman; Mrs. Inez Hall, second vice chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Clough, secretary; Mrs. Elsie Ertz, treasurer.

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent of the Ulster County Extension Service Association, submits the following article on the home versus commercial laundering:

Recent reports on household equipment indicate that automatic washers are frequently purchased to replace wringer type units. Also automatic dryers are zooming in popularity. In fact from 1949 to 1959, dryer sales increased more than tenfold, with electric models accounting for about 65 per cent of the total.

How to have the laundry done is an important question today. Commercial laundries offer various services, and many kinds of home laundering equipment are on the market.

In one small study, 24 Ohio families provided comparative information on time and money costs and quality of finished articles laundered at home and at a commercial laundry. Results showed that home laundering, although more time consuming, cost less money. Average cost here was divided between current operating expenses and investment in equipment. No money for family time and labor was included.

The families found that as more commercial laundry service was used, time was saved but money costs increasd. The time saved by sending laundry out was in washing and ironing not in checking and sorting clothes.

The homemakers admired their commercially laundered items for whiteness, softness, and cleaniness of heavily soiled areas in colored clothes. They rated their home laundering higher, however, for preventing fading, wrinkling, and shrinkage.

Wash Day Problems

With sunny spring weather ahead, clothes will have to look brighter and cleaner than ever to please the discriminating homemaker. Sometimes, even new white articles acquire a grayed, grimy appearance after they have been used and washed for awhile.

Specialists in household economics and management have found ways to avoid poor laundry results and to restore the whiteness of grayed clothes. Their suggestions are given in a 4-page bulletin 978, "Brighten the Family Wash." You may receive this bulletin by stopping in at the Home Demonstration Department, 220 Wall St., Kingston, N. Y. or calling FE 8-3494.

Social hour is planned after the business session.

CLAUDE MONTEUX

Claude Monteux, musical director and conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, will receive the 1961 award of the Kingston Newspaper Guild for achievement in the field of music, it was announced today by Henry Eighmey, chairman of the Guild awards committee.

Monteux, a former solo flutist for the Kansas City Philharmonic who "caught the conducting bug," will be honored at the sixth annual Page One Ball at the Wiltwyck Country Club Saturday evening, May 13. Tickets for the event are now available from members of Kingston's working press, Mrs. Betty Radell, chairman of the ticket committee, or may be obtained by writing to the Guild, Box 153, Rondout Station, Kingston.

Top entertainment has been scheduled for the dinner dance. The Page One Queen will also be crowned.

Studied in France

Monteux, son of Pierre Monteux, world famous conductor and violinist, and Germaine Monteux, concert pianist, was born in the United States but went to France at an early age. There he played the violin at age four and the piano at five. A hand injury later led him to the flute.

He returned to the United States in 1937, later became solo flutist with the Kansas City Philharmonic and began his professional conducting career as assistant conductor of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, on tour from 1949 to 1952. For three years he was conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which he changed from an obscure to a major orchestra. Then he became director of Assembly Concerts, Inc., and the New Century Players, in New York City. He organized two chamber music groups and has guest conducted various ensembles such as the Wilmington Folk Festival, the Maine Little Symphony, the Huntington Symphony and Amor Musicae.

Monteux has appeared as flute soloist with his own orchestra and with others, and has also played his own Concertino for Flute, Strings and Percussion. He was appointed director and conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society in 1959.

Does Broadway Work

He was assistant conductor of the Broadway hit musical, "Music Man," when he was asked to become conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. Another hit he was connected with was the wartime service musical, "This Is the Army." His army career was as varied as his musical career is today. He enlisted as a musician, became an air cadet, but washed out because he becomes airsick (he still takes dramamine when flying) and wound up in Military Intelligence because of his knowledge of French.

Strangely, Claude Monteux's father discouraged him from becoming a musician and later a conductor. "He knew the hard work that goes into making both and I think he was always afraid I would not go as far as he did and that I'd be disappointed," he explains. "However, when he saw I was serious, he became just as enthusiastic as I was."

Monteux attended Blackmountain College 1937-39, leaving to study the flute with George Laurent, then soloist of the Boston Symphony. In 1942 he joined the army and was discharged in 1946 at which time he was named solo flutist with the Kansas City Philharmonic. He played summers at Lewisohn Stadium under many conductors, including his father. As a freelance flutist he gathered valuable experience, including close range observation of Toscanini and others. He has appeared as flute soloist with his orchestra and others on several occasions and has also played has own Concertino for Flute, Strings and Percussion.

Conducts Ballet Russe

Monteux began his professional conducting career as assistant conductor of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, 1949-52, spending much time building up repertoire, supporting himself by conducting two Broadway productions and freelancing.

In his three years tenure as conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra Monteux turned it from an obscure unit into a major orchestra. A new type of youth concert was launched, enabling 50,000 school children each year to hear great music.

Just Enjoy Music

At the end of the 1956 season Monteux left the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and returned to New York where he became engaged as director of two new projects: Assembly Concerts, Inc., and the New Century Players. In addition he organized two chamber music groups and has guest conducted various ensembles.

"I hate boring concerts," he says. "I'm crusading against those formal concerts which are attended only by those who 'have to attend. My aim is to make concert-going a pleasant experience even beyond the music."

He says that "many, many people say they could like classical music if they could 'understand it,'" but cautions them "Don't worry about understanding it—just enjoy it. When you look at a great painting, you don't have to know what kind of brush strokes the artist used or even any theories of art to know it's beautiful. You just enjoy it. Good music should be regarded that way too."

On children's concerts: "If children are taken early enough, from seven to 11 years old, they'll develop as much liking for classical music as for rock 'n roll."

FRIENDLY FEELINGS TOWARD HER EX-FIANCE

Q: I have just learned that my ex-fiance has been in a very serious accident and is in the hospital. I feel sad about this and while I am no longer in love with him, I do think a good deal of him. Would it be wrong for me to go to the hospital to see him or perhaps send a few flowers or a book with wishes for a speedy recovery? My mother thinks that doing either of these things would give him, as well as others, the impression that I still care and am trying to win him back.

A: If you have remained friendly, it will be entirely proper to send him whatever you please. If your parting was a very unhappy one and it would perhaps give him a wrong impression, this should be avoided. The opinion of others is of no importance; his concern is the important question.

Seating Guest in Family Car

Q: It has always seemed extremely rude to me for a hostess to take the front seat of a car when driven by a member of her family and for her guest to sit on the back seat. Will you please tell me if I am right about this, or am I too critical?

A: If the guest is a woman, she should not be given a seat any less comfortable than the one the hostess occupies. If the front seat is wide enough for three, the hostess sits next to the driver, leaving the more desirable seat next to the door for the guest. If the car is a sedan or any other with a full sized upholstered rear seat, both women sit there and the driver is left alone in the front seat.

Introducing Friends to Parents

Q: When introducing both my girl and boy friends to my mother and father, do I present my parents to my friends, or my friends to my parents?

A: You present your friends to your parents, and say, "Mother (or Father) this is John Jones" or "This is Mary Smith."

Committees were set up for the annual card party to be held at the firehouse on Saturday, May 20 at 8 p. m. All members are asked to bring or send a food item to the May meeting for the food basket. Following the meeting, Mrs. Alfred Hughes assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

Home Extension Service News

Woodstock Unit

Mrs. Zenna Winslow was elected chairman of the Woodstock Unit and will take office in September. Also elected were Mrs. Margart Schiltz, first vice chairman; Mrs. Inez Hall, second vice chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Clough, secretary; Mrs. Elsie Ertz, treasurer.

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent of the Ulster County Extension Service Association, submits the following article on the home versus commercial laundering:

Recent reports on household equipment indicate that automatic washers are frequently purchased to replace wringer type units. Also automatic dryers are zooming in popularity. In fact from 1949 to 1959, dryer sales increased more than tenfold, with electric models accounting for about 65 per cent of the total.

How to have the laundry done is an important question today. Commercial laundries offer various services, and many kinds of home laundering equipment are on the market.

In one small study, 24 Ohio families provided comparative information on time and money costs and quality of finished articles laundered at home and at a commercial laundry. Results showed that home laundering, although more time consuming, cost less money. Average cost here was divided between current operating expenses and investment in equipment. No money for family time and labor was included.

The families found that as more commercial laundry service was used, time was saved but money costs increasd. The time saved by sending laundry out was in washing and ironing not in checking and sorting clothes.

The homemakers admired their commercially laundered items for whiteness, softness, and cleaniness of heavily soiled areas in colored clothes. They rated their home laundering higher, however, for preventing fading, wrinkling, and shrinkage.

Wash Day Problems

With sunny spring weather ahead, clothes will have to look brighter and cleaner than ever to please the discriminating homemaker. Sometimes, even new white articles acquire a grayed, grimy appearance after they have been used and washed for awhile.

Specialists in household economics and management have found ways to avoid poor laundry results and to restore the whiteness of grayed clothes. Their suggestions are given in a 4-page bulletin 978, "Brighten the Family Wash." You may receive this bulletin by stopping in at the Home Demonstration Department, 220 Wall St., Kingston, N. Y. or calling FE 8-3494.

West Hurley Unit

CLAUDE MONTEUX

Claude Monteux, musical director and conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, will receive the 1961 award of the Kingston Newspaper Guild for achievement in the field of music, it was announced today by Henry Eighmey, chairman of the Guild awards committee.

Monteux, a former solo flutist for the Kansas City Philharmonic who "caught the conducting bug," will be honored at the sixth annual Page One Ball at the Wiltwyck Country Club Saturday evening, May 13. Tickets for the event are now available from members of Kingston's working press, Mrs. Betty Radell, chairman of the ticket committee, or may be obtained by writing to the Guild, Box 153, Rondout Station, Kingston.

Top entertainment has been scheduled for the dinner dance. The Page One Queen will also be crowned.

Studied in France

Monteux, son of Pierre Monteux, world famous conductor and violinist, and Germaine Monteux, concert pianist, was born in the United States but went to France at an early age. There he played the violin at age four and the piano at five. A hand injury later led him to the flute.

He returned to the United States in 1937, later became solo flutist with the Kansas City Philharmonic and began his professional conducting career as assistant conductor of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, on tour from 1949 to 1952. For three years he was conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which he changed from an obscure to a major orchestra. Then he became director of Assembly Concerts, Inc., and the New Century Players, in New York City. He organized two chamber music groups and has guest conducted various ensembles such as the Wilmington Folk Festival, the Maine Little Symphony, the Huntington Symphony and Amor Musicae.

Monteux has appeared as flute soloist with his own orchestra and with others, and has also played his own Concertino for Flute, Strings and Percussion. He was appointed director and conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society in 1959.

Does Broadway Work

He was assistant conductor of the Broadway hit musical, "Music Man," when he was asked to become conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. Another hit he was connected with was the wartime service musical, 'This Is the Army." His army career was as varied as his musical career is today. He enlisted as a musician, became an air cadet, but washed out because he becomes airsick (he still takes dramamine when flying) and wound up in Military Intelligence because of his knowledge of French.

Strangely, Claude Monteux's father discouraged him from becoming a musician and later a conductor. "He knew the hard work that goes into making both and I think he was always afraid I would not go as far as he did and that I'd be disappointed," he explains. "However, when he saw I was serious, he became just as enthusiastic as I was."

Monteux attended Blackmountain College 1937-39, leaving to study the flute with George Laurent, then soloist of the Boston Symphony. In 1942 he joined the army and was discharged in 1946 at which time he was named solo flutist with the Kansas City Philharmonic. He played summers at Lewisohn Stadium under many conductors, including his father. As a freelance flutist he gathered valuable experience, including close range observation of Toscanini and others. He has appeared as flute soloist with his orchestra and others on several occasions and has also played has own Concertino for Flute, Strings and Percussion.

Monteux began his professional conducting career as assistant conductor of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, 1949-52, spending much time building up repertoire, supporting himself by conducting two Broadway productions and freelancing.

In his three years tenure as conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra Monteux turned it from an obscure unit into a major orchestra. A new type of youth concert was launched, enabling 50,000 school children each year to hear great music.

Just Enjoy Music

At the end of the 1956 season Monteux left the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and returned to New York where he became engaged as director of two new projects: Assembly Concerts, Inc., and the New Century Players. In addition he organized two chamber music groups and has guest conducted various ensembles.

"I hate boring concerts," he says. "I'm crusading against those formal concerts which are attended only by those who 'have to attend. My aim is to make concert-going a pleasant experience even beyond the music."

On children's concerts: "If children are taken early enough, from seven to 11 years old, they'll develop as much liking for classical music as for rock 'n roll."

Ex-Cuban Delegate To UN Thinks Castro Will Fall

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—"I feel the invasion of Cuba will succeed," says Dr. Teresa Casuso.

"Fidel probably has very little real strength. We're going to see in a few days just how much. He has only an emotional hold." Dr. Casuso is the attractive, Cuban intellectual Fidel Castro appointed his United Nations representative out of gratitude for her two years of revolutionary work for him in Mexico City. But she said disenchantment set in as "Fidel became a little Caesar, with a terrible lust for power." She quit the post last fall.

Now she lives in exile in a Manhattan apartment filled with art objects picked up on her numerous travels.

She writes—her latest book, "The Fighting Island" about Cuba and Castro, will be published this summer—and she lectures at colleges. She holds two doctorates from Havana University, in Philosophy and education.

She discarded plans to visit Puerto Rico when the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba began.

"I will stay here to help any way I can," she says, adding quickly: "I'm not involved in the military aspect. I've had my fill of weapons. I know it's necessary, but I want the men to take the chances this time."

In Mexico City, she had been jailed for keeping Castro's arms cached in her home. "In those 25 days I saw the worst prisons in Mexico City," she says with her wry smile.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council members are all friends, she admits.

"When the invasion succeeds, Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, head of the council, will be provisional president, and I don't think there will be any struggle for power," she says.

Glennon-Sepesy Double Ring Nuptials Are Performed; Immaculate Conception Church

Miss Geraldine Sepesy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sepesy of 4 Larch Street, and James Glennon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Glennon of 62 Fair Street, were wed in double ring ceremonies 1 p. m. Sunday, April 9, at Immaculate Conception Church by the Rev. Joseph Sieczek, pastor.

The church was decorated with white gladoli for the occasion. Organist was Miss Theresa Gehringer and soloist, John Markett.

Attired in a gown of rose point lace over taffeta the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was styled with a fitted bodice, long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists and a scalloped vee neckline. The very full skirt, tiered in lace and tulle, terminated in an aisle wide chapel length train. Her princess crown of cut crystals secured the fingertip French illusion veil. She carried a lace covered prayerbook trimmed with white orchids, stephanotis and English ivy.

Mrs. Gerald Wenzel was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Sepesy, sister of the bride, Miss Carolyn Darwak and Miss Helen Sweeney, all of this city.

They wore princess gowns of pale aquamarine silk organza which featured circular collars of self fabric flowers and matching crowns with tulle flirtation veils. Mrs. Wenzel carried a crescent arrangement of deep pink glamellias and tulle, and the bridesmaids carried crescents of pale pink glamellias and tulle.

The bridegroom's brother, William Glennon of Mt. Marion Park, was best man. Ushers were Paul Sepesy, brother of the bride; Gerald Wenzel, brother-in-law of the bride, and Russell Howard. The brides' nephew, Peter Wenzel was ringbearer.

After a wedding trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Glennon will be at home at 62 Fair Street.

Mrs. Glennon is a graduate of Immaculate Conception and Kingston High Schools. She is employed at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Hall of Records.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School is employed as a mechanic at Boulevard Gulf Station and is a locksmith.

Critics Wrongly Interpret 'Spare the Rod' Proverb

More than several readers have been outraged by the statement recently made in this space —that the quotation "spare the rod and spoil the child" does not appear in the Scriptures.

Nearly all of these correspondents bypass the accuracy of my statement, so eager are they to remind me of the Proverbs 13:24:

"He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes."

How we can distort the scriptural proverb into "spare the rod and spoil the child" I don't understand. The modern exhortation is a slogan as glib as a TV commercial: "Buy our toothpaste —and save your dental bills."

The Bible never sloganizes. It never traffics in glibness but always requires us to make moral balances.

So, in this proverb, the whipping rod is balanced with responsibility. It qualifies the kind of rod which is acceptable. It demands a rod which "chasteneth."

To chasen means "to purify." A severely whipped child is not always purified.

Such a child at first feels great anger. Alone, dry-eyed or sobbing, he will think, "I hate you, I hate you." Then, as his pain begins to subside, his hate starts transforming itself into fear.

The physical hurt and moral humiliation we have inflicted on him have exposed his helplessness to him nakedly, unequivocally. Dimly, he becomes aware that he cannot live without us. To survive, he knows that he needs us to provide for him. In his loneliness he becomes terrified of losing this protection. He becomes afraid of his hate—and will call out to us, "I'm sorry I was bad."

But what he feels is fear; it is not remorse, that purifying awareness of error, which is the purpose of the Bible's "chastening" rod.

I have known a number of children who have been beaten severely and consistently. In them the capacity to feel remorse had been stunted.

Irresponsible punishment had impaled them on themselves, making vengefulness their overwhelming concern instead of concern for those they had injured.

Such a result, I think was not the intention of the proverb

Ask the Designer — by gaile dugas

Dear Gajle: Some members of our womn's club got into a discussion at a luncheon the other day regarding the way women look in pants. (We are all middle-aged.) I said that in my opinion, no woman who is not trim and young should wear them. My friends disagreed with me. They say that taperd slacks or even pedal pushers are comfortable for gardening, Sunday picnics and even marketing. Who is right? Please settle this.—Mrs. M. J. J.

Dear Mrs. M. J. J.: That's a big order! This is one that probably never will be settled. But I did call in some expert help. Aileen is a New York designer who specializes in cotton co-ordinates. This includes sleek, tapered pants. This is what she says on the question:

"If a woman is not greatly overweight, there is no reason why she shouldn't wear pants no matter what her age. But if weight is a problem, I'd suggest that she wear culottes instead. They're an excellent substitute and very comfortable. If she does choose tapered pants, she should pick a stripe since this verticle look is slenderizing. But if she is very heavy, no skin-tight pants, please!"

Dear Gaile: I have exactly two dresses to carry over from my last summer's wardrobe. This means that I must start from scratch this year. Would you please give me some help? My husband and I live in the suburbs of a fairly large city and we have an active social life. My age is 33. I'd appreciate some suggestions.—Mrs. A. C. H.

Dear Mrs. A. C. H.: This is a little difficult to answer in that you do not say what your hair coloring, height and weight are. However, I discussed your problem with a truly talented young designer, Luis Estevez. He does beautiful clothes and does them for the average woman rather than for a high fashion model. He says:

"A basic summer wardrobe should begin with a bright dress and jacket, possibly in a ribbed cotton, for luncheons, bridge and teas. This could be accessorized in black or white patent leather.

"Next, look for a summer coat in lightweight silk, black or a bright color. This could go over a silk linen sheath or printed silk sheath. Coat should be collarless with elbow-length sleeves. To be worn with long black or white gloves.

"Every summer wardrobe should include one dress with polka dots. For daytime wear, you should also have a black or beige silk suit that can be dressed up or down.

"Next, shop for a basic silk linen sheath in black or beige. For cocktails and dinner, you will need one black crepe sheath, one chiffon dress, one printed, colorful chiffon and a white silk cocktail dress. Buy a wide satin stole in shocking pink or turquoise to serve as wrap with these.

"A bright colored or white, street-length evening coat is a summer must for a chic woman. It, too, will co-ordinate with most of the cocktail and evening dresses."

Slate Sessions On Individual Farmer's Future

Declaring that "the future of the individual operator in agriculture is at stake and we should be informed." Leland D. Smith of Brasher Falls, master of the New York State Grange, today called on area Grangers to attend one of nine state-wide meetings to hear about and discuss the report of the farm organization's Committee on Long Range Agricultural Planning.

The area meeting will be held in Orange County, Montgomery Grange Hall at 8 p. m. on May 1.

At each of the sessions, authorized by the state group's executive committee, the principal speaker will be Donald R. Townsend. Dutchess County dairymen and chairman of the planning committee.

The Grange agricultural planning report begins: "We believe that the greater part of professional agriculture is contributing to the elimination of the working farmer and to the rapid development of big agriculture." Working farmers are identified as "those individual farmers who have the management responsibility, financial risk and actually make a significant contribution to the labor effort required on their farm."

State Master Smith in a message to 840 community Grange masters has urged them and their fellow officers "to attend the meeting nearest you, and we hope that many other Grangers and non-members will be present."

Precise Definitions Needed For Financial Guidance

Benefit—an Elk's picnic.
Joint Life—Cafe Society.
Family Income Policy—Mom's manipulation of the budget.
Ordinary Life—our ungiamorous existence.
Preferred Life—the way the other guy lives.

Better still, I wish some authority would compile a serious set of definitions, not merely confined to insurance, but covering all the devices people like us must understand if we are to successfully plan our finances.

Perhaps if the choices that exist were better understood, there would be less opinionated controversy among the industries catering to the protection and the growth of your dollars and mine.

Such a set of definitions might read something like this:

Insurance—protection you buy for your loved ones that will make them rich in security, not rich in dollars.

Stocks—your participation in a publicly owned company. They can make you rich or poor.

Bonds—You're the big-shot lending your money to someone in return for interest payments.

Mutual Funds—a package of stocks and/or bonds selected by an expert whose opinions you pay for. They can make you rich or poor depending upon how astute is the expert and the level of the market when you need to sell.

Contractual Plan—an agreement between you and someone else that at stated periods you will put an agreed number of dollars into the device they sell. When you buy insurance, you contract to pay premiums. Today, many mutual funds are sold on contractual plans.

Inflation—used to mean higher prices in boom times; now means a lessening in buying power of your dollars at all times.

Good Personal Money Management—a program designed to protect what you have even when you are no longer around and to increase the buying power of your savings with a minimum of risk.

How should you juggle?

Insurance, the protection device, has the flavor of baked beans. It is basic. Securities have the more subtle flavoring of caviar. Today each of us should have some of both. How much of each, only you can decide for yourself.

Warning: don't trade the baked beans for caviar. Make sure you always have just enough baked beans on your pantry shelf to fill the tummies that will need filling when you are no longer around.

A few days later word was received the driver had stopped payment on the check.

Ex-Cuban Delegate To UN Thinks Castro Will Fall

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—"I feel the invasion of Cuba will succeed," says Dr. Teresa Casuso.

"Fidel probably has very little real strength. We're going to see in a few days just how much. He has only an emotional hold." Dr. Casuso is the attractive, Cuban intellectual Fidel Castro appointed his United Nations representative out of gratitude for her two years of revolutionary work for him in Mexico City. But she said disenchantment set in as "Fidel became a little Caesar, with a terrible lust for power." She quit the post last fall.

Now she lives in exile in a Manhattan apartment filled with art objects picked up on her numerous travels.

She writes—her latest book, "The Fighting Island" about Cuba and Castro, will be published this summer—and she lectures at colleges. She holds two doctorates from Havana University, in Philosophy and education.

She discarded plans to visit Puerto Rico when the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba began.

"I will stay here to help any way I can," she says, adding quickly: "I'm not involved in the military aspect. I've had my fill of weapons. I know it's necessary, but I want the men to take the chances this time."

In Mexico City, she had been jailed for keeping Castro's arms cached in her home. "In those 25 days I saw the worst prisons in Mexico City," she says with her wry smile.

The Cuban Revolutionary Council members are all friends, she admits.

"When the invasion succeeds, Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, head of the council, will be provisional president, and I don't think there will be any struggle for power," she says.

Better still, I wish some authority would compile a serious set of definitions, not merely confined to insurance, but covering all the devices people like us must understand if we are to successfully plan our finances.

Perhaps if the choices that exist were better understood, there would be less opinionated controversy among the industries catering to the protection and the growth of your dollars and mine.

Such a set of definitions might read something like this:

Insurance—protection you buy for your loved ones that will make them rich in security, not rich in dollars.

Stocks—your participation in a publicly owned company. They can make you rich or poor.

Bonds—You're the big-shot lending your money to someone in return for interest payments.

Mutual Funds—a package of stocks and/or bonds selected by an expert whose opinions you pay for. They can make you rich or poor depending upon how astute is the expert and the level of the market when you need to sell.

Contractual Plan—an agreement between you and someone else that at stated periods you will put an agreed number of dollars into the device they sell. When you buy insurance, you contract to pay premiums. Today, many mutual funds are sold on contractual plans.

Inflation—used to mean higher prices in boom times; now means a lessening in buying power of your dollars at all times.

Good Personal Money Management—a program designed to protect what you have even when you are no longer around and to increase the buying power of your savings with a minimum of risk.

How should you juggle?

Insurance, the protection device, has the flavor of baked beans. It is basic. Securities have the more subtle flavoring of caviar. Today each of us should have some of both. How much of each, only you can decide for yourself.

Warning: don't trade the baked beans for caviar. Make sure you always have just enough baked beans on your pantry shelf to fill the tummies that will need filling when you are no longer around.

Honeymoon Over

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Magistrate Margaret Young probably won't be so sympathetic to honeymooners in the future. A man in court for reckless driving explained he was on his honeymoon and asked if he could give a check instead of coming into court. The magistrate agreed and accepted a $50 check for the fine. A few days later word was received the driver had stopped payment on the check.

Gladioli and palms decorated the First Baptist Church, this city, for the candlelight wedding of Miss Carol Marie Mench of Kingston and Donald Wells Field Jr. of Rosendale, 6 p. m. Sunday, April 9. The Rev. Harold J. Stephanz, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Charles Selzo sang At Dawning, Oh Perfect Love and The Lord's Prayer, accompanied by Mrs. Arthur T. Pedersen, organist.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Mench of Walton, was escorted in marriage by her father.

She chose an embroidered silk organza over white faille gown styled with scalloped neckline, fitted bodice and bouffant floor length skirt. Her illusion veil was attached to a pearl tiara and she carried white orchid on a Bible with streamers of stephanotis.

Mrs. Malcolmn Mugglin of Arlington, Va., was matron of honor for her sister. She was attired in an embroidered white taffeta street length gown. Her white braided headpiece secured a short veil and she carried a cascade of pink and white carnations.

Miss Elaine Baran of Saugerties, bridesmaid, was similarly gowned. She carried a cascade of yellow and white carnations.

Daniel Cease of Woodstock was best man with Arthur Pedersen Jr. of Hurley Heights and James Dotson of Kingston as ushers.

For a wedding trip to Pocono Mountains and Washington, D. C., the bride chose a beige and white dress with matching coat and accessories. The couple will make their home in Tillson upon their return.

Mrs. Field is a graduate of Walton High School and Delhi Agricultural and Technical Institute, Delhi. She is presently employed at International Business Machines plant, Kingston.

The bridegroom, son of Donald W. Field Sr. of Rosendale and the late Mrs. Field, is also employed at IBM Kingston. He is a graduate of Hartford High School, White River Junction, Vt., and attended the University of New Hampshire. He is a veteran of four years service with the U. S. Navy.

Collection of Art Series Is Donated Here By Sorosis; Marks National Library Week

The 12 portfolios entitled, "Metropolitan Seminars in Art, presented to the Kingston Library this week, were used in a study series by Sorosis Club during the fall and winter season this year.

The series contains a total of 144 full color reproductions of paintings, ranging from Whistler's "Study in Gray and Brown," better known as "Whistler's Mother," to Dali's "Apparition of Face and Fruit Dish on Beach," and Cole's in the Catskills."

The entire series may be reserved by clubs or art classes that wish to use the pictures and accompanying texts for art study programs. Individual library members may also withdraw the portfolios one at a time when they are available.

The portfolios, prepared with the assistance of the Metropolitan Museum of Art staff, New York City, are designed to increase the student's knowledge and appreciation of art according to definition in realism, expressionism, and abstraction; material background in composition and techniques; and social influence through poetry, mysticism, and social criticism.

Officers of Sorosis Club for this season are Mrs. Arthur J. Eymann, president; Mrs. William Ochs, secretary; Mrs. Edward H. Rick, assistant secretary; Mrs. LeRoy Vogt, treasurer. Program Committee members are Miss Helen May Turner, Mrs. Glifford R. Beal, and Mrs. Arthur Foehser.

Orange Driver Is Crushed by Truck

SLATE HILL, N. Y. (AP)—Fred Thompson of Middletown, 46-year-old employe of the Middletown Milk and Cream Co., was killed early today when crushed under the wheels of a trailer truck here.

State Police said Thompson got a fellow employe to hook a stalled vehicle onto another truck and tow it in an effort to get it started. During the towing process, Thompson somehow was crushed to death. It was theorized he slipped or fell beneath the wheels.

Fined for Tailgating

A Saugerties man issued a summons for tailgating, following a collision Sunday afternoon, involving his car and another at a village intersection, was fined $5 today by Village Police Justime G. Thomas Rea Jr. Raymond J. Mooney, 55 of 29 Clermont Street, according to Village Police Sgt. Harold Wells was driving behind a vehicle operated by Bernice Meigs, 18, of Tannersville. Washington Has No Word on Fate Of Cuban Yanks

WASHINGTO N(AP)—State Department officials said today they have received no word on the fate of Americans still in Cuba.

Cuban communications with the United States were cut off early Monday after landings by anti-Castro rebels.

U.S. officials were checking to see whether diplomatic channels between Havana and Europe might still be open. Since the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Castro regime in January, American interests in Cuba have been handled by the Swiss Embassy.

U.S. authorities estimated that about 1,200 persons now in Cuba have U.S. citizenship but only about 200 of these have ever resided in the United States.

Bugs Don't Frighten

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Sixth grade girls at Murlin Heights School are pretty much immune to teasing with bugs and such things. Mrs. Clifford Shank's class has already dissected, studied and stuffed a squirrel, a duck and a goose and collected a multitude of formaldehyde-soaked specimens. And not a weak stomach—boy or girl—in the lot, teacher says.

TEN-YEAR-OLD HOLLY SEITZ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seitz of 188 Linderman Avenue, Kingston, is shown with Professor Jotham Johnson in WCBS-TV's "Sunrise Semester" studio in Manhattan. Holly is an avid viewer of the New York University early-morning program. She wrote to Professor Johnson for a reading list and a study outline of his college-level course on "Classical Civilization 56: Mediterranean Archaeology." The professor complied with the request and invited the Kingston girl to come to Manhattan for one of his telecasts. Holly is a fifth grade student at the George Washington Elementary School. She was accompanied to the studio by her mother and seven-year-old sister, Nancy.

For Lancaster, 47, the award climaxed a career that had taken him from the New York slums through circus acrobatics to movie stardom.

Miss Jones clutched her Oscar and thanked another Oscar—the late Oscar Hammerstein.

It was Hammerstein and Richard Rodgers who picked the 27-year-old brewer's daughter from Smithton, Pa., to play the ingenue lead in "Oklahoma" and "Carousel."

But it was her switch to the hardboiled tart of "Elmer Gantry" that won her the Oscar.

"I guess it pays to be bad on the screen," she said.

The bearded Ustinov, who won an Oscar for his portrayal of a gladiator school operator in "Spartacus," flew in from Rome to attend the ceremonies.

Cooper, Laurel Honored

Special Oscars were given to Gary Cooper and Stan Laurel among others. Neither was well enough to attend the ceremonies.

"Spartacus" was runnerup to "Apartment" with four Oscars. Besides two acting awards, "Elmer Gantry" also won an Oscar for its writer, Richard Brooks.

The Swedish producer Ingemar Bergman's "The Virgin Spring" was named best foreign language film. Another foreign entry, the Greek comedy, "Never on Sunday," upset four domestic competitors to win the best original song award with a song of the same name.

Commissioner Lists Changes

Reason for Excluding Police In Budget Raises, Not Given

The much publicized public hearing on the proposed $236,085 Saugerties Village budget for the coming year was held Monday evening at the village clerk's office with approximately 63 taxpayers present. The main topic for discussion was the reason for the increase of $200 to all village employes, with the exception of the police force, and the answer to that was not given at the public hearing.

At the regular meeting of the board held following the public hearing. Police Commissioner George Terpening reported on his two hour session with the police force last Saturday and he recommended that the trustees consider a starting salary of $4000 for patrolmen, with a $100 increase each year, and seven paid holidays added to their present vacation time. This will be discussed at an executive meeting.

In answer to a query from George Hano of Second Street, Mayor George Holmes listed the wages of the officers and the added benefits they receive such as the village paid pension fund which amounts to $3700 a year in the budget, three weeks vacation with pay, and sick leave. He said they received a $500 pay increase five years ago, and a $50 increase two years ago, when other village employes were not increased accordingly. The other employes are not included in the pension fund. The mayor explained that the budget was tentative and changes could still be made at the exectutive meeting when the trustees vote on the acceptance and that all remarks made at this public hearing would be considered.

There were remarks from two other residents, one who complained that the public works department was not cleaning the streets in her area and didn't deserve any increase in pay and another who complained that the police were ticketing some cars but not all who overpark at meters, and felt that the police should not expect an increase. The meeting lasted one hour and no strong sentiments were expressed to determine the feelings of those present. No other discussion on the budget was made.

In other business a legal notice from Henry Smith and Edward Robbins on behalf of the Grand Union property on Market Street petitioned for a review of the assessment on the property at the Columbia County Court House, Hudson, on June 5. The petition states that the real value of the property is $62,500, and the village figures list it as $95,000, with land value at $20,000. Their claim states that they are now being taxed at the rate of 150 per cent where the general rate for comparable property is 70 per cent. Louis Francello, village attorney, was authorized to handle the matter.

The Washington Hook and Ladder Fire Co. was given permission to use its truck in the Ulster County Firemen's parade, July 29.

The meeting adjourned at 8:45.

Area Antique Car Show Set July 16 At Cantine Field

Mid-Hudson Antique Auto Club, Inc. will hold its annual show July 16, at Cantine's Field, it was decided at the April meeting of the organization held at the home of its president, Jack Kerbert, Oakledge Park. July 30 will be an alternate date if the need arises.

Charles Daley of Spaulding Lane, and Gus Lovy of Kingston were appointed co-chairmen of this event and they will make various committee appointments at the May meeting of the club.

The members present also decided that the club would enter as many cars as possible in the July 4th parade in Saugerties.

A lively discussion followed on the question whether the club should become a local region of the Antique Auto Club of America. A vote of the members present showed that a majority favored it but no definite action was taken at this meeting.

The May meeting of the club will be held at Earl Buton's home in Woodstock on May 11.

P-TA Meeting To Elect Officers, Hear Health Talk

"The School's Health Program" will be the topic for discussion at Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association meeting Wednesday 8 p. m. in the Main Street School.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Elizabeth Boyce, chairman, an entertaining skit will be presented by several students and teachers to show the scope of the school health program. The choir of Main Street School will also present two musical selections. Election of officers for the next school year will occur at this meeting.

Local Scouters Attend Session

The Boy Scouts of America held a regional meeting Saturday at Utica. The conference was attended by over three hundred scouters, including Kenneth Magyar, Harry Slobodian, Lee Eyler, Paul Chaney, Robert Gardiner and Russell Hardick of the Saugerties District.

At the recent monthly roundtable meeting of Saugerties District Scouters, Lee Eyler, leadership training chairman, presented a training course for Cub Scout leaders. It was announced that Atonement Lutheran Church would award four scholarship aids in amounts of $25 each toward cost of attending leadership training school. The purpose of the grants is to encourage interest in youth work and in Sunday school work to acquire new skills and learning with the intent of using them in the local congregation.

Washington Has No Word on Fate Of Cuban Yanks

WASHINGTO N(AP)—State Department officials said today they have received no word on the fate of Americans still in Cuba.

Cuban communications with the United States were cut off early Monday after landings by anti-Castro rebels.

U.S. officials were checking to see whether diplomatic channels between Havana and Europe might still be open. Since the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Castro regime in January, American interests in Cuba have been handled by the Swiss Embassy.

U.S. authorities estimated that about 1,200 persons now in Cuba have U.S. citizenship but only about 200 of these have ever resided in the United States.

Bugs Don't Frighten

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Sixth grade girls at Murlin Heights School are pretty much immune to teasing with bugs and such things. Mrs. Clifford Shank's class has already dissected, studied and stuffed a squirrel, a duck and a goose and collected a multitude of formaldehyde-soaked specimens. And not a weak stomach—boy or girl—in the lot, teacher says.

For Lancaster, 47, the award climaxed a career that had taken him from the New York slums through circus acrobatics to movie stardom.

Miss Jones clutched her Oscar and thanked another Oscar—the late Oscar Hammerstein.

It was Hammerstein and Richard Rodgers who picked the 27-year-old brewer's daughter from Smithton, Pa., to play the ingenue lead in "Oklahoma" and "Carousel."

But it was her switch to the hardboiled tart of "Elmer Gantry" that won her the Oscar.

"I guess it pays to be bad on the screen," she said.

The bearded Ustinov, who won an Oscar for his portrayal of a gladiator school operator in "Spartacus," flew in from Rome to attend the ceremonies.

Special Oscars were given to Gary Cooper and Stan Laurel among others. Neither was well enough to attend the ceremonies. "Spartacus" was runnerup to "Apartment" with four Oscars. Besides two acting awards, "Elmer Gantry" also won an Oscar for its writer, Richard Brooks.

The Swedish producer Ingemar Bergman's "The Virgin Spring" was named best foreign language film. Another foreign entry, the Greek comedy, "Never on Sunday," upset four domestic competitors to win the best original song award with a song of the same name.

Commissioner Lists Changes

Reason for Excluding Police In Budget Raises, Not Given

The much publicized public hearing on the proposed $236,085 Saugerties Village budget for the coming year was held Monday evening at the village clerk's office with approximately 63 taxpayers present. The main topic for discussion was the reason for the increase of $200 to all village employes, with the exception of the police force, and the answer to that was not given at the public hearing.

At the regular meeting of the board held following the public hearing. Police Commissioner George Terpening reported on his two hour session with the police force last Saturday and he recommended that the trustees consider a starting salary of $4000 for patrolmen, with a $100 increase each year, and seven paid holidays added to their present vacation time. This will be discussed at an executive meeting.

In answer to a query from George Hano of Second Street, Mayor George Holmes listed the wages of the officers and the added benefits they receive such as the village paid pension fund which amounts to $3700 a year in the budget, three weeks vacation with pay, and sick leave. He said they received a $500 pay increase five years ago, and a $50 increase two years ago, when other village employes were not increased accordingly. The other employes are not included in the pension fund. The mayor explained that the budget was tentative and changes could still be made at the exectutive meeting when the trustees vote on the acceptance and that all remarks made at this public hearing would be considered.

There were remarks from two other residents, one who complained that the public works department was not cleaning the streets in her area and didn't deserve any increase in pay and another who complained that the police were ticketing some cars but not all who overpark at meters, and felt that the police should not expect an increase. The meeting lasted one hour and no strong sentiments were expressed to determine the feelings of those present. No other discussion on the budget was made.

In other business a legal notice from Henry Smith and Edward Robbins on behalf of the Grand Union property on Market Street petitioned for a review of the assessment on the property at the Columbia County Court House, Hudson, on June 5. The petition states that the real value of the property is $62,500, and the village figures list it as $95,000, with land value at $20,000. Their claim states that they are now being taxed at the rate of 150 per cent where the general rate for comparable property is 70 per cent. Louis Francello, village attorney, was authorized to handle the matter.

The Washington Hook and Ladder Fire Co. was given permission to use its truck in the Ulster County Firemen's parade, July 29.

The meeting adjourned at 8:45.

156th Artillery Participates in Civil War Events

A color guard from the First Howitzer Battalion, 156th Artillery, the successor to the old 20th Regiment, was in Albany Monday to participate in the state's program observing the Civil War Centennial.

The first state-wide assembly of the New York State Civil War Centennial Commission was scheduled to be held at 2 p. m. in Chancellor's Hall.

Five Attend

Composing the 156th color guard are M/Sgt. Walter T. Bundy, Sgt. William A. Steuding, Sgt. Joseph B. Stein and Specialist Four Robert Motrie. They were accompanied by Chief Warrant Officer Thomas W. Miller, project officer for observance of the centennial.

As early as January 7, 1861, Col. George W. Pratt was appointed colonel of the Twentieth Regiment. As early as September, 1857, Pratt had met with other officers of the regiment at Rondout, expressing the view that war was inevitable, that the Twentieth could soon be put into condition to take the field.

By April, 1861, following quiet preparation and judicious recruiting, the companies of the Twentieth had been considerably strengthened. On April 12 Beauregard's cannon verified Col. Pratt's prediction of war.

Immediately on hearing of the attack on Fort Sumter, a mass meeting was held in the courthouse in Kingston, with Republicans and Democrats alike pledging to die for the flag of the United States. While the stirring oratory rang through the state, committees were appointed to aid in enlisting soldiers for the Twentieth. The regiment needed both uniforms and arms, but the state was in no condition to supply its immediate wants.

Banks Supply Funds

However, Col. Pratt's application to the banks of Kingston was successful. Four banks agreed to supply $8,000 needed to purchase necessary equipment. A "Ladies Army Relief Society" and the "Ulster Military Relief Committee" were formed. Donations and monthly subscriptions began to trickle in.

On April 23 general orders were issued directing the Twentieth Regiment to report forthwith to the President of the United States in Washington, D. C. Regimental orders were at once issued for the command to prepare to march. The funds from the Kingston banks were used to partially outfit the regiment and requisitions for additional funds were sent to Albany —requisitions that came close to bringing the career of the Twentieth to an untimely end.

Five days later, on April 28, the twentieth set sail from Rondout for New York following three days of ceremonies, speeches and the cheering thousands along the line of march. That same evening the regiment landed in New York, only to find that no provisions had been made to send it forward from New York. Governor Morgan was astounded to learn that the regiment was not fully equipped to enter the war and first directed that the equipment requisition be filled, but later on May 3 ordered the Twentieth to return to Kingston.

This order, several influential citizens feared, would discourage other organizations preparing for the field and the Governor subsequently was persuaded to order the Twentieth to proceed to Washington instead of returning to Kingston.

New Orders Arrive

These new orders reached Col. Pratt's headquarters on the evening of May 6 and a scene of genuine enthusiasm ensued in the ranks. Col. Pratt congratulated them on the prospect of "having the opportunity of showing of what material the Ulster County boys are composed." Following an inspection, the line of march was taken up, troops filing down Broadway to Cortlandt Street ferry, filled with "patriotism and a desire for military distinction." The Twentieth was on its way to honor and glory.

By April, 1861, following quiet preparation and judicious recruiting, the companies of the Twentieth had been considerably strengthened. On April 12 Beauregard's cannon verified Col. Pratt's prediction of war.

Immediately on hearing of the attack on Fort Sumter, a mass meeting was held in the courthouse in Kingston, with Republicans and Democrats alike pledging to die for the flag of the United States. While the stirring oratory rang through the state, committees were appointed to aid in enlisting soldiers for the Twentieth. The regiment needed both uniforms and arms, but the state was in no condition to supply its immediate wants.

Banks Supply Funds

However, Col. Pratt's application to the banks of Kingston was successful. Four banks agreed to supply $8,000 needed to purchase necessary equipment. A "Ladies Army Relief Society" and the "Ulster Military Relief Committee" were formed. Donations and monthly subscriptions began to trickle in.

On April 23 general orders were issued directing the Twentieth Regiment to report forthwith to the President of the United States in Washington, D. C. Regimental orders were at once issued for the command to prepare to march. The funds from the Kingston banks were used to partially outfit the regiment and requisitions for additional funds were sent to Albany —requisitions that came close to bringing the career of the Twentieth to an untimely end.

Five days later, on April 28, the twentieth set sail from Rondout for New York following three days of ceremonies, speeches and the cheering thousands along the line of march. That same evening the regiment landed in New York, only to find that no provisions had been made to send it forward from New York. Governor Morgan was astounded to learn that the regiment was not fully equipped to enter the war and first directed that the equipment requisition be filled, but later on May 3 ordered the Twentieth to return to Kingston.

This order, several influential citizens feared, would discourage other organizations preparing for the field and the Governor subsequently was persuaded to order the Twentieth to proceed to Washington instead of returning to Kingston.

New Orders Arrive

These new orders reached Col. Pratt's headquarters on the evening of May 6 and a scene of genuine enthusiasm ensued in the ranks. Col. Pratt congratulated them on the prospect of "having the opportunity of showing of what material the Ulster County boys are composed." Following an inspection, the line of march was taken up, troops filing down Broadway to Cortlandt Street ferry, filled with "patriotism and a desire for military distinction." The Twentieth was on its way to honor and glory.

Mrs. James Kinns Is Winner Of Jenkins Memorial Award

Mrs. James (Ruth) Kinns was named winner of the Woodstock P-TA's 1961 Jenkins Memorial Award at the April meeting of the P-TA in the Woodstock school.

In presenting Mrs. Kinns with a lifetime membership in P-TA, symbolic of the Jenkins award, Principal Walter S. Van Wagenen of the Woodstock school paid high tribute to Mrs. Kinns' lifelong devotion to youth activities.

Speaking in behalf of the P-TA, Principal Van Wagenen detailed the long list of accomplishments by Mrs. Kinns in the youth activities field. He pointed out that she was one of the early members of the Woodstock P-TA and for more than 15 years had been identified with youth organizations.

Three former recipients of the Jenkins Memorial Award witnessed the presentation, including Mrs. Kermit Schwarz, Milton Combs. Van Wagenen is a former winner, while the fourth winner, Joseph S. Forno, was unable to attend.

Van Wagenen pointed out that Mrs. Kinns had always been ready and willing to serve in any youth project. She has been identified with the P-TA serving on several committees directly related to youth activity; the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts as a chairman for the town financial drive on two occasions.

Mrs. Kinns has also been highly active in the Woodstock Jay-Teen movement. She also was identified with the Little League in Woodstock, serving as chairman of the financial drive and handling the concession at the ball park. She also was active in the Girl Scout movement as a Leader, den mother and chairman of the financial campaign.

In Other Fields

Mrs. Kinns served as a room mother at the Woodstock school for five years and assisted at the skating rink operated by the Recreation Committee at Andy Lee Memorial Field.

Other activities directly related to children in which Mrs. Kinns has played a leading role include the annual Christmas Eve on the Green program and the Cerebral Palsy and March of Dimes drives. Mrs. Kinns has supervised the stuffing of several hundred stockings for the past several years and has been active in the cancer and polio fund raising campaigns and in other work in the cancer field.

Principal Van Wagenen paid high tribute to Mrs. Kinns, saying, "I know of no person who more richly deserves this honor. For the past 15 years, she has always responded to every call for anything that would help the youth of the community." He also pointed out that Mrs. Kinns was a member of many other groups not directly connected with youth activities.

Mrs. Kinns is the wife of the well known James W. Kinns of Woodstock. They have three children: Lynn 18, James 15 and Sally 7.

Rocking Chairs Will Keep Golden-agers in Tone

That new rocking chair fad which is besetting the country is of special interest to elderly people.

The Canadian doctor who first called attention to the rocking chair, pointed out it is a form of "medicine" which has no side effects, is nontoxic and needs no prescription, other than the recommendation of a family doctor concerned with the health of his elderly patients.

And, if your particular attic doesn't happen to have this remedy, it is cheap and easily obtainable.

Writing in "The Lancet," a medical magazine, Dr. R. C. Swan of Sundridge, Ont., lists an impressive group of virtues which the venerable rocking chair possesses.

For instance, he says, all but the most feeble of older people can use it to indulge in limited exercise at any time, in any weather and in a dignified manner.

The exercise which the chair gives encourages blood flow in the veins and therefore is beneficial to heart and to circulation generally. It also helps prevent waterlogging of the tissues.

The exercise promotes breathing and discourages the settling of an abnormal amount of blood in the lungs.

By encouraging movement, the chair stimulates muscle tone and helps keep joints supple. Toward night, its repetitive and soothing effect encourages sleep.

"The hypnotic effects of rocking in infancy are well known, but its value in the aged is perhaps less realized," Dr. Swan reports.

"Rocking can be considered a socially acceptable and significant activity, encouraging the individual to take part in home activities and to maintain closeness with other members of the family circle."

Speaking personally, I long ago discovered that the two rockers in our living room are eagerly sought out by guests, as well as members of the family.

One, a high-backed model with arms, was once my grandparents' favorite chair. Several years ago, my mother and I removed several layers of paint from it, rubbed into beauty the wood frame and covered back and seat with chintz.

The other, a small armless style, was rescued from a coal bin. It now has needlepoint seat and back. Judging from the amount of use both chairs get, they're the favorite "prescription" at our house.

Q—I am 66 and am eligible for railroad retirement payments. When I was 65, I was told by the social security office that I needed four more quarters to qualify for these benefits, also. I am still working under social security. Will I get credit for quarters I accumulate after age 65?—J. F.

A—Yes, but, because of amendments to Social Security law, I suggest you re-check your social security office about the number of quarters you need. You may not require as many as you think.

Q—I will be 65 next month. I have never worked under social security, but my husband has. He won't be 65 for another year. Can I draw social security as a wife when I reach 65?—E. B.

A—No, You must wait until your husband draws benefits.

Women's League Re-Elects Mrs. Schwarz as President

Mrs. Kermit Schwarz of Woodstock has been re-elected president of the Woodstock chapter of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Schwarz and the entire slate of officers recommended by the nominating committee were elected at the annual dinner meeting held at Deanie's.

The other officers are: Miss Florence Hubbard, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Langham, secretary; and three board members: Mrs. Gordon Frey, Miss Florence Harrison and Mrs. Hervig Sternberg.

Members and guests applauded the delightful dinner, beautiful arrangements and unusual program. Dinner arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Horsey and her committee set a new high in the beauty of decorations, the artistic favors and the commemorative programs presented to each person present.

Some sixty members and guests, including representatives from the Poughkeepsie, Kingston and New Paltz chapters were present to join in celebrating the second anniversary of the founding of the Woodstock chapter.

The highlight of the entertainment program was a witty, whimsical bit by the League of Helping Husbands.

With this most successful meeting over, the League of Women Voters is now ready for a new year; one of study, action, and continued nonpartisan information and service to the community.

Bond Issue on Woodstock Vetoed by Onteora Board

The Onteora Board of Education by a 7-2 vote last night defeated a motion which would have made the proposed 11-room addition to the Woodstock elementary school a separate bond issue for the Onteora district.

At the same time, the board rejected a resolution which could have allowed the option on the so-called Epstein site in Phoenicia expire, thereby eliminating that site from future consideration for school expansion.

More than 50 persons, including a heavy delegation from the Town of Shandaken, jammed the Boiceville building library to hear an animated discussion on several proposals on how to meet the need for additional 19 rooms in the school district.

Motions by Trustee John Aalto of Olive triggered the lively debate on two major issues.

In the first, beaten by a 5-3 vote, Aalto moved that the option on the Epstein property not be renewed. The motion was seconded by Trustee Edward G. West and in the discussion that followed, Aalto said that in light of the defeat of the recent $1,016,500 bond issue, he could not forsee any favorable action in the future.

Trustee Arthur Knight, who voted with Aalto and West to let the option expire, said he didn't feel the Woodstock-Phoenicia package deal was "beamed for any possible success," although he did not use the term package deal. Aalto also said he felt that renewal of the option was an unwarranted expenditure of $500 at this time and a waste of taxpayers money.

Defend Option

Trustees Anne Larys, Marie Kleine and Harry Allen vigorously defended renewal of the option and joined with board president, Philip Gordon, and Trustee Janet Greene of Woodstock to defeat the motion.

Trustee Larys challenged Aalto's assertion about future reaction to the bond issue and said nobody could predict what action would take place in the future. Trustee Kleine said that if any action were taken it would have to include Phoenicia, while Trustee Allen made the pointed remark that a school is definitely needed in Phoenicia.

On the roll call vote, Trustees Aalto, Knight and West voted to drop the option.

When the reverse motion came to vote—to renew it—it was carried by a 5-3 vote, with Trustees Allen, Gordon, Greene, Kleine and Larys voting for it. Trustees Aalto, Knight and West dissented.

A motion by Aalto to submit the 11-room addition as a separate bond issue to provide temporary relief of the classroom shortage was defeated by a 7-2 vote after a vigorous debate. Trustee West, who seconded the motion, voted with Aalto. Trustee Knight, who had voted to allow the Epstein option to expire, joined the six other members to beat the resolution.

Aalto admitted there was need for more than 11 rooms provided they were not part of a "package deal." He said he felt the basic solution was the 11-room addition to Woodstock, with "additional options as required" but did not spell them out.

Other members attacked Aalto's proposal to add only to the Woodstock school as unrealistic, shortsighted and solving only part of the problem.

Trustee Greene said she was not sure that just the 11-room addition would be acceptable to all the people in the district. Trustee David R. Fox said bluntly it was "shortsighted." Trustee Harry Allen said he could not support the motion, since "we still need 19 rooms." He said putting up the bond issue piecemeal was setting the board back. "We should get all the rooms we need," he said, "and any other approach is selling the kids short."

Casey's Letter Urges Balance In Planning

"The recent announcement in this column that Mr. Lewis Wilson had resigned from the Planning Board due to conflict of interest is indeed unfortunate. However, we realize that the Town Board and Mr. Molyneaux, having the interests of the citizens at heart, will indeed appoint another dedicated citizen to fill the remaining 6 years and 9 months in Mr. Wilson's 7-year appointment.

"I have previously expressed the opinion that the Planning Board was not representative of all the people in the township. I maintain it still is not. Mr. Molyneaux has expressed the hope that the new appointee will come from the "upper district." As long as his dedication is to serve only the people, I also hope he comes from the "upper districts."

"Woodstock is approaching a point where zoning is to be seriously considered. To the landowners the most important part of zoning is the Board of Appeals. The members of this board can be drawn from the Zoning Commission, which in turn can be made up of members of the Planning Board that exists today. In other words, the present members of the Planning Board and any subsequent appointees could be the members of the Board of Appeals. The Board of Appeals is the final authority on zoning regulations other than the courts of this state. For you it is an absolute necessity that these men should be above 'party politics'."

Mrs. James (Ruth) Kinns was named winner of the Woodstock P-TA's 1961 Jenkins Memorial Award at the April meeting of the P-TA in the Woodstock school.

In presenting Mrs. Kinns with a lifetime membership in P-TA, symbolic of the Jenkins award, Principal Walter S. Van Wagenen of the Woodstock school paid high tribute to Mrs. Kinns' lifelong devotion to youth activities.

Speaking in behalf of the P-TA, Principal Van Wagenen detailed the long list of accomplishments by Mrs. Kinns in the youth activities field. He pointed out that she was one of the early members of the Woodstock P-TA and for more than 15 years had been identified with youth organizations.

Three former recipients of the Jenkins Memorial Award witnessed the presentation, including Mrs. Kermit Schwarz, Milton Combs. Van Wagenen is a former winner, while the fourth winner, Joseph S. Forno, was unable to attend.

Van Wagenen pointed out that Mrs. Kinns had always been ready and willing to serve in any youth project. She has been identified with the P-TA serving on several committees directly related to youth activity; the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts as a chairman for the town financial drive on two occasions.

Mrs. Kinns has also been highly active in the Woodstock Jay-Teen movement. She also was identified with the Little League in Woodstock, serving as chairman of the financial drive and handling the concession at the ball park. She also was active in the Girl Scout movement as a Leader, den mother and chairman of the financial campaign.

In Other Fields

Mrs. Kinns served as a room mother at the Woodstock school for five years and assisted at the skating rink operated by the Recreation Committee at Andy Lee Memorial Field.

Other activities directly related to children in which Mrs. Kinns has played a leading role include the annual Christmas Eve on the Green program and the Cerebral Palsy and March of Dimes drives. Mrs. Kinns has supervised the stuffing of several hundred stockings for the past several years and has been active in the cancer and polio fund raising campaigns and in other work in the cancer field.

Principal Van Wagenen paid high tribute to Mrs. Kinns, saying, "I know of no person who more richly deserves this honor. For the past 15 years, she has always responded to every call for anything that would help the youth of the community." He also pointed out that Mrs. Kinns was a member of many other groups not directly connected with youth activities.

Mrs. Kinns is the wife of the well known James W. Kinns of Woodstock. They have three children: Lynn 18, James 15 and Sally 7.

Women's League Re-Elects Mrs. Schwarz as President

Mrs. Kermit Schwarz of Woodstock has been re-elected president of the Woodstock chapter of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Schwarz and the entire slate of officers recommended by the nominating committee were elected at the annual dinner meeting held at Deanie's.

The other officers are: Miss Florence Hubbard, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Langham, secretary; and three board members: Mrs. Gordon Frey, Miss Florence Harrison and Mrs. Hervig Sternberg.

Members and guests applauded the delightful dinner, beautiful arrangements and unusual program. Dinner arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Horsey and her committee set a new high in the beauty of decorations, the artistic favors and the commemorative programs presented to each person present.

Some sixty members and guests, including representatives from the Poughkeepsie, Kingston and New Paltz chapters were present to join in celebrating the second anniversary of the founding of the Woodstock chapter.

The highlight of the entertainment program was a witty, whimsical bit by the League of Helping Husbands.

With this most successful meeting over, the League of Women Voters is now ready for a new year; one of study, action, and continued nonpartisan information and service to the community.

Casey's Letter Urges Balance In Planning

"The recent announcement in this column that Mr. Lewis Wilson had resigned from the Planning Board due to conflict of interest is indeed unfortunate. However, we realize that the Town Board and Mr. Molyneaux, having the interests of the citizens at heart, will indeed appoint another dedicated citizen to fill the remaining 6 years and 9 months in Mr. Wilson's 7-year appointment.

"I have previously expressed the opinion that the Planning Board was not representative of all the people in the township. I maintain it still is not. Mr. Molyneaux has expressed the hope that the new appointee will come from the "upper district." As long as his dedication is to serve only the people, I also hope he comes from the "upper districts."

"Woodstock is approaching a point where zoning is to be seriously considered. To the landowners the most important part of zoning is the Board of Appeals. The members of this board can be drawn from the Zoning Commission, which in turn can be made up of members of the Planning Board that exists today. In other words, the present members of the Planning Board and any subsequent appointees could be the members of the Board of Appeals. The Board of Appeals is the final authority on zoning regulations other than the courts of this state. For you it is an absolute necessity that these men should be above 'party politics'."

"I strongly urge taxpayers to attend not only tonight's (April 18) meeting of the Town Board, but each and every other meeting. If we continually disregard due processes of democracy, we may find the servant has turned on the master. . . LAWRENCE G. CASEY."

Bond Issue on Woodstock Vetoed by Onteora Board

The Onteora Board of Education by a 7-2 vote last night defeated a motion which would have made the proposed 11-room addition to the Woodstock elementary school a separate bond issue for the Onteora district.

At the same time, the board rejected a resolution which could have allowed the option on the so-called Epstein site in Phoenicia expire, thereby eliminating that site from future consideration for school expansion.

More than 50 persons, including a heavy delegation from the Town of Shandaken, jammed the Boiceville building library to hear an animated discussion on several proposals on how to meet the need for additional 19 rooms in the school district.

In the first, beaten by a 5-3 vote, Aalto moved that the option on the Epstein property not be renewed. The motion was seconded by Trustee Edward G. West and in the discussion that followed, Aalto said that in light of the defeat of the recent $1,016,500 bond issue, he could not forsee any favorable action in the future.

Trustee Arthur Knight, who voted with Aalto and West to let the option expire, said he didn't feel the Woodstock-Phoenicia package deal was "beamed for any possible success," although he did not use the term package deal. Aalto also said he felt that renewal of the option was an unwarranted expenditure of $500 at this time and a waste of taxpayers money.

Defend Option

Trustees Anne Larys, Marie Kleine and Harry Allen vigorously defended renewal of the option and joined with board president, Philip Gordon, and Trustee Janet Greene of Woodstock to defeat the motion.

Trustee Larys challenged Aalto's assertion about future reaction to the bond issue and said nobody could predict what action would take place in the future. Trustee Kleine said that if any action were taken it would have to include Phoenicia, while Trustee Allen made the pointed remark that a school is definitely needed in Phoenicia.

On the roll call vote, Trustees Aalto, Knight and West voted to drop the option.

When the reverse motion came to vote—to renew it—it was carried by a 5-3 vote, with Trustees Allen, Gordon, Greene, Kleine and Larys voting for it. Trustees Aalto, Knight and West dissented.

A motion by Aalto to submit the 11-room addition as a separate bond issue to provide temporary relief of the classroom shortage was defeated by a 7-2 vote after a vigorous debate. Trustee West, who seconded the motion, voted with Aalto. Trustee Knight, who had voted to allow the Epstein option to expire, joined the six other members to beat the resolution.

Aalto admitted there was need for more than 11 rooms provided they were not part of a "package deal." He said he felt the basic solution was the 11-room addition to Woodstock, with "additional options as required" but did not spell them out.

Other members attacked Aalto's proposal to add only to the Woodstock school as unrealistic, shortsighted and solving only part of the problem.

Trustee Greene said she was not sure that just the 11-room addition would be acceptable to all the people in the district. Trustee David R. Fox said bluntly it was "shortsighted." Trustee Harry Allen said he could not support the motion, since "we still need 19 rooms." He said putting up the bond issue piecemeal was setting the board back. "We should get all the rooms we need," he said, "and any other approach is selling the kids short."

Rocking Chairs Will Keep Golden-agers in Tone

That new rocking chair fad which is besetting the country is of special interest to elderly people.

The Canadian doctor who first called attention to the rocking chair, pointed out it is a form of "medicine" which has no side effects, is nontoxic and needs no prescription, other than the recommendation of a family doctor concerned with the health of his elderly patients.

And, if your particular attic doesn't happen to have this remedy, it is cheap and easily obtainable.

Writing in "The Lancet," a medical magazine, Dr. R. C. Swan of Sundridge, Ont., lists an impressive group of virtues which the venerable rocking chair possesses.

For instance, he says, all but the most feeble of older people can use it to indulge in limited exercise at any time, in any weather and in a dignified manner.

The exercise which the chair gives encourages blood flow in the veins and therefore is beneficial to heart and to circulation generally. It also helps prevent waterlogging of the tissues.

By encouraging movement, the chair stimulates muscle tone and helps keep joints supple. Toward night, its repetitive and soothing effect encourages sleep.

"The hypnotic effects of rocking in infancy are well known, but its value in the aged is perhaps less realized," Dr. Swan reports.

"Rocking can be considered a socially acceptable and significant activity, encouraging the individual to take part in home activities and to maintain closeness with other members of the family circle."

Speaking personally, I long ago discovered that the two rockers in our living room are eagerly sought out by guests, as well as members of the family.

One, a high-backed model with arms, was once my grandparents' favorite chair. Several years ago, my mother and I removed several layers of paint from it, rubbed into beauty the wood frame and covered back and seat with chintz.

The other, a small armless style, was rescued from a coal bin. It now has needlepoint seat and back. Judging from the amount of use both chairs get, they're the favorite "prescription" at our house.

Q—I am 66 and am eligible for railroad retirement payments. When I was 65, I was told by the social security office that I needed four more quarters to qualify for these benefits, also. I am still working under social security. Will I get credit for quarters I accumulate after age 65?—J. F.

A—Yes, but, because of amendments to Social Security law, I suggest you re-check your social security office about the number of quarters you need. You may not require as many as you think.

Q—I will be 65 next month. I have never worked under social security, but my husband has. He won't be 65 for another year. Can I draw social security as a wife when I reach 65?—E. B.

A—No, You must wait until your husband draws benefits.

A Career First

Ann Manfro Rolls 626 At Woodstock Lanes

Team results:

Jones Dairy Set For Jenny Tourney

Jones Dairy of Kingston will bowl in the finals of the annual Jenny tournament this Saturday in Rochester. The local quintet scored 2893 for $150 in the sectional rolloff last month at the Hoe Bowl lanes in Hudson.

Three Brothers Egg Farms of Kingston had a 2798 series and collected $75 but failed to make the finals.

John Ferraro shot 611 and Larry Petersen 609 to pace the Dairymen to their series. Pauline's of Delmar won the rolloff with a 3023 score and that team will also be in the finals this Saturday.

New Paltz Wins, 5-3, At Millbrook Central

Base hits by John Keator and Ed Kruescher, a walk to Longfield and an error on a fly ball hit by Valky Van Valkenburg netted the Huguenots three runs in the first inning and from there the pitchers took over.

Longfield went four good frames. He allowed two runs in the third frame, walked one and fanned six. Lohrman finished up in impressive fashion.

New Paltz scored a marker in the top of the sixth frame but umpire John Craven halted the game before the frame could be completed and the game went into the books as a five inning affair.

Bosox Win, 3-2, on Geiger HR; Cards Whip Los Angeles, 9-5

Mantle, Ford Spark Yankees To 3-0 Decision

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Red Sox center fielder Gary Geiger, who had been sidelined since last July 28 with a collapsed lung, smashed a 406-foot home run Monday to spark the Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

It was Geiger's third hit in nine times at bat in this infant season, his second for extra bases. The homer came in the seventh inning off reliever Tom Morgan to offset what would have been Los Angeles' tying run in the ninth. In the sixth, Geiger scored the first of two Boston runs, coming in on a single by Jackie Jensen, off loser Ken McBride. A bases loaded walk to Pumpsie Green forced home the other run.

A Perfect Day

Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford, the Damon and Pythias of the Yankees were the whole works as the American League's defending champions shut out Kansas City 3-0. Mantle, hitless in his first two games, drove in all the runs with a home run and a single. He had a perfect day with another single and a walk.

Ford, who was blanked on opening day, permitted only three singles, walked four and struck out eight. Only 1,947 fans, smallest Yankee Satdium turnout since Sept. 21, 1954, saw the Yankees get all their runs off Jerry Walker, the young righthander acquired recently by Kansas City from Baltimore.

Fornicles Saves It

Tommy Brewer, Red Sox righthander, blanked the Angels until the seventh when doubles by Ted Kluszewski and pinch hitter Steve Bilko sent him to the showers. Fireman Mike Fornicles walked pinch hitter Faye Throneberry and loaded the bases when another pinch hitter, Julio Becquer, reached base after striking out on a wild pitch. Eddie Yost popped out to end the threat. Finch hitter Albie Pearson's homer in the ninth accounted for the loser's final run.

The Yankees were held to only seven hits, five by Walker before he left for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Walker, 22, in his first appearance since he was traded, was wild, walking six. Two of the walks were issued to Yogi Berra, each resulting in a run.

Spencer Slams Grand Slammer To Lead Birds

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shortstop Daryl Spencer drove in five runs with a single and a grand slam home run Monday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 win over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The triumph, fourth in six starts for the Redbirds and the only game in the league, lifted the Cardinals into a first place tie with the San Francisco Giants.

A Four Hit Game

Joe Cunningham shared hitting honors with Spencer. The big outfielder cracked four hits, including his second homer of the season as the Cards scored seven runs in the last two innings to overcome a 4-2 deficit.

Big Joe started the eighth and ninth inning rallies. He doubled to open the eighth and scored on Bill White's single which sent Dodger starter Johnny Podres to the showers. Larry Sherry took over and absorbed the defeat. He yielded the tying run on a single by Stan Musial, and the lead run on Spencer's single.

Cunningham started things off in the ninth. He singled and advanced to third on two out walks to Ken Boyer and Curt Flood. Spencer then unloaded with his grand slammer, his second homer of the campaign. Bob Gibson started for the Cards but the decision went to Bob Miller, who squelched a Dodger rally in the seventh. Miller needed help himself in the ninth from Maury McDermott.

LEO DOES SOME KICKING — Dodger Coach Leo Durocher engages in a bit of kicking with umpire Jocko Conlan following a fourth inning beef in Dodger-Pirates game in the Coliseum. It started when Dodgers' Norm Larker hit a high popup that landed fair halfway between home and first and then bounced foul. Conlan called it a foul—Leo and the Dodgers objected. Dispute ended with Durocher being ejected. Catcher is Hal Smith of the Pirates. (AP Wirephoto)

Durocher Sits Out 3-Day Suspension

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Sitting out a three-day suspension for kicking umpire Jocko Conlan in the shins, Dodger Coach Leo Durocher wasn't even in the Coliseum as Los Angeles lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in their series opener Monday night.

Durocher and Conlan became involved in a heated exchange of words after a pop-up by Dodger first baseman Norm Larker in Sunday's Dodger-Pittsburgh game.

In the heat of argument, Conlan invited Durocher to the showers. Leo kicked Jocko and he replied with a kick of his own. They exchanged two kicks apiece.

National League President Warren Giles reminded Durocher that any kind of intentional body contact with an umpire during an argument is cause for suspension.

Shawangunk Lists Calendar, Major Course Improvements

Shawangunk Country Club has announced an extensive 1961 tournament schedule and several major improvements and innovations at the picturesque Ellenville golf course.

The men's season opens on May 12-13-14 with the Duffield-McCloud Trophy tournament, the first of three major 36-hole medal handicap events scheduled during the season.

The Shawangunk women launch their season with an opening luncheon and golf meeting on May 4. Competition in the Ringer tournament starts on May 6 and runs through August 31.

The second round of the Herdegen Memorial tournament is scheduled at Ellenville on Sunday, June 11. The opening round of the Ulster County Women's Golf Association championships are scheduled there Aug. 1.

List Improvements

Club president Robert V. Stapleton lists several interesting changes that are taking place at Shawangunk laycut. Now under construction are a swimming pool, dressing rooms and a terrace at the site of the former putting green. This green has been relocated on the east side of the clubhouse near the ninth fairway.

The first tee is being enlarged to a considerable extent. Traps are being placed to the right of the fourth green and to the right front of the ninth green.

President Stapleton, the Board of Governors and several committees have been active during the winter carrying out the many changes.

The Greens committee includes Fritz Eck, George Barthel and Bleeker Bradford. On the Building committee are: Ed Passmore, C. D. Raymond, Jr., Dick Van Keuren, Manuel Rosenstock and Francis Lathrop.

Frank Skelly is men's golf chairman and Mrs. Roland Riegel, the club champion, heads the women's division.

A Career First

Ann Manfro Rolls 626 At Woodstock Lanes

The first female, 600 triple has arrived at Woodstock Lanes and a well known Kingston woman bowler's got it.

Ann Manfro, wife of Charlie Manfro, made it a triple celebration: first 600 at Woodstock, career-first 600 and, naturally, a career high with a 626 slam.

Rolling in the Weekenders League, Miss Manfro, who carries a 170 average in the village league, opened her bid with a 211. Next came a 234, followed by a 181 finale.

Team results:

Jones Dairy Set For Jenny Tourney

Jones Dairy of Kingston will bowl in the finals of the annual Jenny tournament this Saturday in Rochester. The local quintet scored 2893 for $150 in the sectional rolloff last month at the Hoe Bowl lanes in Hudson.

Three Brothers Egg Farms of Kingston had a 2798 series and collected $75 but failed to make the finals.

John Ferraro shot 611 and Larry Petersen 609 to pace the Dairymen to their series. Pauline's of Delmar won the rolloff with a 3023 score and that team will also be in the finals this Saturday.

New Paltz Wins, 5-3, At Millbrook Central

Biff Longfield and Bill Lohrman, a pair of hard throwing chuckers hurled New Paltz Central to a successful opener yesterday at Millbrook as the visitors won a 5- 2 triumph.

Base hits by John Keator and Ed Kruescher, a walk to Longfield and an error on a fly ball hit by Valky Van Valkenburg netted the Huguenots three runs in the first inning and from there the pitchers took over.

Longfield went four good frames. He allowed two runs in the third frame, walked one and fanned six. Lohrman finished up in impressive fashion.

New Paltz scored a marker in the top of the sixth frame but umpire John Craven halted the game before the frame could be completed and the game went into the books as a five inning affair.

Mantle, Ford Spark Yankees To 3-0 Decision

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Red Sox center fielder Gary Geiger, who had been sidelined since last July 28 with a collapsed lung, smashed a 406-foot home run Monday to spark the Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

It was Geiger's third hit in nine times at bat in this infant season, his second for extra bases. The homer came in the seventh inning off reliever Tom Morgan to offset what would have been Los Angeles' tying run in the ninth. In the sixth, Geiger scored the first of two Boston runs, coming in on a single by Jackie Jensen, off loser Ken McBride. A bases loaded walk to Pumpsie Green forced home the other run.

A Perfect Day

Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford, the Damon and Pythias of the Yankees were the whole works as the American League's defending champions shut out Kansas City 3-0. Mantle, hitless in his first two games, drove in all the runs with a home run and a single. He had a perfect day with another single and a walk.

Ford, who was blanked on opening day, permitted only three singles, walked four and struck out eight. Only 1,947 fans, smallest Yankee Satdium turnout since Sept. 21, 1954, saw the Yankees get all their runs off Jerry Walker, the young righthander acquired recently by Kansas City from Baltimore.

Fornicles Saves It

Tommy Brewer, Red Sox righthander, blanked the Angels until the seventh when doubles by Ted Kluszewski and pinch hitter Steve Bilko sent him to the showers. Fireman Mike Fornicles walked pinch hitter Faye Throneberry and loaded the bases when another pinch hitter, Julio Becquer, reached base after striking out on a wild pitch. Eddie Yost popped out to end the threat. Finch hitter Albie Pearson's homer in the ninth accounted for the loser's final run.

The Yankees were held to only seven hits, five by Walker before he left for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Walker, 22, in his first appearance since he was traded, was wild, walking six. Two of the walks were issued to Yogi Berra, each resulting in a run.

Spencer Slams Grand Slammer To Lead Birds

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Shortstop Daryl Spencer drove in five runs with a single and a grand slam home run Monday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 win over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The triumph, fourth in six starts for the Redbirds and the only game in the league, lifted the Cardinals into a first place tie with the San Francisco Giants.

A Four Hit Game

Joe Cunningham shared hitting honors with Spencer. The big outfielder cracked four hits, including his second homer of the season as the Cards scored seven runs in the last two innings to overcome a 4-2 deficit.

Big Joe started the eighth and ninth inning rallies. He doubled to open the eighth and scored on Bill White's single which sent Dodger starter Johnny Podres to the showers. Larry Sherry took over and absorbed the defeat. He yielded the tying run on a single by Stan Musial, and the lead run on Spencer's single.

Cunningham started things off in the ninth. He singled and advanced to third on two out walks to Ken Boyer and Curt Flood. Spencer then unloaded with his grand slammer, his second homer of the campaign. Bob Gibson started for the Cards but the decision went to Bob Miller, who squelched a Dodger rally in the seventh. Miller needed help himself in the ninth from Maury McDermott.

Two of the Dodger runs came on a home run by Duke Snider, the 370th of his career, breaking a seventh-place tie with Ralph Kiner.

LEO DOES SOME KICKING — Dodger Coach Leo Durocher engages in a bit of kicking with umpire Jocko Conlan following a fourth inning beef in Dodger-Pirates game in the Coliseum. It started when Dodgers' Norm Larker hit a high popup that landed fair halfway between home and first and then bounced foul. Conlan called it a foul—Leo and the Dodgers objected. Dispute ended with Durocher being ejected. Catcher is Hal Smith of the Pirates. (AP Wirephoto)

Durocher Sits Out 3-Day Suspension

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Sitting out a three-day suspension for kicking umpire Jocko Conlan in the shins, Dodger Coach Leo Durocher wasn't even in the Coliseum as Los Angeles lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in their series opener Monday night.

Durocher and Conlan became involved in a heated exchange of words after a pop-up by Dodger first baseman Norm Larker in Sunday's Dodger-Pittsburgh game.

In the heat of argument, Conlan invited Durocher to the showers. Leo kicked Jocko and he replied with a kick of his own. They exchanged two kicks apiece.

National League President Warren Giles reminded Durocher that any kind of intentional body contact with an umpire during an argument is cause for suspension.

Brown Favored To Top Charnley

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP)—Joe Brown, the world lightweight champion, approached his title defense against European and British champion Dave Charnley tonight with the detached air of a professor ready to give a pupil some pointers.

Brown, now 35 and a veteran of 111 fights, was a 2-1 favorite. He looked back on his last fight against Charnley 15 months ago, decided that it was easy and announced that the 25-year-old Briton was due for more lessons once they stepped into the Earl's Court ring.

The fight was scheduled for 4 p.m. EST.

Charnley, with 38 victories in 45 fights, admitted he was annoyed at Brown's jibes and said he had learned several things from the first fight which he intended to use to good advantage.

Most British boxing writers gave Brown the nod and predicted he would keep his crown in the scheduled 15-round fight—London's first world title bout in four and a half years.

Chase Resigns As Cage Coach At Oneonta State

Resigning to devote more time to the duties of Chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department at the Oneonta college, Dr. Chase revealed that a successor for the OSUCE basketball post will be named very soon. Dr. Chase will serve also as head of the college's athletic program.

Born and raised in Tonawanda, N. Y., the athletic director stacked up 147 basketball victories as against 73 losses in his dozen years at Oneonta. His recently completed season brought the Red Dragons through with 16 wins to 7 losses, and second place in the March tourney for the State University Colleges of Education.

One man is expected to be missing next fall from the current basketball squad — Gene Battaglini, whose eligibility has expired.

The 41-year old athletic director attended high school in Tonawanda where he played football as a quarterback and was on the school's basketball team. His father, W. Henry Chase, 31 Hill St., Tonawanda, has long been active in sports activities in that area.

Dr. Chase stated that the growth of the health and physical education program at Oneonta SUCE, and the anticipated completion of a new building for this area of study has made his resignation from basketball coaching necessary. He indicated that he wants to start a cross country track team and that he would work with this group personally.

The Oneonta college athletic head is married and has two children. He is a member of the Oneonta Rotary Club, the Oneonta Presbyterian Church where he is an elder and several professional organizations. He is a graduate of Cortland SUCE, the University of Southern California and received his doctorate in education from the University of Buffalo.

New Marine Paint Is Fine if Used Properly

More resistance to sun and spray, abrasions and barnacles are among the claims made.

Through chemical action, some of the coatings can convert into plastic finishes. Properly applied, they should last for one or more seasons. While expensive, the new compounds should pay off in better service and longer life.

The worst problem the amateur boatman will come up against when applying these products is likely to be himself. He must take the time necessary for proper preparations and procedure.

A springtime painter can buy the same brushes, sanders and spray guns which boat-yard professionals use. He must read the instructions and follow them.

Regardless of what brand is used, it will need to go on a surface that has been rid of old flaking paint, has no residue of grease, oil, wax, wood bleach or paint remover, and is smooth, but still rough enough to allow tooth for the paint to grip.

The paint itself, if epoxy-resin based, is likely to come in two containers that must be carefully mixed. As in any chemical reaction, measurements can be important, and in this case, temperature, timing, humidity and ventilation will affect the job.

Properly put on, epoxy hardens with a glue-like grip a few hours after application, and may go on curing into an even harder surface for several days. Once its molecules link arms and kick over into a permanent plastic, it has been found strong enough to replace welding in the fabrication of some airplane parts.

* * *

He should find out how much working time he will have before the mixture starts hardening rapidly—usually an hour or so—and then mix only the amount he will have time to use immediately.

Should he forget to mix in the catalyst properly, he and his boat are in real trouble. His paint job will never dry. He'll spend long hours learning to be more careful while he tries to scrape it off.

Unfortunately, neither salt water barnacles nor growths that grab hulls in brackish inland waters have heard about the miracle properties of plastic hulls and paints.

Clowns Win Cage Title, Top Fumble Bees, 21-9

It's now official. The long, drawn out basketball season has come to a close. Last night at the George Washington school, the Clowns scored a 21-9 verdict over the Fumble Bees to win the Women's City league playoff title, climaxing a six year effort.

Melinda Laux and Pat Burke scored nine points each for the winners, who led 10-7 at halftime and shutout the losers during the second and third periods.

Six years ago the Clowns entered the league under the sponsorship of Joe Kelly, Freeman City Editor. They lost every game that year and ended the following season with only one victory and had only two wins the next season.

The Clowns finished second in the circuit last season, being beaten only by the Basketeers. Last night was the first championship.

Finn Is Favored to Win 65th Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Olavi Manninen is a 32 year old Finnish farmer who has percentage going for him in the 65th Boston AA Marathon Wednesday.

"Beware the second Finn" has become the watchword since the men of Suomi began double-teaming this 26-mile, 385 yard Patriot's Day classic in 1954. Manninen fits the description this time.

Another 224 assorted athletes who have running shoes and a competitive zest have entered the pavement pounding grind which starts at high noon in suburban Hopkinton. Destination: Boston's Back Bay.

Every Finn but one who has made a second trip to the BAA run has won it.

Houk Is Happy After Yankees Defeat KC Club

NEW YORK (AP)—Cigar-smoking Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees was a winning major league manager today for the first time—and he liked the feeling.

"You haven't seen the real Yankees yet," he said.

"We haven't played our best baseball so far. The weather has been against us.

"The players are not as loose as they should be. They have been erratic. It takes constantly good weather to steady them down."

Houk was in a good mood. Monday's 3-0 shutout over the Kansas City A's gave the Yanks a 2-1 record. Except for the miserable weather that has permitted the Yanks to play only three games in the first seven days of the season, Houk had two very good reasons to be happy:

1 Whitey Ford went all the way in a 3-hitter after being knocked out in the seventh inning of the opener with Minnesota last week.

2. Mickey Mantle collected his first hit of the season, a homer, and added two more singles for a perfect day, thus pulling his batting average from .000 to an even .300.

Palmer, Player Warm Up for Golf Tourney

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Gary Player and Arnold Palmer, who battled to a dramatic finish in the Masters golf tournament a week ago, loosened up for the $40,000 Houston Classic today.

Player and Palmer, who join 96 other professionals in the first round Thursday, participated in the Porky Oliver pro-amateur today — their first meeting since the Masters. All proceeds from the pro-am go to Oliver, a golfer stricken with cancer. His purse is expected to be near $7,000.

He didn't keep score for his round but he was even with par through 11 holes, Player said.

Norris Hopes Hawks Can Win Cup Again

CHICAGO (AP) —"I don't know whether we'll win again next year, but we'll be building to try."

This was the comment today by owner Jim Norris after his Stanley Cup champion Chicago Black Hawks held a champagne-flowing victory party following their National Hockey League championship triumph over the Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks Sunday night whipped the Red Wings, 5-1, at Detroit to sew up the final series, 4 to 2, and capture their first cup in 23 years.

The party had all Hawk players and just about everybody who had faintest connection with the club whooping it up in the lobby of a theater owned by Arthur M. Wirtz' Norris' partner in various business ventures.

Pender Set for Tough Fight Against Basilio on Saturday

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Pender, who risks his version of the world middleweight title against tough old Carmen Basilio Saturday, is following his usual training program:

Lots of work and little talk:

Pender, who has a broken nose and a title recognized in two states and Europe to show for his 11 years in the ring, normally is one of the more vocal fighters around. But only after a fight — not before one.

"If I seem moody or sullen its not out of tenseness," the onetime Brookline, Mass. fireman said. "It's just that I'm building myself up for the big one."

Early for Luncheon

That's the way it went Monday at a luncheon for the two fighters. Pender showed up early, had a cup of coffee, chatted with Basilio for a brief time, posed for pictures with the challenger, then ducked out for the gym and another workout.

"There's one way to beat a guy like Basilio and that's head-on, control him, tire him, wipe him out," Pender said.

Make no mistake about it, Pender is not underestimating the 34-year-old veteran from upper New York State who has held both the middleweight and welterweight titles.

"He's always kept himself in shape. He's as hard-bodies as he was five years ago. He can still take good shots and he isn't about to lose his punch.

"He's going to come in on me, hack away and I'll have to be fast enough to counter hm and keep hitting him until his legs leave him. But for a few rounds I'm going to be the guy taking it."

No Specific Plans

Basilio, warning that he is not "some lamb being led to slaughter," said he had no specific battle plans for the fight.

"You can't do that. I just have to try to find the shots and take them, no matter where they are. I just can't go one way. He'd know how to box."

Basilio, who has finished his heavy work and said he plans only on some road work and loosening up, said he expected to go in about 156.

Brown Favored To Top Charnley

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP)—Joe Brown, the world lightweight champion, approached his title defense against European and British champion Dave Charnley tonight with the detached air of a professor ready to give a pupil some pointers.

Brown, now 35 and a veteran of 111 fights, was a 2-1 favorite. He looked back on his last fight against Charnley 15 months ago, decided that it was easy and announced that the 25-year-old Briton was due for more lessons once they stepped into the Earl's Court ring.

The fight was scheduled for 4 p.m. EST.

Charnley, with 38 victories in 45 fights, admitted he was annoyed at Brown's jibes and said he had learned several things from the first fight which he intended to use to good advantage.

Most British boxing writers gave Brown the nod and predicted he would keep his crown in the scheduled 15-round fight—London's first world title bout in four and a half years.

Chase Resigns As Cage Coach At Oneonta State

Resigning to devote more time to the duties of Chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department at the Oneonta college, Dr. Chase revealed that a successor for the OSUCE basketball post will be named very soon. Dr. Chase will serve also as head of the college's athletic program.

Born and raised in Tonawanda, N. Y., the athletic director stacked up 147 basketball victories as against 73 losses in his dozen years at Oneonta. His recently completed season brought the Red Dragons through with 16 wins to 7 losses, and second place in the March tourney for the State University Colleges of Education.

One man is expected to be missing next fall from the current basketball squad — Gene Battaglini, whose eligibility has expired.

The 41-year old athletic director attended high school in Tonawanda where he played football as a quarterback and was on the school's basketball team. His father, W. Henry Chase, 31 Hill St., Tonawanda, has long been active in sports activities in that area.

Dr. Chase stated that the growth of the health and physical education program at Oneonta SUCE, and the anticipated completion of a new building for this area of study has made his resignation from basketball coaching necessary. He indicated that he wants to start a cross country track team and that he would work with this group personally.

The Oneonta college athletic head is married and has two children. He is a member of the Oneonta Rotary Club, the Oneonta Presbyterian Church where he is an elder and several professional organizations. He is a graduate of Cortland SUCE, the University of Southern California and received his doctorate in education from the University of Buffalo.

New Marine Paint Is Fine if Used Properly

More resistance to sun and spray, abrasions and barnacles are among the claims made.

Through chemical action, some of the coatings can convert into plastic finishes. Properly applied, they should last for one or more seasons. While expensive, the new compounds should pay off in better service and longer life.

The worst problem the amateur boatman will come up against when applying these products is likely to be surmounted. He must take the time necessary for proper preparations and procedure.

A springtime painter can buy the same brushes, sanders and spray guns which boat-yard professionals use. He must read the instructions and follow them.

Regardless of what brand is used, it will need to go on a surface that has been rid of old flaking paint, has no residue of grease, oil, wax, wood bleach or paint remover, and is smooth, but still rough enough to allow tooth for the paint to grip.

The paint itself, if epoxy-resin based, is likely to come in two containers that must be carefully mixed. As in any chemical reaction, measurements can be important, and in this case, temperature, timing, humidity and ventilation will affect the job.

Properly put on, epoxy hardens with a glue-like grip a few hours after application, and may go on curing into an even harder surface for several days. Once its molecules link arms and kick over into a permanent plastic, it has been found strong enough to replace welding in the fabrication of some airplane parts.

To take advantage of its properties, the boatman should pick a day with temperatures between 60 and 80 degrees.

* * *

He should find out how much working time he will have before the mixture starts hardening rapidly—usually an hour or so—and then mix only the amount he will have time to use immediately.

Should he forget to mix in the catalyst properly, he and his boat are in real trouble. His paint job will never dry. He'll spend long hours learning to be more careful while he tries to scrape it off.

Unfortunately, neither salt water barnacles nor growths that grab hulls in brackish inland waters have heard about the miracle properties of plastic hulls and paints.

It is important, therefore, that the boatman still coat his hull below the waterline with poisonous antifouling paints if his boat is in such waters.

PAINTERS BEWARE — This professional is first taking time to sand down, while using a mask against toxic dust.

Melinda Laux and Pat Burke scored nine points each for the winners, who led 10-7 at halftime and shutout the losers during the second and third periods.

Six years ago the Clowns entered the league under the sponsorship of Joe Kelly, Freeman City Editor. They lost every game that year and ended the following season with only one victory and had only two wins the next season.

The Clowns finished second in the circuit last season, being beaten only by the Basketeers. Last night was the first championship.

Finn Is Favored to Win 65th Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Olavi Manninen is a 32 year old Finnish farmer who has percentage going for him in the 65th Boston AA Marathon Wednesday.

"Beware the second Finn" has become the watchword since the men of Suomi began double-teaming this 26-mile, 385 yard Patriot's Day classic in 1954. Manninen fits the description this time.

Another 224 assorted athletes who have running shoes and a competitive zest have entered the pavement pounding grind which starts at high noon in suburban Hopkinton. Destination: Boston's Back Bay.

Houk Is Happy After Yankees Defeat KC Club

NEW YORK (AP)—Cigar-smoking Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees was a winning major league manager today for the first time—and he liked the feeling.

"You haven't seen the real Yankees yet," he said.

"We haven't played our best baseball so far. The weather has been against us.

"The players are not as loose as they should be. They have been erratic. It takes constantly good weather to steady them down."

Houk was in a good mood. Monday's 3-0 shutout over the Kansas City A's gave the Yanks a 2-1 record. Except for the miserable weather that has permitted the Yanks to play only three games in the first seven days of the season, Houk had two very good reasons to be happy:

1. Whitey Ford went all the way in a 3-hitter after being knocked out in the seventh inning of the opener with Minnesota last week.

2. Mickey Mantle collected his first hit of the season, a homer, and added two more singles for a perfect day, thus pulling his batting average from .000 to an even .300.

Nonpartisans Are To Meet Wed.

The Nonpartisan Nominating Committee, which is supporting two candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the George Washington School.

Abraham Streifer, Kingston attorney and chairman of the committee, urged all members to attend the meeting at which important matters in connection with the campaign will be discussed.

The committee, composed of some 40 residents of the school district, is supporting Mrs. Edith Case Murphy of Kingston and Robert S. Stedge of the Town of Ulster for the board.

Two new members of the board will be elected from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday, May 2, succeeding Robert Herzog, president of the board, and Robert O'Reilly, vice-president.

To Hold Hearing On Transfer of Air Line Section

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board will hear arguments April 25 on the proposed transfer of a part of Eastern Airlines' route in New York and Vermont to Mohawk Airlines.

The board last week rejected a proposal of the two airlines to restrict the proceeding so that the transfer agreement would be considered under only one section of the Federal Aviation Act referring to the transfer of part of an airline certificate.

The CAB did not, however, reject the transfer proposal itself, as reported by The Associated Press April 15 through misinterpretation of the board's order.

The airlines have stipulated that if the transfer agreement has not been approved by Sept. 1, it will be cancelled. CAB action is expected prior to that date.

In its ruling last week on motions to expand the issues, the CAB said that, without speculating on the outcome of the proceeding, it was possible that the board may approve the proposed transfer in its entirety or allow the agreement to take effect only if one or more points involved were retained by Eastern.

The board added that it then could either give the airlines an opportunity to modify their agreement or the board could start further proceedings on its own initiative to direct the route modifications it found necessary.

In their agreement Feb. 15, the airlines proposed to transfer to Mohawk Eastern's authority between New York-Newark, Poughkeepsie, Albany and Glens Falls, Rutland and Burlington, Vt., Plattsburgh, Saranac Lake-Lake Placid and Massena, Montreal and Ottawa and between Syracuse, Watertown and Massena.

Eastern would retain its nonstop flights between New York-Newark or Syracuse and Montreal and Ottawa, but would be freed of many of its local service responsibilities in the area.

The board ruled that the agreement went beyond the transfer of Eastern's certificate authorizations for the two companies between New York and Syracuse and Ottawa and Montreal, and new authority for Mohawk — not now possessed by Eastern — between Ogdensburg and Massena.

The CAB said it was clear that the changes would have to be considered under "such additional sections" as may be applicable.

GE and Carrier Officials Called By Senate Group

The antitrust and monopoly subcommittee seeks evidence that could set off another grand jury investigation of the nation's giant electrical goods manufacturing firms.

General Electric and Carrier are among the 29 companies and 44 individuals against whom a Philadelphia Federal Court recently assessed fines totaling nearly $2 million. Seven of the individuals were jailed for 30 days.

Testimony Monday unfolded stories of secret meetings by officials of ostensibly rival electrical goods manufacturers to carve up markets and try to curb "cutthroat competition."

Donald R. Jenkins, medium turbine sales manager of Westinghouse Electric Corp. of Lester, Pa., testified that sales executives of five electrical firms once drew lots to decide which of them should enter the low bid for a $500,000 machine.

"I understand the General Electric Co. got it," he said.

Truck Tires Deflated

City police investigated a complaint Monday that someone had deflated four tires on a truck parked on property of the Railway Express Agency Inc., 2 Jansen Avenue. Julius Kogellman, manager, told Patrolmen William Whalen and Edward Edwards posters also were ripped off company trucks.

GW SCHOOL WINNERS—Ann Shultz and Victoria St. John, fourth grade winners in the George Washington School science fair, display their entry on coal and coal mining in the United States. They will be among local winners competing at the Mid-Hudson Science Fair at New Paltz May 12.

Local School Sends Five to New Paltz Fair

Five young fourth, fifth and sixth graders at the George Washington School in Kingston form the basis for today's article, fifth in the current series on winners in the local science fair.

Brian A. Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roach; Joan Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Franklin; Allan Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Burns III; Victoria St. John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard St. John; and Ann Shultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shultz will represent the George Washington School. The five successful exhibitors will join other winners from elementary schools in the Kingston (Consolidated) District in competition at New Paltz May 12 against first place scientific displays from schools throughout the Hudson Valley.

Brian A. Roach won first place for the advanced sixth grade. His project dealt with electrodialysis. He credited the idea for his project to a magazine article he happened to read. The material for his complicated display was obtained from various sources. A letter from young Roach to Rohn and Haas Ionics, Inc. obtained a sample membrane and instructions. The wood for the project was gathered from a basement workshop while various magazines and the New York Times supplied necessary illustrations. The rectifiers used in the exhibit were obtained at a local radio store while the transformer used came from a model train set. The test tubes were obtained at school and other material came from the Kingston Water Supply Commission.

The first place blue ribbon for the regular sixth grade at George Washington went to a young girl intrigued by earth satellites and what kept them in orbit around the globe. Joan Franklin's winning project started when she became interested in the forces that acted on the earth satellites while they orbited the earth. She developed a project dealing with centrifugal force which won her the sixth grade first award. Joan, who says now that she wants to enter a medical therapy field, reported that her materials were gathered from a basement work bench.

Allan Burns, one of four brothers, was the successful Science Fair entrant in the fifth grade at the George Washington School. He received the blue ribbon for a display of a weather station. He credited an elementary science book, "Science in Our World", with the inspiration for his project. Burns, who claims an interest in science, insects and reptiles, said he was able to obtain his materials from various sources in the neighborhood. He reported the boxes used in the weather station were obtained from a local market, the bottles and glass tubes from a hobby shop and other needed materials from around the house.

Two ten year old girls will represent the fourth grade in Mid-Hudson Scienec Fair competition next month. Victoria St. John and Ann Shultz collaborated on a display on coal mining and captured the fourth grade blue ribbon. Victoria and Ann credit the idea for the project to a classroom study of coal and coal mining. Both girls reported their material was gathered from a local coal yard, their classroom, home and neighborhood. The two girls are the first team entrant to be discussed in this series of articles.

Science Fair competition rules allow for up to three people working on the same project. Any project entered by more than three students will not be eligible for an award ribbon or for further competition. Several other successful teams will be mentioned in later articles in this series.

The five intermediate grade students will join with other winners from elementary schools in the Kingston (Consolidated) District at the New Paltz competition May 12. Grand awards in the Mid-Hudson competition include United States Savings Bonds.

The sixth article dealing with local Science Fair winners will concentrate on the successful exhibition from School 2 in Kingston.

Cuba Seizes 6 In Castro Plot

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Arrest of 27 persons accused of plotting to assassinate Prime Minister Fidel Castro was announced today by Cuban government radio in a broadcast heard here.

Among those held, the broadcast said, was Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, Castro's first mnster of agrculture.

Among them, it was announced, was an American, Rafael Diaz Ottman.

Castro forces seized a large quantity of "arms from Key West" on making the arrests, the Broadcast said. Key West, Fla., is 90 miles from Havana.

The radio also reported that eight terrorists were executed by a firing squad early today in La Cabana prison fortress.

After the successful revolt against Batista, Sori Marin, a lawyer by profession, was named to oversee the first military tribunal. Later, he was named minister of agriculture.

Early in 1960, reports in Miami said, Sori Marin indicated disenchantment with the Castro government and was relegated to a minor position.

Area Securities Firm Head Held For Grand Jury

Edward A. Dolph of Stillman Avenue, Cornwall was arrested by state police Monday on a charge of failing to answer a subpoena issued by the office of Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz in connection with an investigation of an alleged violation of the Martin Act, New York State's securities law.

Attorney General Lefkowitz charged that Dolph failed to comply with the subpoena served on him in an investigation involving Storms-Dolph Securities Company Inc., of Cornwall.

Assistant District Attorney Malcolm Cary of Orange County, assisted the attorney general in the case.

Batista Declines Invasion Views

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Former President Fulgencio Batista said today he is following the Cuban uprising with keen interest but will only comment when the situation is clearer.

Batista's government collapsed Jan. 1, 1959 under the attacks of Fidel Castro's forces. He has been living in exile in the Madeira Islands.

Youth Is Sought In Utica Attacks

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—A third-grade teacher was stabbed Monday night as she walked along a city street toward a friend's home after attending a college class. She was reported in critical condition.

Police said the attacker, described by the teacher as about 15 years old, could have been the same individual. In each case, the assailant fled.

Miss Janet Olsen, 25, a teacher at Chadwicks Elementary School, was in St. Elizabeth Hospital with wounds below the heart and neck and across her left arm.

In the other attack, Mrs. Derna Grabowsk said she either fell or was pushed after a man rushed up behind her.

Nonpartisans Are To Meet Wed.

The Nonpartisan Nominating Committee, which is supporting two candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated), will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the George Washington School.

Abraham Streifer, Kingston attorney and chairman of the committee, urged all members to attend the meeting at which important matters in connection with the campaign will be discussed.

The committee, composed of some 40 residents of the school district, is supporting Mrs. Edith Case Murphy of Kingston and Robert S. Stedge of the Town of Ulster for the board.

Two new members of the board will be elected from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday, May 2, succeeding Robert Herzog, president of the board, and Robert O'Reilly, vice-president.

To Hold Hearing On Transfer of Air Line Section

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board will hear arguments April 25 on the proposed transfer of a part of Eastern Airlines' route in New York and Vermont to Mohawk Airlines.

The board last week rejected a proposal of the two airlines to restrict the proceeding so that the transfer agreement would be considered under only one section of the Federal Aviation Act referring to the transfer of part of an airline certificate.

The CAB did not, however, reject the transfer proposal itself, as reported by The Associated Press April 15 through misinterpretation of the board's order.

The airlines have stipulated that if the transfer agreement has not been approved by Sept. 1, it will be cancelled. CAB action is expected prior to that date.

In its ruling last week on motions to expand the issues, the CAB said that, without speculating on the outcome of the proceeding, it was possible that the board may approve the proposed transfer in its entirety or allow the agreement to take effect only if one or more points involved were retained by Eastern.

The board added that it then could either give the airlines an opportunity to modify their agreement or the board could start further proceedings on its own initiative to direct the route modifications it found necessary.

In their agreement Feb. 15, the airlines proposed to transfer to Mohawk Eastern's authority between New York-Newark, Poughkeepsie, Albany and Glens Falls, Rutland and Burlington, Vt., Plattsburgh, Saranac Lake-Lake Placid and Massena, Montreal and Ottawa and between Syracuse, Watertown and Massena.

Eastern would retain its nonstop flights between New York-Newark or Syracuse and Montreal and Ottawa, but would be freed of many of its local service responsibilities in the area.

The board ruled that the agreement went beyond the transfer of Eastern's certificate authorizations for the two companies between New York and Syracuse and Ottawa and Montreal, and new authority for Mohawk — not now possessed by Eastern — between Ogdensburg and Massena.

The CAB said it was clear that the changes would have to be considered under "such additional sections" as may be applicable.

GE and Carrier Officials Called By Senate Group

The antitrust and monopoly subcommittee seeks evidence that could set off another grand jury investigation of the nation's giant electrical goods manufacturing firms.

General Electric and Carrier are among the 29 companies and 44 individuals against whom a Philadelphia Federal Court recently assessed fines totaling nearly $2 million. Seven of the individuals were jailed for 30 days.

Testimony Monday unfolded stories of secret meetings by officials of ostensibly rival electrical goods manufacturers to carve up markets and try to curb "cut-throat competition."

Donald R. Jenkins, medium turbine sales manager of Westinghouse Electric Corp. of Lester, Pa., testified that sales executives of five electrical firms once drew lots to decide which of them should enter the low bid for a $500,000 machine.

"I understand the General Electric Co. got it," he said.

Truck Tires Deflated

City police investigated a complaint Monday that someone had deflated four tires on a truck parked on property of the Railway Express Agency Inc., 2 Jansen Avenue. Julius Kogellman, manager, told Patrolmen William Whalen and Edward Edwards posters also were ripped off company trucks.

GW SCHOOL WINNERS—Ann Shultz and Victoria St. John, fourth grade winners in the George Washington School science fair, display their entry on coal and coal mining in the United States. They will be among local winners competing at the Mid-Hudson Science Fair at New Paltz May 12.

Local School Sends Five to New Paltz Fair

Five young fourth, fifth and sixth graders at the George Washington School in Kingston form the basis for today's article, fifth in the current series on winners in the local science fair.

Brian A. Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roach; Joan Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Franklin; Allan Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Burns III; Victoria St. John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard St. John; and Ann Shultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shultz will represent the George Washington School. The five successful exhibitors will join other winners from elementary schools in the Kingston (Consolidated) District in competition at New Paltz May 12 against first place scientific displays from schools throughout the Hudson Valley.

Brian A. Roach won first place for the advanced sixth grade. His project dealt with electrodialysis. He credited the idea for his project to a magazine article he happened to read. The material for his complicated display was obtained from various sources. A letter from young Roach to Rohn and Haas Ionics, Inc. obtained a sample membrane and instructions. The wood for the project was gathered from a basement workshop while various magazines and the New York Times supplied necessary illustrations. The rectifiers used in the exhibit were obtained at a local radio store while the transformer used came from a model train set. The test tubes were obtained at school and other material came from the Kingston Water Supply Commission.

The first place blue ribbon for the regular sixth grade at George Washington went to a young girl intrigued by earth satellites and what kept them in orbit around the globe. Joan Franklin's winning project started when she became interested in the forces that acted on the earth satellites while they orbited the earth. She developed a project dealing with centrifugal force which won her the sixth grade first award. Joan, who says now that she wants to enter a medical therapy field, reported that her materials were gathered from a basement work bench.

Allan Burns, one of four brothers, was the successful Science Fair entrant in the fifth grade at the George Washington School. He received the blue ribbon for a display of a weather station. He credited an elementary science book, "Science in Our World", with the inspiration for his project. Burns, who claims an interest in science, insects and reptiles, said he was able to obtain his materials from various sources in the neighborhood. He reported the boxes used in the weather station were obtained from a local market, the bottles and glass tubes from a hobby shop and other needed materials from around the house.

Two ten year old girls will represent the fourth grade in Mid-Hudson Scienec Fair competition next month. Victoria St. John and Ann Shultz collaborated on a display on coal mining and captured the fourth grade blue ribbon. Victoria and Ann credit the idea for the project to a classroom study of coal and coal mining. Both girls reported their material was gathered from a local coal yard, their classroom, home and neighborhood. The two girls are the first team entrant to be discussed in this series of articles.

Science Fair competition rules allow for up to three people working on the same project. Any project entered by more than three students will not be eligible for an award ribbon or for further competition. Several other successful teams will be mentioned in later articles in this series.

The five intermediate grade students will join with other winners from elementary schools in the Kingston (Consolidated) District at the New Paltz competition May 12. Grand awards in the Mid-Hudson competition include United States Savings Bonds.

Cuba Seizes 6 In Castro Plot

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Arrest of 27 persons accused of plotting to assassinate Prime Minister Fidel Castro was announced today by Cuban government radio in a broadcast heard here.

Among those held, the broadcast said, was Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, Castro's first mnster of agrculture.

The others, including nine women, are being held for trial by a revolutionary tribunal.

Among them, it was announced, was an American, Rafael Diaz Ottman.

Castro forces seized a large quantity of "arms from Key West" on making the arrests, the Broadcast said. Key West, Fla., is 90 miles from Havana.

The radio also reported that eight terrorists were executed by a firing squad early today in La Cabana prison fortress.

After the successful revolt against Batista, Sori Marin, a lawyer by profession, was named to oversee the first military tribunal. Later, he was named minister of agriculture.

Early in 1960, reports in Miami said, Sori Marin indicated disenchantment with the Castro government and was relegated to a minor position.

Youth Is Sought In Utica Attacks

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—A third-grade teacher was stabbed Monday night as she walked along a city street toward a friend's home after attending a college class. She was reported in critical condition.

Police said the attacker, described by the teacher as about 15 years old, could have been the same individual. In each case, the assailant fled.

In the other attack, Mrs. Derna Grabowsk said she either fell or was pushed after a man rushed up behind her.

A cut behind the ear could have been made by a knife, police said.
